Congress Awaits Cue Today From President

Leaders Meet With Roosevelt 2 Hours But Learn Nothing About His Message

By Robert C. Albright

The Seventy-eighth Congress convened its second session yesterday with a drab round of opening formalities, while leaders turned to the White House for a cue to the legislative program ahead.

President Roosevelt's State of the Union message will be read before Congress today by a clerk. Tonight the President, himself, will repeat most of it in a radio broadcast to the Nation. In the message the President is expected to set the pace on many a home front issue on which members returned with fingers crossed.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt would spell out in detail his recommendations, or leave the blueprint for subsequent messages, was open to speculation last night.

In a two-hour White House conference with congressional leaders, the President reviewed a field of action that ranged from food subsidies extension and war profits limits, to the possibility of limited national service action.

President Doesn't Tell

But leaders said they left the White House in the dark on just what the President will say.

"The President has not yet finished his message," Senate Majority Leader Barkley told reporters. "He didn't show us what was in it or tell us what it will say. We just had a general talk-fest."

Barkley said proposals for national service legislation and possible amendment of the Connally-Smith Act to guard against further interruptions in production "were mentioned but there were no commitments."

The controversies over food subsidies, service vote legislation and amendments to the war contract renegotiation law also were "discussed," Barkley said.

The Senate leader indicated he himself will take the initiative in a search for a subsidy compromise later this week, conferring alike with legislators and war stabilizatio-

Yanks Hit Cassino Line, Gain 2 Miles

Two Crack Nazi Divisions Sag Under Onslaught Before Stronghold

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Jan. 10 (AP).—Elements of two crack Nazi divisions sagged back almost to Cassino today under the furious onslaught of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army, which burst through German defenses to a depth of 2 more miles and threw tanks into action on the plain in front of the German stronghold, 70 miles from Rome.

The extent to which British and American armor could participate in the final assault on Cassino depended on how strongly German artillery was emplaced on heights on both sides of the Rome road, which runs along the Cassino plain.

The Twenty-ninth Panzer division and units of the Herman Goering division were taking a heavy mauling. Clark's advance units were nearly half way through the six-mile zone of fortifications between the village of San Vittore and Cassino.

Freezing weather caused great discomfort to the infantry, but the hardened ground was welcomed by Allied armored divisions, which have see little action.

Look Down on Cassino

As matters stood today, American infantry fighting from peak to peak northeast of Cassino had reached a point where it could look down into the streets of that communications center. Both infantry and tanks were driving in on the bastion from the front.

American doughboys battered through strong opposition to seize the 3500-foot peak of Caiena Vecchio, north of the highway into Cassino. South of the highway, they captured 1500-foot Mount Chiaia and 900-foot Mount Porchia. Units which won Mount Chiaia continued their advance northward toward the village of Cervaro, 4 miles east of Cassino. They were strongly supported by Allied fighter-bombers.

Near the western end of the 10-mile offensive front, British troops clung to a bridgehead they had established across the Peccia River west of Mount Maggiore. German artillery gave this force a hard plastering. Field dispatches indicated the British had worked their way around southwest of Cassino, directly opposite American troops

8000 Die In Trap

16,000 Nazis Slain; Reds Slash Rail Lines

London (Tuesday), Jan. 11 (AP).—The Red Army smashed to within 21 miles of the Warsaw-Odessa railway yesterday, slashed two lines feeding into that main German escape channel, and killed 16,000 more enemy troops, Moscow announced early today.

Berlin reports via neutral Stockholm said the Germans had evacuated Sarny, rail junction 35 miles inside old Poland, in the path of the Soviet steamroller. Rovno, another junction almost 50 miles to the southwest, was endangered by rapid Russian strides.

Other dispatches said the Russians had reached the Bug River, last natural German defense line in the Ukraine. Only a few miles beyond the Bug lies the Warsaw-Odessa Railway, which the Russians hope to seize in an effort to doom upward of 500,000 Germans in southern Russia.

Guerilla "ghost armies" springing out of the snowy forests of old Poland joined Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's first Ukraine army regulars attacking westward on a 40-mile front in old Poland. Imperiled Sarny appeared about to fall as the Russians captured two more localities below it.

The guerillas, presumably Russian-organized, were declared to be wrecking German rail facilities near Odessa on the Black Sea and along the prewar Rumanian frontier toward which part of Vatutin's forces were plunging.

Vatutin's men killed more than 4000 Germans, Moscow announced. But the biggest bag of Nazis was garnered when Gen. Ivan S. Konev's troops caught the remnants of an original enemy force of 50,000 or more men in a trap west and northwest of Kirovograd in the Dnieper Bend.

Upon refusing to surrender, the enemy troops were wiped out almost to a man—8000 of them, the bulletin said.

Captured enemy booty listed by Moscow was tremendous. Scores of tanks and big guns, hundreds of rifles and food and ammunition stores fell to the advancing Russians. Scores of tanks also were destroyed in vicious fighting, but Moscow's announcements indicated German counterattacks were only spasmodic and on a diminishing scale along most of the active front.

The Germans clearly faced their worst disaster of the war, one surpassing the Stalingrad debacle.

Konev was driving west and northwest to effect a junction with the southern arm of Vatutin's forces to trap a greater segment of Germany's Dnieper Bend troops in the Smela-Kanev sectors. The two

Soviet Radio Suggests Poles Get Part of Reich

Cites Curzon Line Decision of 1919, Offers Poland Mutual Aid Pact

London (Tuesday), Jan. 11 (AP).—The Soviet government in an official statement broadcast early today indicated Russia's intention to retain the bulk of the territory she obtained in the 1939 partition of Poland, but offered Poland German territory in the West and suggested that the Poles join the Soviet-Czecho-Slovak mutual assistance pact.

"The Soviet Government once again declares it is striving towards the establishment of friendship between the Soviet and Poland on the basis of solid, good-neighborly relations and mutual respect," said the statement, "and—if the Polish people desire it—on the basis of mutual assistance against the Germans as the main enemies of the Soviet Uuion and Poland.

"The realization of this task could be served by the incorporation (adherence) of Poland to the oviet-Czecho-Slovak agreement of friendship and mutual assistance and postwar collaboration."

Terms Suggested

However, the statement said, the approaching restoration of Poland must be accomplished by return of land held by the Germans and not by Polish "seizing" of Ukraine or White Russian areas. The western Ukraine and western White Russia, it declared, had joined the Soviet Union by plebiscite in 1939, which "corrected" the "injustice permitted by the Riga agreement in 1921," which gave the territories to Poland.

This was the first official Soviet statement on the Polish-Russian border dispute, which has grown urgent since the Red army advance across the old Polish frontier last week.

"The Soviet-Polish border could pass approximately along the so-called Curzon line, which was accepted in 1919 by the supreme council of the Allied powers and which provided for inclusion of the western Ukraine and western Byelo-Russia (White Russia) in the structure of the Soviet Union," it said.

The Curzon line roughly followed the Bug River and a line between Grodno and Brest-Litovsk as Poland's eastern boundary. It was not accepted by the Poles, who then were at war with the Bolshevists, and the border eventually was drawn up 160 miles eastward by the treaty of Riga in 1921. That border existed until the Germans and Russians divided Poland between them in September, 1939.

This partitioning followed the Bug River beyond Brest-Litovsk on its swing northwestward toward East Prussia.

Outlet to Baltic

The Moscow radio said "Poland's eastern borders could be established by agreement with the Soviet Union. The Soviet government does not regard 1939 borders as unchangeable." It suggested Poland could be reconstituted with territory now part of Germany, saying this would give the Poles an outlet to the Baltic Sea.

In drawing the new borders of Poland, the radio said, "corrections can be included to the advantage of Poland in that direction (in the west) in order that districts in which there is overwhelming Polish population be handed over to

Keynote by Halleck

By Edward T. Folliard

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York will be "available" for the 1944 Republican nomination for President, despite his statements that he is "not a candidate, will not be a candidate," and wants to serve out his four-year term at Albany.

This was the word that was flying through the Stevens Hotel tonight as Republican orators opened their political offensive of '44.

The pattern of GOP arguments in the fateful campaign year was seen in a speech tonight by Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, new chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Halleck tore into the New Deal plea of "don't change horses while crossing the stream" by saying that the running of the war was in the hands of men trained in the art of making war; that the Republican Party would do nothing to hamper or alter this "great leadership."

"George Marshall," Halleck said, amid cheers, "is an American general, not the general of any political party.

"General Eisenhower is an American general, not a party general.

"MacArthur belongs to every American.

Scores Offer To Give Blood To Texas Boy

By Kurt Kelman

Gallinger Hospital yesterday set up machinery to accept blood donations from sympathetic Washingtonians for 4-year-old Billy Meers in Dallas, Tex.

It will send plasma to Baylor Hospital in the same amount as its own blood bank is being replenished.

The plan was suggested by The Washington Post acting upon receipt of calls from a score of persons interested in giving their blood to prolong the life of the child who is suffering from a kidney ailment and has been kept alive for months through continuous transfusions.

Officials at Baylor Hospital, whose blood bank is running dry because of the boy's tremendous needs, indicated their reluctance to ask the Red Cross for plasma "In view of the big invasion coming up, when every bit of plasma the Red Cross can get will be needed overseas."

"Ours is a tragic problem," one hospital official was quoted as saying by the Associated Press. "We are happy to have for Billy Meers all the blood plasma that civilians will contribute. But when it comes to the armed services, we must weigh the fact that Billy Meers is

$2,500,000 Fire Sweeps Salt Plant In Michigan

Marysville, Mich., Jan. 10 (AP).—Fire swept the local plant of the Morton Salt Co. tonight, largest of the firm's five branches in the Middle West, causing damage which General Manager Fred Philbrick said would amount to $2,500,000.

Philbrick estimated the loss of equipment in one building alone at $700,000.

All Port Huron and Marysville fire equipment fought the flames. State police kept a crowd of 5000 spectators at a safe distance.

D. C. to Get 50 Extra Cars of Coal Weekly

U. S. Acts as Stocks Dip Dangerously Low; Deliveries Limited

By Linton Burkett

Emergency shipments of 50 extra carloads of coal a week were ordered yesterday by the Solid Fuels Division of the Department of Interior in an effort to stave off a critical shortage of solid fuels in the city.

Stocks in the city have become dangerously low, according to dealers. Solid Fuels Division spokesmen admitted they were "tight."

Dealers are limited to deliveries of 2 tons to a customer, and this may not be delivered if the customer has as much as a ton or more coal in his cellar.

Interior Department officials expressed the belief that strict adherence to this regulation would insure heat for all in the city.

Coal dealers, on the other hand, said, and Interior officials admitted the probability, that sufficient coal was not on hand in the city to fill orders.

Dealers and Government officials gave as the reason for the shortage the sharp reduction of production at the mines during the holiday season.

The city is just beginning to feel the results of this lag. The mine reduction during the holidays resulted in the current pinch because stock piles usually on hand at the mines had been depleted

Losses to U-Boats Cut 60% in 1943

U-boats in 1943 sank only 40 per cent as much United Nations merchant tonnage as in 1942 in the Atlantic it was announced last night by the American and British governments.

The declining rate of sinkings last year was shown in the fact that nearly half of the losses occurred in the first quarter, 27 per cent in the second and only 26 per cent in the entire second half-year.

Allied Bombers Blast Japs Over Wide Arc

Strike Hard at Bases, Supply Routes From Celebes to Solomons

Advanced Allied Headquarters, New Guinea (Tuesday), Jan. 11 (AP).—Allied air squadrons roamed the skies from the Dutch Celebes far north of Australia to the Solomons to deliver heavy bomb loads on Japanese bases and barge supply routes, the high command announced today.

Biggest smash was made in the Madang supply and air base area on the northeast coast of New Guinea, where 168 tons of explosives were laid on Madang itself, the protecting airdrome at Alexishafen and Bogadjim, Madang's main southern defense outpost. These blows should materially aid the American invasion force at Saidor, 55 miles southeast of Madang.

Heavy bombers soared 750 miles northwest of Darwin, Australia, to drop 25 tons on Kendari, on the east coast of Celebes Island.

There was little change in the ground situation at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, where American Marine patrols were operating extensively south of the airdrome which was cleared of the enemy 10 days ago.

Other Marine units resumed their advance south of Silimati Point, near the Borgen Bay area of the Cape Gloucester invasion holding, and met resistance Sunday morning, a headquarters spokesman said. Hard fighting previously had been reported here.

American casualties including wounded since the Cape Gloucester landing December 26 are less than 15 per cent of 2000 counted Japanese dead, or fewer than 300 men.

United States Naval units spread destruction among Japanese barges caught off the New Guinea coast, sinking or destroying 11 of the craft, seven of which were loaded with troops and supplies, in a night action off Gali Point seven miles below Saidor.

'Court' Decrees Ciano Must Die For 'Treason'

Fascist Council Also Condemns De Bono, 16 Others

London, Jan. 10 (AP).—Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's playboy son-in-law and former Italian Foreign Minister, has been sentenced to death for "treason" to Italy and its deposed dictator, the Berlin radio announced tonight.

An extraordinary tribunal of Mussolini's revamped Fascist government condemned Ciano and 17 other members of the Grand Fascist Council for voting to oust Mussolini, the broadcast said, quoting a DNB dispatch from northern Italy.

Only five are in Fascist hands, among them 76-year-old Marshal Emilio De Bono, who commanded the expedition to Ethiopia. The others are Ciano, Carlo Pareschi, former Minister of Agriculture; Giovanni Marinelli, former head of the Fascist militia, and a man named Gotthardi.

Tullio Cianetti, former Minister of Corporations, was a nineteenth defendant, and was sentenced to 30 years at forced labor, DNB added.

There was no indication that Mussolini's daughter, Edda, tried to save her husband, or that Mussolini appeared as a witness against Ciano.

The grand council members sentenced in absentia included Count Dino Grandi, former Ambassador to London and president of the Chamber of Fasces and Guilds, who led the battle in the council to depose Mussulini. The dictator was ousted July 25 and placed under guard, but later was "rescued" by Nazi troops.

The dispatch said the trial was held at Verona and that it lasted two days.

Ciano, whose last job in his father-in-law's government was as Ambassador to the Vatican, was placed under arrest by Marshal Badoglio's government but later escaped. The Germans said they then captured him at the Swiss border.

Ciano, 40, was reputed to have become one of the richest men in

WAC Lieutenant's Lawyer Keeps Silent on Hearing

Army secrecy which has enveloped the military action against First Lieut. Virginia Wight of the Fort Myer, Va., WAC contingent, expanded at yesterday's hearing to include her civil counsel until the matter goes before a reclassification board again Monday, James J. Laughlin, the lawyer, said last night.

Yesterday's initial hearing, held at an undisclosed place, brought from Army authorities the information that "proceedings of the reclassification boards are confidential and consequently no comment can be made."

The Army, it was said, would not make public its final disposition in the matter but said that at the conclusion of the case it was possible the young woman officer or her counsel may make a statement as to the conclusions.

Just what the lieutenant is charged with is vague. Her lawyer said the charges were a "veil of glittering generalities."

Carriages, Strollers, Pushcarts

Metal Baby Vehicles Slated For Market as Ban Is Lifted

By Walter Wood

The War Production Board yesterday removed the ban on metal baby vehicles and at the same time committed itself to a race with the stork.

Improvement in the steel supply—and possibly paternal instinct—moved WPB officials to lift restrictions on the use of metals in baby carriages, strollers, walkers and pushcarts.

Mamas and papas were promised that the all-metal jobs will be on the market in six weeks to replace the less-sturdy wooden "victory models," which have been jostling junior around since last spring, when WPB prohibited the use of more than 9 pounds of metal in carriages and 1½ pounds in the other gadgets.

In making the announcement, WPB said it hoped to keep production of baby vehicles "high enough to take care of the expected increase in births in 1944," and thereby toed the line with the stork.

If the bird is as busy in 1944 as it was in '43, WPB is in for a contest. Official figures are incomplete, but it is estimated that the stork made 3,200,000 deliveries in the United States last year. On the other hand, Census Bureau statistics show the Nation's birth rate began to decline last October, the effect of millions of men going overseas in the armed forces. In any event, the WPB is geared for speed.

WPB expects steel to be available for the industry to opearte at capacity in 1944. An estimated 750,000 to 800,000 carriages and 650,000 strollers, walkers and pushcarts will be produced when the program is completed. In the next six weeks manufacturers will make the vehicles from steel on hand.

Reconversion to the prewar models, the agency estimates, will save 20 per cent in manhours since

Dates May Be Had

If Federal Girls Are Lonely, It's Their Fault, Bureaus Say

By Emily Towe

Washington may be the loneliest city in the world, as it was called by Dr. Frederick E. Reissig of the Federation of Churches but a great many Washington Government workers who return to their homes eventually come back to the Capital.

A survey of personnel offices of Government agencies disclosed yesterday that a number of Government workers who went home missed the very things they had griped about in the Capital—crowded buses, cafeteria rushes, the jostling throngs along the street.

When the girls reached their native cities and hamlets, they found their boy friends away at war and many of the girls they knew employed other places. So they often return to Washington.

Personnel and social directors of the war agencies and a number of employes insisted yesterday that if a girl is lonesome, it is her own fault. All of them laughed at the old description of Washington as the city with "eight women to every man" and said that girls in the Capital have more opportunity to meet men now in wartime than ever before in history.

When a lonely girl goes to the employe counseling, personnel or recreation department and says frankly that she would like to have dates and go to dances, the War Production Board, the Office of War Information, the Office of Price Administration, and other Government agencies tell her about parties and dances at nearby camps and hospitals and describe the procedure to become a hostess at USO Clubs in the Capital.

Representative of the replies of Government girls when asked yesterday how they overcame loneli-

Grand Jury Subpenas Sparks Along With 'Hopkins Letter'

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—C. Nelson Sparks, who recently made public a letter which he declared was written by Harry Hopkins predicting the Republican nomination of Wendell Willkie for President in 1944, said today he had been subpenaed to appear Wednesday before a Federal grand jury in Washington, D. C.

Sparks said the letter, now in his possession, "has been supenaed too," as has Dr. Umphrey Lee, president of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex. The letter, according to Sparks, was written to and received by Lee.

The grand jury will investigate the letter to determine if it is a forgery, violating a section of the District code which makes it a criminal offense to make or publish a forgery with intent to injure another. Hopkins, adviser to President Roosevelt, has charged the letter is "a forgery" and Lee has denied receiving the letter or knowing Hopkins.

Sparks, author of the book, "One Man—Wendell Willkie," a criticism of the 1940 candidate, was in Chicago today to address a meeting sponsored by the Republican National Committee and announced the grand jury developments at a press conference.

He issued a statement that ". . . . I am confident of its (the letter's) authenticity and I can and will prove that Dr. Umphrey Lee received the letter. Only Mr. Hopkins could have originated such a letter.

"However, if Mr. Hopkins can prove that he was not the author of it, then it will become apparent to the American public that the New Deal is saturated with duplicity and internal intrigue."

Sparks, former Mayor of Akron, Ohio, made the letter public on

New Italian Bases Used to Bomb Sofia

War Sidelights

Crew Sinks Nazi Ship, Japan Bound

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 10 (AP).—A German blockade runner was scuttled by her crew on January 3 while being chased by American and Brazilian naval and air forces, and 145 crewmen have been imprisoned in Brazil, the newspaper O Globo reported today.

The newspaper said this was the same ship which an official announcement on Saturday stated was sunk by United States and Brazilian ships while en route to Japan from Germany with contraband.

O Globo added the ship was the third blockade runner sunk while attempting to carry war supplies between Japan and Germany in recent months.

One was sunk by American and British planes in the Bay of Biscay, December 27, and the other was the armed merchantman Elizabeth, sent to the bottom off Dakar "some months ago."

O Globo said an American patrol plane sighted the ship sunk January 3 and was damaged by gunfire. The crew abandoned ship when Allied naval vessels drew in sight.

The majority of the prisoners taken from lifeboats were said to be Germans, but with some Italians and "possibly Argentines and Spaniards" among them.

Polish Horrors Planned

London, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Polish underground radio said today that German plans for the evacuation of Warsaw provide for the destruction of the former capital's industries and communications and the deportation to Germany of all Poles capable of work.

The broadcast added that all Poles considered capable of leading an uprising were to be shot together with their families.

Berlin Workers Hit

Stockholm, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Goeteborg newspaper Handels-Ochs Sjoefartsidning said today that 45,000 of Berlin's workmen are missing—either casualties or fugitives from Allied bombings.

The paper said also that another 420,000 Berlin workers are unemployed as the result of destruction of plants and factories. Some 100,000 of these were reported to have been removed to other cities.

Great Britain Airfields

London, Jan. 10 (AP).—More than 250,000 acres of land in Britain now are devoted to airfields in use by the RAF and the United States Army Air Forces, it was disclosed today.

Fortresses Blast Capital; Tension Grows in Bulgaria

London, Jan. 10.—Strong formations of American Flying Fortresses from great new bases in Italy heaved explosives and fire upon the Bulgarian capital of Sofia today amid reports that the German satellite is girding for an attack on Turkey, and new signs of the growing importance of the Balkans as a war theater.

The raid on the communications center serving Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria followed by only one day an American heavy bomber assault on Pola, Italian city and Adriatic naval base at the tip of the Istrian Peninsula which is a main supply port for Nazi forces in Yugoslavia.

The newest reports that Bulgaria is preparing to attack Turkey came from the Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten, which said that "Turkey is not expected to be able to remain neutral until the end of the winter."

"Military patrols searched people on the streets of Sofia last week," the newspaper continued. "The radiastation, war ministry and government palace have special guards with machine guns ready for an attack.

Bulgaria, although officially at war with Britain and the United States, never has declared war against Russia, and has thus far given only half-hearted military support to Germany, mostly in the form of furnishing occupation troops and putting a few divisions into the field against Yugoslav guerillas.

An attack on Turkey would indicate that the Nazis have successfully averted attempts by pro-Allied elements to overthrow the government, and have brought overwhelming pressure to bear for a strong demonstration of German support.

Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) indicated that his Yugoslav Partisan guerilla armies were meeting stiffer opposition in their attempts to repel the German invaders.

A broadcast said the Nazis were employing infantry, tank and motorized units in their newest five-pronged drive to crush the guerillas, and that heavy fighting was raging in western and central Bosnia.

armies were reported less than 70 miles apart.

Among the 50 localities swept up by Konev was Kamenka, 37 miles northwest of Kirovograd, and only 18 miles from Smela, the rail junction serving a big body of German troops now endangered with entrapment.

Railway Lines Severed

Vatutin cut the Smela-Khristinovka railway at Yarovatka, 80 miles southwest of Smela, the bulletin said. Another railway between Khristinovka and Vinnitsa was severed with the capture of Voronovitsa, 13 miles southeast of Vinnitsa.

In line with the Russian effort to block the escape of Germany's Dnieper Bend forces, Berlin reported the Soviets had tried unsuccessfully to land on the Black Sea coast near Ochakov between Odessa and the Dnieper River mouth. The Germans said the attempt failed.

Retreats Admitted

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Berlin radio commentator, acknowledged, however, that German troops, using a "flexible defense," were giving up territory to the onrushing Soviet forces "for the purpose of sparing German forces unnecessary exhaustion or of protecting them from being cut off."

German propagandists continued to stress the numerical superiority of the Russians who were said to be "attacking ruthlessly, throwing masses into the fray without considering the cost."

Jean Paquis, Paris radio commentator, hiked his Sunday estimate of two million attacking Russians to three million and said the Germans had only 700,000 men trying to hold them.

There were rumors that Field Marshal Gen. Fritz Erich von Mannstein had been ousted because of his failure to hold the Red avalanche. Von Mannstein, conqueror of Savastopol in 1942, was the man who futilely tried to break the Red army ring of encirclement at Stalingrad last winter when Field Marshal Gen. Friedrich von Paulus' Sixth Army of 330,000 men were killed or captured.

The Stockholm newspaper Aftontidningen quoted a private informant as saying Von Mannstein had been seen in civilian clothes last week in Vienna. The paper said it was rumored Field Marshal Rudolf Gerd von Runstedt, commanding the invasion coast of France, would succeed Von Mannstein.

French Seek Vanguard Post For Invasion

Algiers, Jan. 10 (AP).—The French Consultative Assembly demanded today that the United Nations officially recognize French guerillas as the vanguard of invasion and include them in the strategies for attack.

At the same time Gen. Charles de Gaulle blamed the Allies for what he called "painful, dolorous negotiations" with the French National Committee for arming the patriots.

"When our yellow book is published, including reports on the painful, dolorous negotiations between the national committee in London and later the national committee in Algiers and the Allied governments," he said, "it will show a sad story and that we are not at fault."

The yellow book is the French equivalent of the United States State Department's white book, an official account of certain activities.

"This is a special kind of war," he said. "It may surprise the Allied governments who could not picture it. Much has been done, but not enough (to aid the French patriots)."

Interior Commissioner Emmanuel D'Astier de la Vigerie, summing up a two-day discussion of the resistance movement, declared a purge of "traitors" would be conducted regardless of the British and American governments, adding, "to the Allies we would say, 'The sooner the purge is over, the sooner order will be resestablished."

Berlin Administrative Centers Ruined

London, Jan. 10 (AP).—So many German government buildings—from Hitler's private chancellery on down—have been destroyed or damaged by bombing that it is doubtful if the Nazi war administration could have been continuing from the capital even a month ago.

A list of destroyed or damaged places issued today on the basis of reconnaissance photographs up to December 21 includes, besides the Fuehrer's offices:

The home of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels; offices of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering; headquarters of the Gestapo; the official residences of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop; The foreign office; the treasury, the ministries of justice, transport, food and agriculture, armaments and munitions, education, the home office and the army recorders office.

In addition, the Kroll Opera House, meeting place of the Reichstag since 1933, has been damaged by fire. Berlin's main shortwave studios were hit and 236 military huts were destroyed.

Four gasworks, including the city's largest, were hit. Seven waterworks, five trolley depots and the main postal depots were damaged. The Lehrer and Potsdamer railroad stations were gutted.

Ninety-eight identified industrial plants were bombed including the great Rhein-Metall Borsig armament factory which makes everything from tanks to torpedoes.

considered incurable and that the plasma given him in vain might some day have been given a soldier whose life could be saved."

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, acting superintendent of Gallinger, made the facilities of the hospital available when acquainted with the situation and promised the "full cooperation" of the hospital's blood donor clinic.

Victim of Nephritis

He said that all volunteers should indicate their intention to give their blood for Billy Meers and the hospital will send an equal amount of plasma to the institution in Dallas where the ailing child has received over 200 pints of plasma within the last few months.

Billy has been reported suffering from chronic nephritis, an inflammation of the kidneys. Leading Washington physicians yesterday confirmed that the disease is without known cure and fatal. They added that patients have been known to be kept alive for years by transfusions but "as soon as they stop, they just dry up."

A check with District records last night revealed that two persons died of nephritis yesterday and two Saturday. The ailment is not considered unusual among elderly people but is rare among children, physicians said. A woman who died yesterday of the ailment was reported by her doctor to have been kept alive by transfusions for more than a year.

Meanwhile, response from throughout the Nation was reported by the Associated Press. The action taken by The Post in cooperation with Gallinger Hospital, however, is the first known instance of organized help to the boy outside his community.

Reports on December 6 from the Swiss-Italian border had said Ciano had been executed, shot in the back by a firing squad. The Germans denied this and subsequently announced the treason trials.

A Swiss dispatch said Mussolini's illness prevented him from attending the trials. Ciano, the dispatch said, presented a "written formal defense which was intended rather for posterity than for the court."

Poland."

This apparently referred to the East Prussian area.

The statement concluded with strong criticism of the Polish government in London, which, it said, "cut off from its people, has shown itself incapable of establishing friendly relations with the Soviet Union.

"It also has shown itself incapable of organizing an active struggle against the German invaders in Poland itself. . . . It often has played into the hands of the Germans."

"The injustice permitted by the Riga agreement in 1921 in regard to those areas was thus corrected."

The statement added, "The Soviet government has declared several times that it stands for establishment of a strong, independent Poland and for friendship with Poland."

Moscow suggested that "solution of this problem could lead to inclusion of Poland in the Soviet-Czechoslovak agreement."

Sparks said his motive for making the letter public was "to show the Republican Party that Willkie's ideology doesn't differ from that of the New Deal, and that he shouldn't be nominated in 1944."

He declared he was not backing any Republican candidate, and that "if Willkie is nominated I shall vote for President Roosevelt. I'll vote for a man that's frank and open, and Willkie isn't."

GOP Army Canvass Draws Walker Fire

President Rules

Congressmen Can't Serve, Fight Too

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt ruled yesterday that legislators can't serve both in Congress and in uniform.

Attorney General Biddle advised him that the Constitution forbids service in Congress and the armed forces at the same time, so Mr. Roosevelt asked Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox to see to it that legislators confine themselves to legislating.

It seems that only two Representatives were affected by the ruling: Henry M. Jackson (Democrat) of Washington, who is a private in a tank destroyer unit at Fort McClellan, Ala., and Albert Gore (Democrat) of Tennessee, who volunteered recently, and now is on furlough under orders to report at Camp Shelby, Miss., January 19.

Said Gore, who is 36, married and father of a daughter: "all I can do is what I am ordered."

Mr. Roosevelt's order apparently will prevent members of Congress who hold reserve commissions from going on tours of active duty. A number of them have done that, including Senator Lodge (Republican), Massachusetts; Representative Maas (Republican), Minnesota, and Representative Lyndon Johnson (Democrat), Texas.

Mr. Roosevelt wasn't against Congressmen fighting on battlefields. In fact, he said, "the desire of the national legislators to serve their country under arms is understandable and appreciated—and does them honor." But he added:

"Aside from the constitutional barrier, there is also the problem of evaluation of service to the Nation. One of the greatest strengths of our democracy in the time of crisis is a strong, virile Congress to meet the problems arising from the demands of total war.

"The election of these Congressmen, after war was declared, showed that their constituents believed that their service as legislators was their paramount contribution to the war effort."

Democrats Won't Conduct Soldier Survey, He Says

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 10 (AP).—Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said today it would "try my imagination" to assume that the Republicans have made an accurate survey of the political leanings of servicemen.

Walker, visiting his home city, made this comment on a statement by Republican National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler that an informal sampling led him to conclude the soldier vote would be 56 per cent Republican. He said:

"I shall not presume to dictate the policy to be pursued by the Republican National Committee. However, I do now make the very definite statement that the Democratic National Committee has not conducted a survey of the soldier vote and will not conduct one.

"Mr. Spangler asserted that the soldier vote would be Republican. Assuming that the results of Mr. Spangler's survey are correct—an assumption which would try my imagination—I would still zealously advocate giving every serviceman the opportunity to vote in the coming election."

would "try my imagination" to as-

In Washington the Spangler statement brought repercussions from the Democratic side of the House.

"I shudder to think what would have been the comment had such a survey been made or pretended to be made by the Democratic National chairman," Representative Eberharter (Democrat) of Pennsylvania) took the floor to say.

"Mr. Spangler should be accorded faith in his own announcement. This ought to mean that the Republican members of the House will cease their efforts to make voting by soldiers and sailors difficult if not impossible for, if as Mr. Spangler indicates, the armed services are on their side, there would be no political advantage in keeping the citizens in uniform away from the ballot box."

Representative Fish (Republican) of New York replied that Eberharter was "unduly alarmed" and that "no group has more right than the soldiers to express" their political viewpoints.

"What we want to be sure of," Fish added, "is that the soldiers' vote is honest and not manipulated."

Girl of 9 Dies After Sleeping For Four Years

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP).—Nine-year-old Doreen Shook died today after more than four years of uninterrupted sleep.

The child was stricken August 14, 1939, with an unknown form of encephalitis, which physicians said destroyed her brain cells. Despite the diseased slumber, nurses at a hospital for incurables kept flowers in Doreen's room, propped a toy panda bear by her side and arranged ribbons in her flaxen hair. Sometimes, they said, the child "looked as though she wanted to speak, but couldn't."

Second Sinatra Child Is a Boy

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—It's a boy this time for Frankie Sinatra, crooning idol, and he'll probably be named Frank, jr.

The 8-pound 13-ounce baby was born at 5:30 p. m. today in Jersey City. The mother, Nancy, is "doing very well."

Sinatra is in Hollywood.

The boy is the second junior member of what Sinatra has said he hopes will be a six-kid family. Nancy, his daughter, is 3½.

J. E. McWilliams Surrenders on Conspiracy Charge

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Joseph E. McWilliams, described by the Government as the organizer of the Christian Mobilizers and publisher of the Christian Mobilizer, surrendered today on a Washington, D. C., warrant charging him with conspiracy to aid in the establishment of a National Socialist form of government in the United States.

McWilliams pleaded innocent befor United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and waived examination. He was ordered removed and was released on $2000 bond.

His attorney, Maximilian St. George, said in waiving examination, "We will do our fighting in Washington."

Republicans To Weigh New Senate Setup

By the Associated Press

A change in the Republican organization in the Senate will be discussed at a minority conference Thursday.

Since last November, when Senator McNary of Oregon was stricken with an illness which later necessitated a brain operation, the Republican Senators have been without an active titular leader.

When McNary left his seat, he asked Senator White of Maine, the elected secretary of the Republican conference, to take over for a while. White decided yesterday to summon the conference to discuss matters of general interest. It is a foregone conclusion that the leadership question is of paramount importance.

While it is considered unlikely that any decision will be made to strip McNary permanently of his authority, several stop-gap expedients are under consideration. One would involve creation of the offices of assistant leader and of a minority whip.

Senators Vandenberg of Michigan, Taft of Ohio and Bridges of New Hampshire are being talked of as stand-ins for the absent McNary.

The whip position may go to one of the nine "freshmen" Republican members. Senator Wherry of Nebraska has been mentioned in this connection.

Another plan calls for selection of a conference chairman, who would consult with the leader or acting leader on questions of policy. Some Senators feel it would be wise to set up a nine-member policy committee to pass on party matters.

Atlantic Losses To U-Boats Cut 60% in 1943

By Ben W. Gilbert

The war against the U-boat during 1943 resulted in a slash of merchant ship sinkings to two-fifths of the 1942 rate, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill announced yesterday.

The joint announcement—issued by the Office of War Information under authority of Roosevelt and Churchill—disclosed that 47 per cent of the total United Nations merchant ship losses for 1943 occurred in the first quarter of the year, with 27 per cent lost during the second quarter and only 26 per cent during the last six months of the year.

The two-paragraph communique which was issued simultaneously in Washington and London covered only the war against German U-boats in the Atlantic. The Navy makes separate announcements on the progress of the war against Japanese submarines from time to time.

December Losses "Low"

Atlantic losses in December were "again low" despite an extension of the U-boat operating areas, the report said. However, fewer U-boats were destroyed, in part the result of "increased caution by the enemy."

Previous reports disclosed that more than 150 submarines were sunk during the six-month period from April 1 to September 30, with the number of merchant ships lost during the period somewhat smaller than the number of U-boats sunk.

The Associated Press tabulation of announced allied and neutral ship losses in the Western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor revealed that an even 700 have been lost through the end of 1943. Announced Western Atlantic losses during 1943, the AP said, totaled 95, compared to 582 reported sunk in 1942. These figures appear to indicate a shift of U-boat operations away from the Western Atlantic.

"The following joint Anglo-American statement on submarine and antisubmarine operations is issued under the authority of the President and the Prime Minister:

"1. Total merchant shipping tonnage lost by U-boat action in December was again low despite an extension of operating areas. Fewer U-boats were destroyed during the month by our air and sea forces owing to several factors, including increased caution by the enemy. Our supply routes were, however, well secured against U-boat attack.

"2. In 1943 U-boats sank but 40 per cent of the merchant ship tonnage that they sank in 1942. On the other hand, United Nations merchant ship tonnage constructed in 1943 approximately doubled the tonnage delivered in 1942. Nearly half of our tonnage lost for the year 1943 was during the first three months; 27 per cent was lost during the second quarter of 1943, and only 26 per cent was lost during the last six months."

Reich to Lift Swedish Ship Ban for Ore

Stockholm, Jan. 10 (AP).—Sweden and Germany signed a trade treaty today providing for reduced exchanges of goods in 1944 and the Nazis agreed to lift their blockade on Swedish shipping to North and South America next Saturday.

(In Washington, the Swedish Legation said Germany had backed down completely from her three-month-old suspension of safe conduct travel for Swedish vessels.

(A spokesman said restoration of safe conduct was one of the main conditions of the new agreement, which also further pares exports of iron ore to Germany.)

Sweden agreed to ship seven million tons of iron ore to the Nazis in 1944, almost three million tons less than in 1943. Coal and coke imports from Germany will be cut correspondingly, since the trade is balanced equally.

Six Swedish ships were reported ready to sail for North and South America and six more were leaving foreign ports for Sweden.

A foreign office spokesman declined to provide the figures on anticipated shipments of ball bearings, badly needed by the German war machine.

Rail Unions Delay Action On Pay Offer

The Administration is ready to buy railroad labor peace for a 9-cent-an-hour general wage increase to all railroad workers, but many of the railroad unions are reluctant to settle on that basis.

This was the situation yesterday, as:

1. The special presidential emergency board created to handle the demands of one million nonoperating workers for overtime pay held its first hearing, but adjourned without doing any business at the request of the unions until Thursday at 2 p. m.

2. Leaders of the three "holdout" operating unions—firemen, switchmen and conductors—declined to indicate their stand on a presidential offer to them of a 9-cent-an-hour wage adjustment, plus a week's vacation with pay provided they sign an agreement with the carriers and definitely cancel their strike call which has only been "postponed" for the duration of Government operation of the roads.

The 9-cent figure was established by the Administration when President Roosevelt awarded the trainmen and engineers 5 cents an hour in lieu of overtime pay and expenses away from home terminals, supplementing the 4 cents an hour already received under the Little Steel wage formula.

First to Call Off Strike

The trainmen and engineers were the first of the railroad unions to call off their strike and accept presidential arbitration of their dispute.

The nonoperating unions had accepted presidential arbitration with the proviso that a 10 to 4 cents an hour sliding scale adjustment previously approved be allowed to go into effect independently of any overtime adjustment.

If 5 cents an hour were allowed the nonops in lieu of overtime, this proposal would have netted them a total sliding scale adjustment of 9 to 14 cents an hour.

President Roosevelt refused to arbitrate on that basis, but instead turned the dispute over to the special emergency board, giving them power to consider the sliding scale and overtime adjustments together, permitting the integration of the two raises.

To preserve the 10 cents an hour maximum increase allowed under the sliding scale, the Administration is reported to authorize the establishment of a 56 cents an hour minimum railroad wage to replace the present 46 cents an hour minimum.

Delay Requested

Some railroad union sources contend that the Administration has decided to make a 9 cents an hour increase the maximum for workers receiving more than the present minimum to avoid embarrassing A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and Alvanley Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Whitney and Johnston have been roundly condemned by leaders of the other unions for having accepted presidential arbitration.

Attorney Frank Mulholland was the only representative of the nonoperating unions to appear at the emergency board hearing yesterday. He asked for the delay because of the absence from Washington of the unions' chief counsel, Donald C. Richberg.

Mulholland told the board that "there is a possibility of presenting this to you in an agreed statement on Thursday," but Jacob Aronson, spokesman for the carriers, expressed surprise at the statement.

The new year is under way. What achievements are to be recorded on its pages no one can say.
In looking back on '43 there is great satisfaction in the transportation job that has been done. America's railroads performed brilliantly. Millions of fighting men were moved with clock-like regularity . . . millions of tons of war materials were transported with amazing precision.
But America's railroads live in the present and plan for the future. The achievements of '43, however noteworthy, are history. Laudable, yes, but useful now only insofar as they provide the railroads with the experience necessary for greater and still greater achievement.
And so we have moved into another year, to face with confidence the war job still to be done. It's a big task . . . a tremendous task. But every ROCK ISLAND employe is determined to do his part to see it through. This War for Freedom is our war, too.

Congress Waits on Message For Legislative Program Cue

Representative James W. Wadsworth (Republican) of New York, coauthor of the pending Austin-Wadsworth universal service bill, meanwhile in an interview called for the President to get behind it.

"I think the time is right," Wadsworth told newsmen. "What we need is a people's bill, that treats everybody alike, not a punitive labor measure. If the President will support such a bill, he can give it the impetus it needs to pass."

Legislators Set to Work

While the session convened on a cautious note, legislators needed no presidential prodding to go to work on half a dozen issues, equally controversial:

1. Chairman Worley (Democrat), of Texas called a meeting of the House Elections Committee this morning to consider his compromise Federal War ballot bill. In the Senate, Senators Lodge of Massachusetts and Austin of Vermont (Republicans), proposed still another compromise—limiting Federal voting to members of the armed services and the Merchant Marine who are overseas. The Senate Elections Committee slated a meeting tomorrow on the new Lucas-Greene compromise Federal war ballot bill.

2. Senate leaders arranged to call up the $2,275,600,000 tax bill immediately following the presidential message, but postponed any action on the hotly disputed war contract renegotiation act amendments until Monday. The Senate will act first on amendments "freezing" social security payroll tax for another year, so the House Ways and Means Committee can go to work at once on this Senate addition to the bill.

3. Chairman May (Democrat) of Kentucky called a meeting of the House Military Committee this morning to consider Senate-passed legislation providing $200 to $500 "mustering out pay" for servicemen. May is expected to propose a $300 flat payment and to oppose any effort to add to it at this time an adjusted compensation rider.

4. Representative Crosser (Democrat) of Ohio scheduled a meeting this morning of a House Interstate Commerce Subcommittee in an effort to draft a bill freeing Railway Labor Act machinery from interference from any other law. This broad-gauge proposal would be substituted for the original Truman-Crosser bill approving a flat 8-cent hourly wage increase for nonoperating railroad workers.

Sheaf of Problems

From a 21-day recess, legislators returned to as complex a sheaf of wartime problems, tinged with election year consequences, as has faced a World War II Congress. But no business was transacted on the opening day. The Senate, some 51 members present, recessed in 17 minutes. The House, with a turn-out of 316 members, continued in session until 2:08 p. m., listening mostly to 1-minute speeches.

At 4 p. m. Senator Barkley, accompanied by Vice President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn and House Majority Leader McCormack called at the White House, where President Roosevelt, convalescing from his illness, received them in his study. The legislative conference continued until 6.

Earlier it was disclosed that the President has not sufficiently recovered from the grippe to deliver his opening message personally to a joint session of the two houses. The House and Senate instead will meet separately, and hear the message read by their clerks. From 9 to 9:30 p. m. Mr. Roosevelt will broadcast a briefer version of the same speech from the White House.

While the President has promised to comment on home front conditions, he is expected as well to discuss the state of the war and bring Congress its first direct word from the Cairo and Teheran conferences.

His budget message will follow later this week, but the President today may give Congress a glimpse of the 1945 fiscal year appropriations he will ask for the third year of the war.

Enough Roosevelt, Says O'Daniel; Not So, Johnson

By the Associated Press

Senator O'Daniel (Democrat) of Texas came back to Washington yesterday convinced that the people are fed up with the Roosevelt Administration, and Representative Johnson (Democrat) of Oklahoma returned with the equally firm conviction the people are lining up behind the President.

The appraisals they gave newsmen were based on "back home" talks. Reported Johnson:

"The Republicans have run into the ground their propaganda that this is going to be a big Republican year. They're over their peak; the swing in sentiment now is back toward the Democrats."

O'Daniel, saying "I'm a Democrat but the one-eyed mule they're riding around here is not our Southern donkey," declared that the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt and his Congressional followers is "the only hope of restoring constitutional government in this country."

during the mine strike.

The anthracite picture still remains as gloomy as formerly with supplies here far below the normal demand. There is little hope that this will become brighter, they said.

However, dealers believe that with the use of strict conservation, the emergency shipments may prevent any serious situation here. These shipments will consist of 40 cars of bituminous run of the mine and 10 cars of sized coal, such as nut and stove coal a week.

Interior officials intimated the only reason they are permitting deliveries of as much as 2 tons to a customer is the manpower situation in truckers.

If dealers were equipped to make deliveries in smaller quantities the Interior Department would be glad to have them establish a lower limit, a spokesman said.

One dealer with a quantity of run of the mine coal said that he was now being beseiged by other dealers to sell them coal.

Users of oil as a fuel were in a much better position as a spokesman for the PAW announced that the agency expected to have sufficient oil in the city to meet all rationed demands, provided householders held the temperatures in their homes to the required level.

FIGHTING FREIGHT
along the Santa Fe

Action at Barstow, California

This is only one of the key points along the Santa Fe where the yards are being enlarged to handle more freight loaded for war. At this point the yards are being increased from 18 to 31 tracks; beds for some of them were blasted out of solid rock.

Santa Fe is building for the time when "it's all over" in Europe, so we can do our part in helping our military forces throw a bigger load at the enemy in the Pacific.

Santa Fe yards at many important points in California have been enlarged to handle many more trains, and sidings are being lengthened to handle more cars.

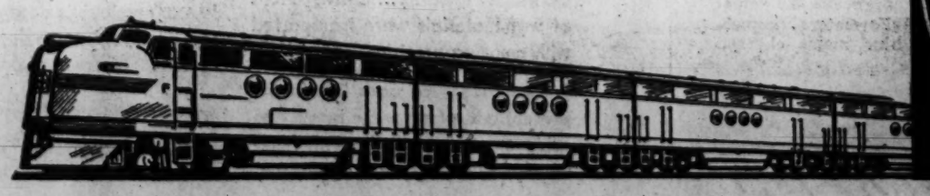

Centralized Traffic Control systems are being installed at congested points to conserve manpower and to speed up vital shipments.

Water towers in the desert have been doubled in capacity to refresh twice as many thirsty locomotives.

Modern cafeterias and dormitories have been built to feed and house Santa Fe's ever-growing army of workmen.

Tax Simplification Intrigues Capitol

Carlson Presents Bill; Doughton and George Have Plans

By Mary Spargo

The title of national hero to 50 million taxpayers—open only to the man who devises an income tax return someone besides a Quiz Kid can figure—was eagerly sought on Capitol Hill yesterday as Congress returned.

Representative Carlson (Republican) of Kansas, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, beat the field in the introduction of legislation.

He threw into the hopper yesterday a bill to create a 15-man Federal commission to establish a "streamlined, long-range integrated Federal tax policy designed to meet present and postwar financing needs."

A similar measure was proposed Saturday by Representative Forand (Democrat) of Rhode Island and Carlson.

No Help in March

The commission would report to Congress next September on its proposals. Neither this bill nor any other contemplated plan will relieve the March headaches of taxpayers who will struggle with the most complicated income tax form in U. S. history.

Carlson declared that he favored revision of the revenue laws so that the withholding tax against individual income would collect total income taxes. This would relieve some 30,000,000 job holding taxpayers from filing any returns.

Chairman George (Democrat) of Georgia of the Senate Finance Committee disclosed yesterday that he had instructed the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue to work on tax simplication. He said that members of an association of individual taxmen and Treasury representatives was working with the Joint Committee.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat) of North Carolina of the House Ways and Means Committee, who engaged an expert to make out his own taxes last year, has called tax simplification the number one job for his committee this session.

Must Clear Bill First

Neither House nor Senate tax committees can work very much on simplification until the pending two billion dollar revenue measure due to be considered in the Senate within a couple of days is out of the way.

George disclosed yesterday that the bill would come up after the President delivers his message today. A proposed amendment freezing Social Security rates at their present levels will be considered first, George said.

Most controversial part of the two billion dollar bill is found in amendments originally proposed by the George committee which would virtually nullify the renegotiation law by which the Government recovers excess money paid out in war contracts.

Observers on Capitol Hill predict, however, that George will propose a compromise on the renegotiation amendments. Representative Vinson (Democrat) from George's own State, chairman of the House Naval Committee, has been a strong advocate of the renegotiation law.

Compromise in Sight

He has failed to deliver a statement on renegotiation which he announced was forthcoming some time ago, leading to the belief that he may have worked out a compromise with the senior Senator from his State.

On the tax commission Carlson proposes would be four members each of the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees, evenly split between Democrats and Republicans; one representative of agriculture, one of labor, one of business, one of individual taxpayers and consumers; one tax lawyer, one tax accountant, and one tax economist.

The Carlson resolution would instruct the commission to raise revenue with the greatest possible incentive to capital invested in productive enterprise, and with the least possible burden on individual taxpayers and business.

Negro Issue

High Court Stands by Union Ruling

By Edward H. Higgs
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Supreme Court yesterday stood pat on a decision which was denounced as denying a group of Negroes the right to choose their own collective bargaining representatives and as leaving them in a state of "involuntary economic servitude."

The tribunal's action applied specifically to 45 Negro station porters in St. Paul, who, because of their race, were barred from membership in a railway brotherhood which at the same time claimed the right to represent them in labor negotiations.

The court refused to reconsider its decision of December 6 sustaining a National Mediation Board ruling that the porters do not form a separate craft or class of employes and, under the Railway Labor Act, do not have the right to select another union to speak for them. The United Transport Service Employes Union, contending it had been chosen by the porters as their bargaining agent, sought reconsideration of the opinion, asserting that it left Negroes in a "hopeless plight" in the interstate railway labor field.

Without filing a written opinion, the Supreme Court on December 6 simply cited its previous ruling that Federal courts should not interfere with Mediation Board action in union jurisdictional disputes.

The Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks based its claim to representation, for the porters on a 1921 collective bargaining contract with the St. Paul Union Depot Company which it said covered the red caps. It was upheld by the Mediation Board, though the porters may not belong to the brotherhood.

War Film Shown In Alexandria By Citizen Group

The North Ridge Citizens Association of Alexandria continued its exhibition of five war films produced by Maj. Frank Capra for the War Department with the presentation of the fourth in the series last night in the George Mason School auditorium, 2601 Cameron Mills rd.

Fifth in the series to be presented at the association's meeting next month is the film of the Soviet-Nazi war, "The Battle of Russia."

Ralph Fulghum, president of the association, conducted last night's business meeting preceding the film showing. The association reported that residents still have time to pay State poll taxes in Virginia in order to vote in the presidential election.

WACS May Go To Continent of Europe, Chief Says

London, Jan. 10 (AP). — Col. Oveta Culp Hobby said today that there is an excellent chance the WACS will go onto the European continent after Allied forces have established their lines and that they will have a part in the rehabilitation.

Here on an inspection trip, the WAC director said the type of training the women are getting makes them valuable in rehabilitation, but she did not know whether the WAC would be retained permanently as a part of the Army.

As for conscription, she commented that "up until the time of my leaving, the War Department had no plan to conscript."

The WAC strength is now 63,000 toward the authorized 200,000, she said.

The first WAC battalion that arrived in this theater last July has now grown to 1170 members, and further large units will come later, she said.

Security 'Bargain' With Labor Advocated by Eric Johnston

By the Associated Press

Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, proposed a "bargain" with labor yesterday—a social security program underwriting the risk of job losses in exchange for abandonment of "restrictive" practices.

Johnston, opening a two-day national conference on social security, declared that it "is here to stay" and asserted:

"I should like to see a well rounded social security program developed and put into action as part of a bargain with labor that if the risks of job losses are adequately underwritten, labor will abandon its restrictive practices."

Johnston listed the practices as "make-work restriction of output, requiring of useless labor, and the like."

Broad Social Security

The chamber invited representatives of business, labor, medicine and insurance to discuss proposed legislation to broaden the Federal social security program. The sessions were closed to the public and only Johnston's address was given out.

Asserting that the American system of competitive capitalism has been characterized by "enormous progress with considerable insecurity" for both business and individuals, Johnston declared that "just as I believe in business insurance, so I believe that social insurance has a place in a dynamic, changeful system."

He added, however, that social insurance can never assure complete protection because the risks are too diverse and because it is not the state's function to become the guardian of its adult citizens.

Amplification Idea

Johnston said this country's social security system should be designed to encourage individual thrift and to promote voluntary group action "such as the magnificent performances of the voluntary group hospitalization plans which already provide hospital insurance for 15 million people."

Business, too should have an "expansive," rather than a "restrictive" attitude, he said.

"I should like to see the adoption by individual businessmen, by groups of businessmen (providing this does not lead to cartelization) and by Government, of policies which will mitigate the swings of the business cycle and underemployment so that businessmen too will develop expansionist, instead of restrictive or high-price policies.

"We must encourage mobility, flexibility, adaptation and retraining in order to absorb more continuously and promptly all of our labor power. . . . with the problems we face in the postwar period we must emphasize work and production more than ever."

Area WMC to Aid Northern Virginia Factory Workers

The War Manpower Commission operating in northern Virginia will assist in the provision of adequate plant and community facilities and services wherever they are lacking, as part of its program to obtain maximum worker efficiency, George D. Delo, area director said yesterday.

When job absences, turnover rates or production lags are found to be due to such plant conditions as inadequate eating facilities, medical services or plant counseling, the War Manpower Commission area director will take direct action through the use of pertinent manpower policies, programs and directives, Delo stated.

He also will take action in cases involving such unsatisfactory community conditions as housing and transportation difficulties, inadequate health and child care services, shopping and rationing problems, and lack of commercial services and recreational facilities, it was pointed out.

Delo supervises the United States Employment Service branch in Alexandria. The area office for the War Manpower Commission is in the National Bank Building in Harrisonburg, Va.

D. C. League's Bond Pledges Top 7 Million

By S. Oliver Goodman

Subscriptions for more than seven million dollars in Government bonds were pledged last night at a War Bond Rally of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League in the Mayflower Hotel.

The combined rally and annual banquet was attended by nearly 500 loan officials, Government leaders and guests. Initial step in the league's war bond drive, the pledged seven million dollars will be a hefty slice of the Capital's 96-million-dollar quota in the Fourth War Loan Drive.

Among the principal speakers were John B. Blandford, jr., National Housing administrator; O. K. La Roque, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, N. C.; John A. Reilly, chairman of the local War Finance Committee, and Morton A. Bodfish, executive vice president of the United States Savings and Loan League.

Chairman at the banquet was Clarence E. Kefauver, president of the local league. He was assisted by Edward C. Baltz, in charge of the league's bond sales. Mr. Baltz introduced the speakers, who hammered home in succession the importance of making the forthcoming drive a success.

Prior to the banquet, a reception was held in the Chinese room while a floor how and other entertainment closed the night's program.

Senate Bill Would End Meat Rationing

By Christine Sadler

Suspension of all meat rationing was urged in a resolution drafted yesterday by Senator Johnson (Republican) of Idaho on grounds a surplus—particularly of pork—is clogging trade channels and has resulted in widespread spoilage.

The move to force a temporary "meat holiday" by congressional action came after a hearing at which War Food Administration and OPA officials assured Senators no over-all surplus of meat exists and denied spoilage rumors.

Johnson's resolution, which he said he would formally introduce today, stipulates meats should remain unrationed until distribution is "normal" and adequate facilities "are available for the storage of new supplies."

Meantime, the Department of Agriculture declared prospects for "better than average crop yields" in 1944 are not as favorable as crop outlooks at the beginning of 1943 and Price Administrator Chester Bowles took Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York to task for the "ignorance and personal bias" in statements made in criticism of OPA by the latter.

Prospects for lesser average acre yields during the year were based on the light rainfall from September through December, declared to be "about 21 per cent below normal."

LaGuardia criticized Bowles for, among other things, failing to establish a price committee to control fish in New York City, for not requiring eggs and oranges to be sold by the pound, for "not going ahead with plans to assure low cost clothing for children," and for not separating meat and fats rationing.

Bowles replied the fish pricing committee suggested by LaGuardia was "designed in such a way it would be entirely under your personal control," and that it would be illegal for a Federal agency to delegate such control to a local government. "Although I do not make the laws," Bowles said, "I do try to live up to them."

Oranges will be placed on a cents-per-pound basis shortly, he said, but eggs will continue to be sold by the dozen and meats and fats will continue to be rationed together to save work for grocers and to prevent the "need for distributing 132 million new ration books."

Bowles pointed out the War Production Board had the responsibility for clothing production, but assured LaGuardia the program for bringing low-cost lines for children back on the market would begin to be evident in retail stores "toward the end of this month."

Prison Farms to Raise More Food, WPB Says

At least 30 million dollars worth of food will be raised on State and Federal prison farms in 1944, the Government division of the War Production Board promised yesterday.

Approximately 50,000 acres will be added to the half million now under cultivation to meet this goal, it was declared.

17,000 Resume Work After Shipyard Strike

Philadelphia, Jan. 10 (AP).—Production was resumed today at the vast Cramp Shipbuilding Co. yard as 17,000 workers returned to their jobs after a four-day strike.

Lieut. Comdr. J. M. L. Joslin, Navy labor relations officer at the yard, had assured the men he would ask the management to settle all grievances as soon as possible.

Little Drinking At Army Camps, Says Rep. Bryson

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—Drinking among the men of the armed forces is at a minimum, Representative Joseph H. Bryson (Democract) South Carolina, author of a prohibition bill on which hearings are scheduled to begin this week before a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, declared at a temperance rally held here Sunday under the auspices of the Citizens' Temperance Foundation of Virginia.

"I have traveled around the camps and have observed the men. There is very litle drinking, but, so long as liquor is available, there will always be a certain number who will coax the boys with good training to take their first drink," Representative Bryson said. "I am not just for wartime prohibition—I am for all-time prohibition—prohibition will come back again and will come back to stay," the Congressman continued.

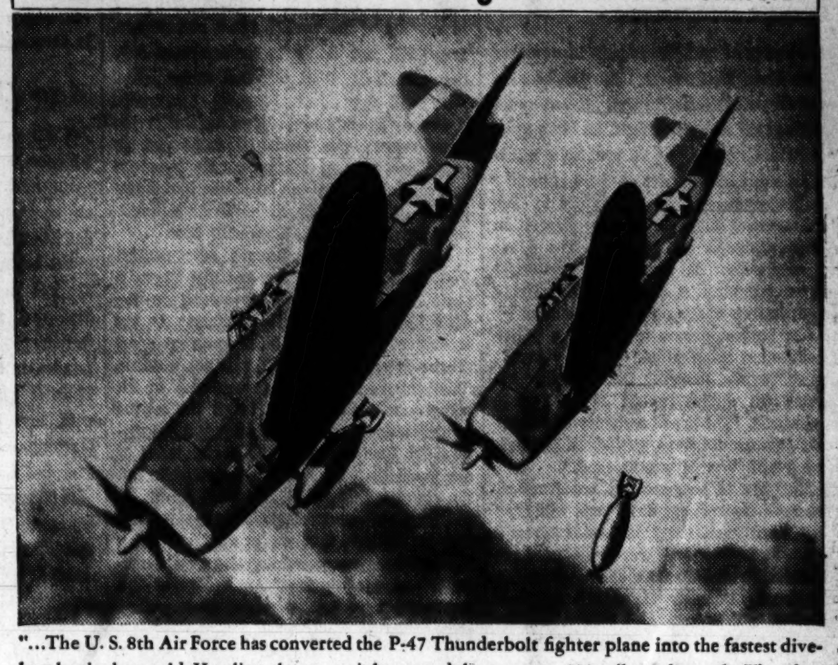

House Building Cafeteria Robbed Of Nickel Candy

A cafeteria in the new House Office Building was ransacked early yesterday by persons who obviously had a penchant for sweets. The loot consisted chiefly of 5-cent candy bars which William A. Brockwell, manager, valued at between $5 and $6.

The thieves entered the cafeteria on the basement floor, not far from a Capitol police squad room by hurling bricks through a window pane and unlatching a window. They helped themselves to two plates of ice cream. A case filled with candy was removed, and an empty cash register opened, but another case containing cigarettes and tobacco was not disturbed.

Police found the stolen case on South Capitol st., with only a few licorice bars in it.

Double Woe for Nazis as P-47 Fighters Become Bombers

"...The U. S. 8th Air Force has converted the P-47 Thunderbolt fighter plane into the fastest dive-bomber in the world. Hurtling almost straight toward the enemy at 500 miles an hour, the Thunderbolts in their dive-bomber debut caught the German defenses flat-footed. The Thunderbolt comes in at extremely high altitude, dives nearly three miles, and releases its bombs from an altitude still higher than that from which medium bombers usually attack..." The THUNDERBOLT is designed and built by REPUBLIC AVIATION Corp., Farmingdale, L.I., N.Y. and Evansville, Ind.

TO LIMIT YOUR LUGGAGE IN WARTIME TRAVEL LIGHT!

BACK OUR BOYS WITH WAR BONDS

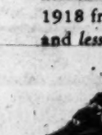

Reporting on '43, Sir!

We locomotives of the American Railroads really "joined the Army" in 1943 when we moved nine-tenths of the Army's total freight and express tonnage. Guns, food, planes . . . why, already in this war, we've moved more than four times as much Army freight as we did in World War I.

At the same time, we kept right on handlin' coal, oil, steel, potatoes . . . a thousand things for war plants and homes. In fact, to keep war industry hummin' and civilians well cared for, we almost doubled the 1918 freight load in '43 . . . and we did the job with fewer men and less equipment than we had in World War I.

Service men and women were certainly our steadiest customers. In 1943 we carried nearly a million troops each month to camps and ports. And at the end of '43, the number of troops moved in this war by special trains and special cars was more than double the total troops handled in similar movements during World War I . . . and that's not counting the millions of men and women who traveled the regular trains on furloughs.

Millions of new civilian riders took to the rails in '43 as gas and tire rationing curtailed auto travel. Approximately two and one-half million people rode America's trains daily. Altogether, the total passenger traffic rose to more than four times the 1939 load.

We locomotives got to be great friends of the sea-going Victory ships, too. I can't tell you how much we delivered to them last year, but I can tell you it was twice the load we carried to ports in 1918. And, Sir, we locomotives of America's Railroads—All United for Victory—will carry on till the job is done . . . and the war is won!

Operating like a giant conveyor belt over 11,000 miles of track, the Baltimore & Ohio has done its part in making possible this "Transportation Triumph of 1943". But today, the 70,000 B&O men and women know they must be ready to handle an even bigger load in '44. Backed by the same fine cooperation of the armed services, governmental officials, shippers and travelers, these workers are confident that this 'bigger load', needed to speed Victory, will be delivered on time.

Open Covenants

The series of radio broadcasts inaugurated by the State Department Saturday evening has great potential usefulness. Billed under the somewhat awe-inspiring title, "The State Department Speaks," these programs represent an effort on the part of those entrusted with the conduct of foreign affairs to give the American public a fuller appreciation of their problems and policies. The debut was auspicious. It shed some additional light on the Moscow meeting, emphasizing the importance of the agreement reached by the four major powers to pursue a policy of continuing cooperation. "If they hadn't done so," as Mr. James C. Dunn put it, "the international future would indeed be a hopeless one. The dread certainty of a third World War would have settled on us even before World War II was finished."

If they are to be genuinely constructive, these State Department broadcasts will have to do more than extol measures already taken. And they will certainly need to embrace a great deal more candor than the professional diplomats commonly manifest in dealing with the general public. Diplomatic negotiations cannot always, of course, be carried out in the white light of publicity; the Wilsonian doctrine of "open covenants openly arrived at" is perhaps applicable only to the final, more formal stages of treaty-making. But diplomacy is no black art. Its main purposes and its trends must be made familiar to the people of a democracy. Only in this way can we fashion a consistent foreign policy sustained by enlightened opinion. In acting to bring about a closer rapport with the American public, the Department of State enhances its own prestige and effectiveness. In the last analysis, it can deal effectively with foreign governments only to the extent that it enjoys popular support and understanding at home.

Hint To Congress

These lines by James Russell Lowell are inscribed on the walls of Union Station:

Let all the ends thou aimest at
Be thy Country's, thy God's and Truth's.
Be noble! and the nobleness that lies
In other men, sleeping but never dead,
Will rise in majesty to meet thine own.

We publish them here in the belief that perhaps their singular appropriateness to the critical decisions now before Congress may have escaped some of our legislators as they hurried through the station on their way back to work.

State Strait Jackets

The controversy over anti-poll-tax and soldier-vote legislation has brought the issue of States' rights conspicuously to the fore of late. As a result attention is being increasingly directed to the need for reforming State constitutions so as to permit the States to meet more of their own political, social and economic problems.

Many State governments are at present seriously handicapped by constitutional limitations upon legislative action. Moreover, the elimination of hampering constitutional provisions through amendment has been made unnecessarily difficult and time-consuming for many of the States. As a result, constitutional provisions that may have been introduced in response to popular sentiment, remain often as obstacles to legislation desired by a majority of the people. Such is probably the case in some of the Southern States that still retain poll-tax laws, removable only by constitutional amendment.

Federal encroachment upon the domain of the States has made tremendous headway in recent years. That trend has been fostered by social and economic changes that have brought the people of all sections closer together and encouraged centralization of governmental powers. However, the broadened scope of Federal activities is in part an outcome of the States' failure to discharge the legislative responsibilities that fall within their jurisdiction. Hesitant, dilatory response to the changing needs of a dynamic society or sometimes no response at all, have caused the American people to turn increasingly to Congress for the legislative relief that they fail to receive from their own State governments.

This trend toward concentration of authority in the hands of Federal officials is bound to gain headway unless the States counter it by positive measures of self-reform. One of the most important objectives of reform should be the removal of constitutional straight jackets that hamper legislative freedom of action. Now is the time for the States to get ready to deal with post-war problems by streamlining cumbrous and outmoded constitutions and junking antiquated laws so as to insure flexibility of their postwar legislative machinery.

Ramirez And The Press

Sooner or later, and usually sooner than later, all despotic governments lay violent hands on the press. In this as in so many other particulars the Ramirez regime is running true to type. Having dissolved all political parties and taken other measures to transform Argentina into an American imitation of Hitler's Reich, it has now proceeded to wipe out whatever remnant of freedom the Argentine press still enjoyed. Nor is this surprising. For where the press is free tyranny cannot long exist.

In this instance the Ramirez junta may have bitten off more than it can chew. The Argentine press has, with some exceptions, of course, been noted for its enterprise, vigor and democratic-mindedness. Such papers as La Prensa of Buenos Aires belong in any list of the world's finest newspapers. They will not easily be transformed into the compliant tools of the dictatorship. They will fight back. Indeed, La Prensa is already fighting back. Two days after the press decree was issued it came out in opposition to that measure. Its language was cautious but it left no doubt that interference with free expression is a step backward for any civilized nation to take.

Another important Buenos Aires paper, Vanguardia, organ of the Socialist Party, a party which is particularly strong in the capital district, has gone further. It has announced that as long as the present press decree is on the books it will not publish. "The intrusion of the government in all active manifestations and in all the organs of civilization," said Vanguardia in a valedictory, "so hampers us in the performance of our journalistic duty that we decided to tell the country that it is impossible for us to continue our work of enlightenment. . . . The regulations that we printed yesterday represent the very contradiction of a democratic and constitutional conception of the press and have no precedent in any free country in the whole world."

This is strong language. It will make a deep impression on the Argentinian people who are fundamentally democratic. It will remind them rather pointedly of the extremely high price they are paying for tolerating a regime which has not only made Argentina a pariah among the nations of the New World but has also laid violent hands on the fundamental liberties of the Argentine people. The task of getting rid of the military usurpers who have seized power in that great South American republic is up to them. Neither the United States nor any other American nation has any intention of interfering in the internal affairs of Argentina. But a responsibility does rest upon us to do nothing to give the slightest aid and comfort to a regime which represents the very opposite of what we and the other United Nations stand for. The diplomatic fiction that the present government of Argentina is friendly to our cause is wearing thin. It is time to discard it altogether.

Points To Home Rule

The logic of Representative Coffee's contention that the heads of the District government should have broader powers to manage the affairs of the city is indisputable. He is only one of many Congressmen who, on assuming control over the District's purse strings on behalf of the House of Representatives, have noted the absurdity of managing the city's local affairs through bills passed by Congress. We hope that Mr. Coffee is so impressed with this gross waste imposed upon both Congress and the District that he will help to correct it.

Something can be accomplished, of course, by enactment of the Hebert bill to enlarge the administrative powers of the Board of Commissioners. But no such minor reform will relieve Congress of its irritating responsibility of acting as a city council for the District. Congress has never been willing to grant extensive powers to the local government because, after all, it is composed of appointed officials. The only way in which Congress can divest itself of its burden as a city council is to grant the Capital a council of its own—a council elected by the people and operating under a congressional charter. We think that Mr. Coffee's argument points to support of some modification of Senator McCarran's home rule bill rather than the more limited and less useful measure to extend the powers of the Commissioners.

Youth Draft

As an alternative to drafting a larger number of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, the order virtually ending job deferments for youths 18 to 22 years old (farm workers and a few other groups excluded) seems the lesser evil. Young men in this age group will, generally speaking, be much more useful to the Army than the older heads of families, apart from the fact that few problems of dependency result from drafting them. Of course, some war plants will be handicapped by the loss of these young workers but the numbers involved are not very large. Moreover, the draft forces industry to make adjustments, no matter what group happens to be called.

Probably the chief reason for regretting this latest order is consideration of its long-time consequences. The drafting into the armed services of most of the young men who in the ordinary course of events would be acquiring the mechanical skills and the professional training to equip them for life-time service to the community is a painful necessity. Because such training and skill are sure to be at a premium in the years of peace immediately ahead, it has been considered desirable to defer a certain number of students taking scientific and professional courses.

The new order will not only deprive the able-bodied youth of the country of the opportunity to acquire skill by work in the factories, but it will also severely cut down the number of college and university students qualifying for occupational deferment. The latter end has been attained by reducing the number of specialized fields of study open to deferred students, and fixing the over-all national quota of occupationally deferred students at a much lower figure. The effect will be to cut down student enrollments and make all the harder the fight for survival of hard-pressed institutions of learning. However, these losses are part of the inevitable costs of war. They are compensated to some extent by the knowledge that a strong Army of young men will bring the war to a speedier conclusion and, it is to be hoped, permit many of these same young men to resume the work or complete the training so abruptly terminated by the draft.

Age Of Flight

The famous controversy as to who should be considered the real inventor of the airplane now appears to have been settled by an agreeable compromise. Not very long ago President Roosevelt announced that the most celebrated airplane in the world—the one in which Orville Wright made the first real flight at Kitty Hawk—is to be transferred from the British Museum in London to the Smithsonian Institution here. Thus it will share honors and admiration with that other prototypical power-driven machine invented by the late Dr. Samuel Pierpont Langley.

In the retrospect of 40 years this seems eminently just. It has recently been asserted that if Orville and Wilbur Wright had only minded their own business and gone on repairing bicycles the history of this twentieth century would have been much different and much happier. This strikes us as wholly fallacious. It seems almost certain that had neither the Wright brothers nor Professor Langley ever lived, somebody else would have applied the same set of principles to this very ancient problem, and would have had just about the same success. Just why certain inventions, tremendous in their consequences, occur at certain historic moments rather than at others is one of those questions, which, as far as we know, has never been satisfactorily answered by historians. Men, as we all know, were working on the problem of human flight as long ago as the time of Roger Bacon, and perhaps as long ago as the heyday of Minoan Crete.

Why were there virtually no important practical results from this study until our own century? Why is it that some peoples and certain historical ages are more preoccupied with techniques than others? Why did the Mayans who, it is said, made such advanced and complicated scientific discoveries as the transit of Venus, never think of things as homely and practical as the plow and the wheel? Was it merely the absence of draught animals that failed to send their thoughts in such directions? Why did the classical Greeks, with all their intelligence and curiosity, know nothing about central heating systems and sanitary plumbing, both of which seem to have been well understood by engineers and architects of ancient Knossos?

Again, why is it that the same discoveries or inventions have had such vastly different consequences for different times and places? The Chinese knew gunpowder and printing from movable types centuries before the Europeans had any inkling of such things. Yet neither of these inventions seems to have produced in ancient China anything like the revolutionary consequences that immediately followed their introduction into Medieval Europe. Why did a people with such an extensive literature as the Chinese never think of employing a phonetic alphabet and why did the much less cultivated Phoenicians, who seem to have used it almost entirely for such unimaginative purposes as bills of lading, ships' manifests and possibly advertisements for purple dies, think of it?

Anyway, there is no justice in blaming Professor Langley or the Wright brothers for the fearfully destructive purposes to which in the past 4½ years their invention has been put. The destructive energy resides not in the machine but in mankind itself, and was much in evidence long before there were either guns or bombs or planes in the world. Still, it does seem a pity that some of the thought which in the past 200 years has been devoted to the study and taming of nature was not devoted to the studying and taming of human nature.

FOREST FIRE

The hills are burning;
The air above them darkens, thick with smoke.
Fire follows zigzag fences up.
The vale below a great green cup
Ringed round with flame.
And then, the charred
And desolate heights that once were fair.
But eyes of faith see spring return,
And the few trees that did not burn
Spreading once more their beauty there.

Russia On Germany

By Paul Winkler

Recorded Evidence

DOES RUSSIA understand fully the extent of the menace to the rest of the world constituted by Germany?

This question has been raised by many observers as a result of official Russian declarations and speeches by Stalin stigmatizing "Hitlerism" as the enemy—which led to the fear that Moscow was perhaps impressed only by the threat of Nazism, and had missed the danger of Prussianism lurking behind it. Their apprehension was fed by the formation of the Free Germany Committee in Russia, including, as it did, some typical representatives of the Prussian military cast, who went on record as opposing the postwar dissolution of the German army.

The Teheran declaration, it is true, registered agreement on plans "for the destruction of the German forces," but this was a three-power declaration, and doubt was still possible as to the interpretation which Russia might give to this particular phrase.

Observers might feel less worried if they had access to the extensive literature on the German problem which has been turned out in Russia. Russian historians emphasize consistently that Hitler's war is only the latest of a series of aggressions which have been carried out as a result of Prussian expansionist tendencies, which have taken oftenest the form of the Drang nach Osten.

Russian Historian

Take, for instance, the recent research of the Russian historian, M. Gudoshnikov, who examined Russian views on Bismarck's attack on France in 1870-71. This war, through which Bismarck achieved the unification of Germany under Prussian domination, and thus made the whole Reich expansionist, as only Prussia had been before, is regarded by Gudoshnikov as forming a whole with the German-provoked wars which have occurred since.

"In the war with France," Gudoshnikov wrote, "the Prussian military caste applied to a considerable extent the same methods which it later developed in the war of 1914-18 and finally in the war against the Soviet Union, where those 'methods,' if they may be called that, were developed to their extremes."

Russian writers in 1870, Gudoshnikov's researches show, analyzed Germany's motives in her aggressions in the same terms which are still being applied to them today.

The Russian newspaper Otechestvenny Zapisky commented in October, 1870: "The filth and stench of German thought have become utterly unbearable. The idea of the greatness of Germany, of its lofty role in the world, and of the insignificance of other nations in comparison to it, has taken complete hold of the Germans, from Bismarck down to the lowliest bootmaker and tailor, hitherto modestly engaged in their crafts and untroubled by any conceptions of any political problems whatever."

Dostoievsky 'n 1871

The novelist Dostoievsky was in Dresden in the summer of 1871, when the German troops returned from France. He commented on "the immoderate boastfulness of the whole German people . . . a boastfulness which even stoops to the pettiest, most childish levels, and invariably passes over into insult." Dostoievsky recounts that the Germans suddenly developed a feeling of superiority toward everyone, including the Russians, and shopkeepers told him, "As soon as we finish with the French, we shall start in on you." The great Russian writer's conclusion was, "Germany is already absolutely sure that she will triumph and that no one can replace her at the head of the world and its renascence." There sounded the first echo of the "New Order!"

Another Russian writer of that epoch, Gleb Uspensky, reported similar impressions in his letters. "I saw them in Berlin in 1871 after France had been crushed," he wrote. "All those Fritzes, Michaels, Karls—those sausage-makers, puffed up with the idea of their martial importance; they strut about conceitedly, chests bulging, noses in the air, ferocious mustachios . . . an air of contempt for the crowd, an expression of bestiality lurking in their eyes . . . and what will happen when they spend the whole five billions (the amount of the French war reparations) on new guns, rifles, sabres? Their only thought is how to strike terror into everyone, arrayed in their bristling armor."

"In conclusion, we may well return to M. Gudoshnikov, from whose abundant research these few characteristic citations were selected. "Many bitter remarks on Germany are to be found in the progressive literature of these times," he writes. "The motives underlying this animosity to the Germans did not have their origin in any fear of a united Germany, but in the fact that the unification of Germany was effected under the leadership of imperialist Prussia, which bode no good for the destinies of Europe."

From which we may judge that it is unnecessary to fear that Russia does not understand thoroughly how deep-rooted is the expansionist urge of Prussianized Germany.

Climax In Russia

By Barnet Nover

Germany Faces A Greater Stalingrad

A DISASTER greater than that which it suffered at Stalingrad appears to be in the offing for the German army on the Eastern Front.

Stalingrad was the high-water mark of the German tide in Russia. Since then the recession has been swift. In the 11 months that have elapsed since the surrender of General von Paulus' Sixth Army, Russian territory to a maximum depth of 800 miles has been evacuated by the once invincible Wehrmacht.

Twice the Germans tried to reverse the current. In July a powerful offensive was launched in the Kursk salient. It was smashed in five days. More recently the Germans attempted to restore their shattered position on the Dnieper by means of a counteroffensive aimed at Kiev. Korosten and Zhitomir were recaptured but this drive, too, ultimately went aground.

FOR THE GERMANS it is no longer a question of holding Russian territory they had previously overrun. The German army on the Eastern Front is today literally fighting for its life.

A large-scale retreat somewhere along that long and irregular line running from Leningrad to the Black Sea is now inevitable. But no matter where that retreat occurs the results for Germany will be disastrous.

If the present line from Leningrad to Nevel is abandoned that will involve the inevitable loss of the Baltic States and Finland. If the retreat occurs in the center—in the region of eastern Poland—that would mean the cutting off of German armies in southwestern Ukraine from their principal supply routes to central Europe. The withdrawal from the region east of the Bug would leave the path to the Balkans wide open for the Red army.

A GERMAN MILITARY spokesman, discussing the military situation on the Eastern Front to foreign newspaper correspondents in Berlin the other day, declared that Germany had no intention of keeping Russian territory for "prestige reasons alone;" that if a total retreat from Russian soil became necessary it would be a "secondary question compared to the question whether the front is broken or remains an entire line."

Such candor is revealing. Reasons of prestige were primarily responsible for the continuation of the drive on Moscow in the winter of 1941 long after it had become clear that Moscow could not be taken. Similar reasons of prestige were responsible for the continuation of the struggle at Stalingrad beyond the safety point.

If the German high command now feels that no reasons of prestige must stand in the way of keeping the German army intact even if it means carrying out a wholesale retreat on the Eastern Front we can assume that the decision is dictated by imperious necessity.

Yet the choice may have been made too late.

THE IMMEDIATE objectives of the army today are two in number. In Poland the objective is the railroad running from Rovno to Minsk. The cutting of that road would cut direct communications between the German forces in the north and those in the south. And Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's First Ukrainian Army is now almost astride that railroad at Sarny, 36 miles inside the Polish border.

But even more important an objective than Sarny is the vital railroad junction point of Zhmerinka, where the great trunk-line route between Odessa and Lwow, the last main route still open to the trapped German garrisons in southwestern Ukraine, is linked with the railroad system in Rumania.

The loss of Zhmerinka would seriously hamper the escape of those German garrisons. But even if they should make good their escape before the Red Army reaches the Odessa-Lwow line—the Russians are now less than 28 miles away—the German abandonment of the Ukraine would be a terrible blow to Germany.

Already the approach of the Russians to the Rumanian border has resulted in a great exodus from Bessarabia and any further advance in that direction is bound to have violent repercussions everywhere in the Balkans and throughout Europe.

IT BEGINS to appear that in their effort to establish a winter line, first on the Dnieper and later at points farther to the west, the Germans made a disastrous gamble.

Russian pressure in the north and the Russian advance in the center and south now threaten to cut the German army into separate and isolated units against each of which the Russians are now in a position to hurl superior forces.

In the meantime the certainty that the next few months will witness the opening of a major front in the west makes it impossible for the Wehrmacht to reinforce its threatened legions in the east.

The net is tightening around the German forces in Russia. They are fighting hard to escape disaster. There is every reason to believe they will continue to fight hard. But their doom is now inevitable.

Absentee Voting

In regard to the soldier-vote bill there has been a great deal of discussion about States' rights by both parties in the controversy. There has been much heat and little light. In a radio address on December 24, 1943, Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois has provided some factual information of great value in this discussion. I quote:

"In the 48 States there are 48 different methods of voting . . . Let me take my own State of Illinois as an example of how the absentee voting law works: Whether an Illinois soldier, sailor or marine is in this country or outside the continental limits of the United States, he first must ask his county clerk to send him a form for making application for a ballot. That is one mail service. The county clerk sends the application to the one making the request. That is the second mail service. The soldier returns the application to the county clerk, making a third mail service. The county clerk then sends a ballot to the applicant, the fourth mail service. The soldier marks the ballot and returns it to the county clerk, the fifth mail service. In addition, under Illinois law the applicant must swear to his qualifications. Can you imagine those serving in the armed forces in Asia, Africa and thousands of other foreign spots going through all these acts in order to vote? What an absurdity."

But suppose the Army should try to get the men in the armed forces to vote within the framework of the present State laws, as provided in the Eastland-McKellar substitute for the Lucas bill. It would take 61 days to fly ballots to and from an overseas point in the European area to Springfield, Ill., and 86 days from the Far East to Springfield. In the eight States requiring the payment of poll taxes there will be from two to four additional mail services. Yet, in Illinois only 30 days are available to soldiers for absentee voting.

In addition to this difficulty, seven States do not allow absentee registration. At the present time 39 States require registration of soldiers and in two others, Kansas and Minnesota, registration is required in certain parts of the State.

Senator Lucas concluded in his address:

"So, my friends, you can see that not a single Illinoisan at war serving outside the continental limits of the United States will have an opportunity to vote under the absentee voting laws of the State of Illinois, and very few serving in this country would."

Let us not be deceived by vague talk. If the American soldier is to vote in 1944 it will have to be done by a Federal ballot and there is no question that the men in the armed forces and their families are beginning to realize this.

War Work

I recently came across the enclosed quotation from Arnold Bennett's Self And Self-Management written during the last war, it is beautifully applicable to many people engaged in war work today.

"The war work . . . is not the right kind of war work. . . . You had expected something else. This war work that presents itself is either beneath your powers or it is beyond your powers; or it is unsuited to your individuality or to your health or to your hands or feet. You can scarcely say what you had expected, but at any rate . . . I will tell you what you had expected. You had expected the ideal work that showed you at your best, picturesque work, interesting work, work free from monotony, work of which you could see the immediate beautiful results, work which taxed you without overtaxing you, really important work without the moral risks attaching to real responsibility. Such was the work you expected, and the chances are 10 to 1 that the work you have actually got is dull, monotonous, apparently futile; any fool could do it, though it is exhausting and inconvenient. Or, on the other hand, it is, while dull and monotonous, too exacting for a well-intentioned, mediocre brain like yours (you don't actually mean that, but you try to be modest)—in short it is not suitable work.

"Axiom: There is not enough suitable work to go round, nor the thousandth part of what would be enough. Unsuitableness is a characteristic of nearly all war work. Lowering your great powers down, or forcing your little powers up, to the level of the work offered—this, too, is just part of war work."

Current Discussion

The current discussion regarding the desire of the President to bury the party name "New Deal" is quite amusing to the more intelligent citizens. It has long been substituted by the name "Raw Deal" in the minds of those citizens who have not been fooled by the Raw Dealers and their adherents. How long will the American people continue to be led around by the nose by a group of selfish persons who care not whether their aims may result in the moral and financial bankruptcy of this Nation, which fully ten of the writer's ancestors helped to establish?

The Once Over

The Trial of Hitler

("There will be no victors or losers in this war, only the survivors and the annihilated."—Hitler.)

Court—Adolf Hitler to the bench!

Hitler—What is the purpose of this proceeding?

Court—You are to be tried as a war criminal.

Court—Why not?

Hitler—I've been annihilated!

* * * *

Court—No nonsense, please.

Hitler—I am not talking nonsense. What gives you the idea you can try any German?

Court—We won the war, didn't we?

Hitler—Certainly not. There was no victor in this war. You merely survived it.

Court—Well, you're not denying you lost it.

Hitler—Of course I am. I'm sorry to have to go over it all again. This war left merely the survivors and the annihilated. I am annihilated. And I hope this clears it up once and for all.

* * * *

Court—I thought a German could never be annihilated.

Hitler—So did I.

* * * *

Court—You don't look annihilated.

Hitler—Take my word for it.

Court—How about your pals? How is Goering?

Hitler—I never saw such vast stretches of annihilation.

Court—And Goebbels?

Hitler—Oh, he was annihilated early. It was a small job.

* * * *

Court—How does it feel to be annihilated?

Hitler—Quite comfortable. You feel nothing more can happen to you. That's a relief!

* * * *

Court—You say all Germans have been annihilated?

Hitler—Completely.

Court—Permanently?

Hitler—I wouldn't go that far. In time a German can overcome anything.

Court—I'll bet Germany is at work on some secret device to overcome annihilation right now.

Hitler—I give you my word we will stay annihilated for a reasonable time.

Court—Are you an expert on annihilation?

Hitler—I thought so, up to my Russian campaign.

* * * *

Court—We shall proceed with this trial, annihilated or not.

Hitler—Very well, but you will not get much satisfaction trying an annihilated man.

Court—Wanna bet?

Settlement

The Hollywood movie lady who has just been told by a Nevada court that her husband, at whom she fired three shots, was never really her husband should apply to get her bullets back.

The German war office has just admitted that the break-through by the Russians in Poland was a break-through. An example will be made of somebody for that.

With the Government appealing for everybody to save waste paper it is charged that three Government agencies have burned 211 tons in an incinerator. But there shouldn't be any harsh criticism. After all, you can't expect the Government to know what the Government wants.

Treasury's Tax Program

In your editorial article for December 22, you attack the Secretary of the Treasury on the ground that he has proposed to tax incomes of less than $5000 at a rate that would be unjustifiably low as compared with the rates proposed for the incomes above that figure. As a matter of fact the differential between these proposed rates is about as moderate as it well could be unless the whole principle of graduation, which is embodied in the tax structure of virtually all civilized states, is now to be abandoned. For example, incomes of $3000 and $10,000 (in the case of married persons with two dependents) according to the Treasury's scheme would be taxed at about 28 per cent and 39 per cent, respectively. Furthermore, the proposed increases in the rates would be proportionately as great for the smaller incomes as for the larger. For example, on incomes of $3000 and $20,000, the taxes would be increased 44 per cent and 47 per cent, respectively, beyond the rates under the present law.

You also condemn the Treasury for refusing to consider a general sales tax, and for proposing to "let off between 9 million and 11 million individuals" by abolishing the victory tax. Now those who would be thus "let off" are low-income married persons who have to pay the victory tax on all income above $624 without any exemption for the dependent members of their families. If his tax should be retained and the sales tax levied at the rate of 10 per cent, which is generally proposed, it would mean additional taxes amounting in some cases to possibly as much as 12 per cent of their incomes for many desperately poor people who may have heavy family responsibilities and are already burdened by other taxes imposed by the several units of Government, together with a 25 per cent "sales tax" resulting from the increase in the cost of living.

But the fantastic cruelty of this proposal is not the only objection to it. For people who know about such matters state that both the sales tax and the victory tax are undesirable from the administrative viewpoint; that, indeed, the former would be virtually unworkable under present conditions.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Lend-Lease: The Accounting

MR. STETTINIUS has done as much and perhaps more than any man in Washington to show how to set up a war agency and how to conduct it without bureaucratic feuds and without obscurity and confusion. An essential element of his success in administering lend-lease has been that he and his small but exceptionally competent staff have always known what they were doing and have not only been ready to tell but have insisted upon telling Congress what they were doing and why they were doing it. Much will be said by historians about the contribution of lend-lease to the defense of the United States and to the Allied victory. A good deal should also be said about how the manner and spirit of the Stettinius administration earned and held the confidence of Congress.

LIPPMANN

We now have beside the official reports and the testimony before the committees, a very readable and engaging book on lend-lease by Mr. Stettinius himself. It is a personal report to the nation made at a time when lend-lease is a going concern, and it must be read by all who wish to discuss the problems of lend-lease which lie ahead of us.

LEND-LEASE WAS authorized by Congress in the winter of 1941. At that time Great Britain stood alone against Germany. The fall of Britain would have given Germany the mastery of the continents of Europe and Africa, and of the whole shoreline, of the sea and air bases, facing North and South America, and of the arsenals and shipyards and aircraft plants of all of Europe. At that same time China stood alone against Japan; the collapse and capitulation of China would have given Japan a vast and well-nigh impregnable base on the mainland of Asia from which to expand her aggression in the Pacific. At that same time the United States had a one-ocean and not very modern navy, almost no airforce, a minute army, no well-defended outposts in Alaska, the Philippines, Guam or in South America, and the United States had for modern warfare virtually no war industry.

These were the conditions under which lend-lease aid to Britain and China was in literal truth an indispensable measure "to promote the defense of the United States." No one will ever be able to say whether without this pledge of support from Congress it would have been possible for Britain and China to hold on. But we can measure the importance of their holding on when we realize that only now—three years after the adoption of lend-lease—do we have a navy, an air force, an army, a merchant marine, and a war industry, adequate to play a deciding part in the war against our enemies. And even now, when we are fully mobilized after three years of prodigious effort, what would be the prospect if our allies had been defeated, and we stood alone?

IF THERE ARE any who still ask themselves why could we not have let the Japanese conquer China and the oil and rubber lands of the South Pacific, and Australia,—and why could we not let the Nazis conquer the British Isles and France and the Atlantic coast of Africa, and get control of the Portuguese and Spanish islands in the Atlantic—if there are any who still ask these questions, let them consider what would be the position of the United States if it stood alone between the Japanese-German alliance in the two oceans. How big a navy and airforce and army would we have needed in order to defend Alaska, Hawaii, the great bulge of Brazil, the approaches to the Panama Canal, and our own coastal shipping?

And for how long a time would we have had to stand guard, fully mobilized and armed to the teeth, in order to make reasonably sure we would not be attacked, as we were at Pearl Harbor, and attacked in both oceans at once? What promises could we have obtained from Hitler and Togo that they would not perpetrate several Pearl Harbors? And if we could have gotten no promises that we dared to rely upon, as indeed we could not have, then we could never have demobilized and we would have had to live as an armed camp and a threatened fortress forever on the alert.

THESE ARE the reasons why, being unarmed and altogether unprepared for war in 1941, we had to invent the device of lend-lease. We could have avoided it only if in the 20 years preceding the war we had maintained our armaments, had fortified our strategic outposts, and had been willing to take combined action with other nations to resist aggression when it first appeared and while it was still not tremendously formidable. Lend-lease was the means by which we saved ourselves from the worst consequences of our mistakes. With it we reinforced the ramparts that were manned by the British, the Chinese, the Russians, the Fighting French, and our other allies and behind those ramparts we have had three years time to gather our forces.

Measured by the results the cost of lend-lease has been a trifle. Between March 11, 1941, when lend-lease became law and November 30, 1943, the last date for which figures are available, the cost of lend-lease has been 13.5 per cent, or less than one-seventh, of our war expenditures. In fact these figures do not convey the full truth. For if we had not had lend-lease, and if we had lost our allies, or even if they had been so weakened that they could not take the offensive, the war would certainly have been longer than it is going to be, and our expenditures, great as they are, would have had to be infinitely greater.

THE DETAILS of the lend-lease operations and the settlements after the war ends have to be examined in this true perspective. If they are, the American people will never consent to having this great enterprise, which has served them so well in their most perilous hour, made the object of carping criticism and of a higgler's bargain.

Lend-lease was devised to defend the Republic. They will wish the settlements to be made by men who seek above all to heal the wounds of war and to restore confidence, good will, and tranquillity to this suffering planet.

Record Number Of Steel Plates Shipped for Craft

In response to a plea for more steel plate for invasion craft, steel mills shipped an all-time high volume of 1,169,196 tons in December, the War Production Board announced yesterday.

The December production brought the 1943 total to 13,382,390 tons, also a record. The 1943 output compared with approximately 11,800,000 tons in 1942.

John T. Whiting, steel division director, said that "while a new monthly record was established, it fell short of the goal because of unexpected interruption to operations, largely due to absenteeism caused by illness and strikes, and slowdowns at certain mills."

Princess Juliana Says World Unity Joins Mankind

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Princess Juliana of the Netherlands said tonight that "the world has become more united" and predicted that such unity will "bring mankind closer together" and will "enable those people who abhor war and its misery to become able and alert guardians of civilization."

The Dutch princess spoke at a dinner of the Netherlands-America Foundation, where Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, acting for the foundation, presented her with a medal of recognition for "meritorious service in the field of Netherland-American friendship."

Role For Congress In 1944

WHEN the Seventy-eighth Congress assembled a year ago it brought with it many new hopes. The congressional rubber stamp had been thrown away. It was obvious that the new House and Senate would have minds of their own. So there was great expectation of a renaissance of government by representatives of the people. In considerable measure that expectation has been disappointed.

PUSEY

Now that the Seventy-eighth Congress is beginning its second half it is a good time to inquire why its record of last year was not more impressive. The chief reason, it seems to me, is that so much of what Congress did was negative in effect. It revolted against the Administration's inflationary rollback subsidies, but it did not devise any other means of holding volatile farm prices in check. On the contrary, it seemed to be eager to kick various prices further up the spiral.

There was ample reason also for the revolt against the vote-luring tax program offered by Secretary Morgenthau. But why should Congress relax after knocking out an ill-conceived Treasury proposal? The need for mopping up surplus income to check inflation and help pay for the war is growing more acute every day. It calls for bold strokes such as a sales tax or 12 to 15 billion dollars in compulsory savings. Any courageous attack on the inflation perils that are beginning to engulf us would be better than the petty revenue measure which is now en route to enactment.

CONGRESS generated an enormous amount of righteous indignation over the Administration's faltering labor policy. But this also came to nothing more than enactment of the Connally-Smith Act over the President's veto. That act has proved ineffective in administration. Congress might better have passed a stiffer remedy for wartime strikes even at the risk of having a veto sustained. At least that would have given the country some positive leadership toward accomplishment of what has to be done.

Even on the question of the soldier vote the Senate took a negative attitude. It ran into a constitutional tangle with the Lucas-Green bill and temporarily abandoned the struggle to make soldier voting a reality. It can certainly take a more constructive line without junking the constitutional qualifications prescribed for voters in Federal elections.

Congress will be under constant temptation in this election year, to kick the Administration around, for the Republicans and anti-New Dealers are usually in control. But this is about the worst time in our history for obstruction merely for the sake of playing politics. Such a course might easily recoil upon Congress more severely than upon the President. And every member knows that Congress has no prestige to spare.

CONGRESS ought to realize, moreover, that it cannot take leadership away from the President in time of war or other emergency without disastrous consequences. What it can do is to supplement that leadership where it is weak. Congress can, if it has the foresight and courage, substitute stern and realistic policies for the Administration's soft and flabby tactics on the home front. It can rebuke the special interest groups that are knocking at its doors as well as those that are knocking at the door of the White House.

The really grave danger is competition between Congress and the President in coddling pressure groups on the home front. Competition of that sort has already gone much too far. In the end it is likely to defeat the political purposes behind it, for the great majority of the American people are primarily interested in getting on with the war.

A negative policy that seems to be chiefly concerned with knocking down what the Administration attempts to do will not identify Congress with this dominant but unorganized win-the-war sentiment. Something more is clearly needed. And that something, it seems to me, is more positive congressional action in those fields where Administration policy is so confused and faltering. The people want to see that Congress is capable of moving forward with the President, or without him when the need arises, as well as of exposing and criticizing executive shortcomings.

Jews Urged to Aid Palestine Movement

Philadelphia, Jan. 10 (AP).—The American Council for Judaism, denouncing British regulations which, it said, would forbid immigration of Jews to Palestine and restrict their acquiring more land after April, called upon American Jews today to "organize in strength behind a non-nationalistic program to deal with the total Jewish problem."

Lessing J. Rosenwald, president of the council, said "a basic solution can come only when there is world wide recognition of the rights of Jews to full equality.

"It can come in Palestine only when the pretentions to Jewish statehood are abandoned and we seek instead freedom of migration opportunity based on incontestable rights and not on special privileges."

The council also asked the United States Government to "use its best offices to prevail upon the British government not to proceed with so prejudicial and unjust a policy."

The Committee on Public Health Relations, New York Academy of Medicine, reports:

"From a nutritional standpoint, when it is fortified with Vitamin A in the required amount, margarine is the equal of butter, containing the same amount of protein, fats, carbohydrates and calories per unit of weight. Moreover, since the minimum vitamin A content of 'enriched' margarine is fixed and the amount of this vitamin in butter may range from 500 to 20,000 units per pound, 'enriched' margarine is a more dependable source of vitamin A than is butter."

Dewey 'Available' Candidate, Republicans in Chicago Hear

mand. This is a matter above and beyond all politics . . ."

"But the Republican Party," he continued, "guarantees more than that. It guarantees that these military leaders shall receive from the home front such support and aid as they never had before. Such support and aid could never be given them, and has not been given them, by a New Deal, ridden by bureaucracy, honeycombed with incompetence, made inefficient by swarms of social termites who see in the war only an opportunity to advance the day when their impractical notions, their alien intentions, shall be made the law of the land."

Halleck, looking ahead to peace, said that the Republican party would restore to Americans their rights and liberties.

"We must again be permitted to run our grocery stores, our meat markets, our farms, our little enterprises and our big enterprises from which we hope to draw a decent living and a reasonable security.

"There must be an end to snooping into our ice boxes. We must have for recreation the hours we spend in filling out forms. We must again live as God meant us to live and not as some bureaucrat in Washington thinks he would like us to live."

Talk of Dewey Candidacy

The talk about Gov. Dewey's "availability," which is extremely irritating to Wendell Willkie's scouts here in Chicago, could be traced to two very charming political salesmen—J. Russel Sprague, New York national committeeman, and Edwin F. Jaeckle, New York State chairman.

They were comanagers of the Dewey-for-President boom in 1940, which was wrecked by Willkie at Philadelphia. They also were comanagers of the Dewey-for-Governor campaign in 1942, which was very successful.

Sprague and Jaeckle do not come right out now and say that Governor Dewey will accept the Republican presidential nomination next June. Their argument runs something like this:

Governor Dewey was sincere when he said he was not a candidate. However, there is a difference between "candidacy" and "availability." Suppose now that the Republican National Convention should turn to Dewey in June.

Here Sprague and Jackle quote a remark that was made the other night at a private dinner by Henry P. Fletcher, former chairman of the Republican National Committee. Said Fletcher:

"Any man holding the position Tom Dewey does in public office cannot refuse the presidential nomination if it is tendered to him."

Sprague and Jaeckle are not disposed to quarrel with Fletcher's analysis. They leave the rest to the imagination and common sense of the 200 or so men and women who are attending the joint meeting of the Republican National Committee and Republican State chairmen and vice chairmen.

These 200 party leaders, for the most part, think that Governor Dewey would be far and away the strongest candidate, the GOP could trot out against President Roosevelt.

Ostensibly the meeting here was for the purpose of choosing a city and a date for the next Republican National Convention. That particular bit of business was disposed of quickly in private gatherings, and will be announced tomorrow. Chicago will be the convention city, and the date probably will be June 25.

Talk All of Candidates

Actually, this gathering has been a convention preview, with most of the talk centered on candidates. The friends of two aspirants for the presidency—Governor John Bricker of Ohio and former Governor (now Lieut. Comdr.) Harold Stassen of Minnesota—have opened campaign headquarters in the Stevens and the Sherman.

Willkie is represented by two publicity men—Lem Jones and Leo Casey, both of whom, curiously enough, once beat the drums for Governor Dewey.

Overshadowing all others in the talk about candidates here is that same Governor Dewey. A good many Republican politicians are now willing to bet real folding money that he will be the party's standard bearer, with somebody like Governor Earl Warren of California as his running mate.

Harrison E. Spangler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, spoke earlier in the day, his speech being devoted largely to the home front. As for foreign policy, he said that the GOP had taken a firm stand on that at Mackinac Island and later in the two Houses of Congress.

A REPORT TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE. . . .

The book that answers such vital questions as:

- What is Lend-Lease?
- What is Reverse Lend-Lease?
- Where does our food go?
- Shall we ever be repaid?
- Who decides what goes where?
- Why ship arms to other countries?
- How are our billions of dollars being spent?

WEAPON FOR VICTORY

By Edward R. Stettinius Jr.
UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE
written while Administrator of Lend-Lease

A WEAPON FOR VICTORY ON EVERY FRONT

Here is a vivid picture of a vast and common war chest into which each nation is putting all the equipment, the war supplies and the technical skill it has at its command.

In Great Britain

Rifles and ammunition, rushed from America, were put into the hands of British soldiers when they stood, virtually unarmed and threatened by invasion, after the evacuation of Dunkirk.

In Russia

American planes, tanks, and other vital materials are being used against the enemy by Russian fighters. One young Russian pilot with 27 Nazi planes to his credit—Focke-Wulfs and Messerschmitt 109's—told Captain Eddie Rickenbacker that the P-39 could out-dive and out-fight either one of them.

In China

Over the most difficult supply lines in the world, American gasoline and spare parts are being sped to the ever-growing air power of the United Nations over China.

In the Southwest Pacific

Australian soldiers are fighting in Lend-Lease tanks in New Guinea. Dutch flyers are operating Lend-Lease Mitchell bombers and helping to blast the way to Tokyo.

In Iran

Crumbling ruins of old stone castles look down on General Sherman tanks riding to Russia on flatcars—and on the train the engineer may be a sergeant who used to work for the New York Central and the fireman an alumnus of the Santa Fe or the B. & O.

In Egypt

Supplies arrived with the help of Lend-Lease in time to lend aid to Montgomery in his heroic defeat of Rommel.

In North Africa

Britain and the United States pooled their ships, planes, and guns as well as their men to drive the Axis from Africa.

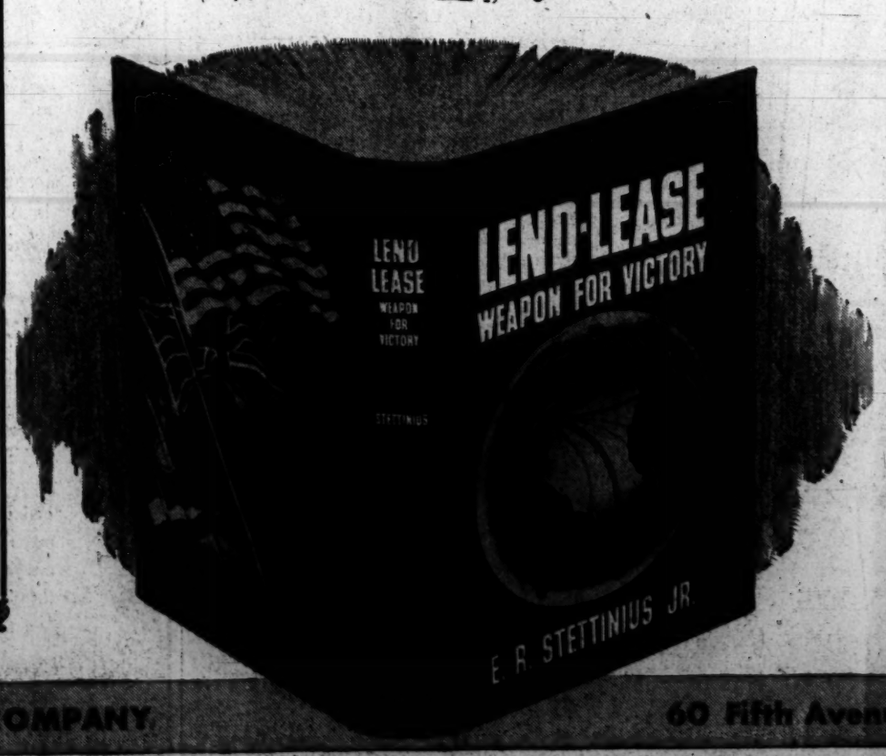

These are but a few of the dramatically exciting instances of Lend-Lease at work. You will read of them and many more in this extraordinary book.

THIS BOOK is a "cavalcade" of the war on all fronts. It is of vital interest to the American people. It explains in terms that are clear, straightforward, and vividly presented, how Lend-Lease stopped the aggressors and makes possible their ultimate defeat. Lend-Lease is truly a weapon for victory, for it is wielded by all the United Nations against our common enemy. This is an exciting book; one that brings its readers close to history, close to some of the most dramatically executed incidents of the war.

The Complete and Authentic Story of Lend-Lease

For the first time, a high Government official has presented in book form the detailed and significant record of this important aspect of our war against the Axis. As you read it, you will feel the drive of this powerful weapon of war in action. You will watch the coordination of the work of every branch of our Government, for Lend-Lease is a gigantic program in which many governmental departments and agencies are working together. You will thrill to the sight of American industry rolling up its sleeves, of American agriculture pitching in to speed the execution of this stupendous task. Our homes, our farms, our factories, our mines, our railroads and other transportation lines, our men and women in uniform are all behind the greatest concentrated effort in history.

Illustrated with many official photographs, maps in full color and numerous pictograms . . . $3.00

A STORY OF ACTION ON EVERY FRONT

You will read this book with breathless interest, for it is the story of heroic acts, quick decisions, and deeds accomplished—it is the story of our country on the road to Victory.

Fifty Destroyers

The U.S.S. Buchanan is probably the most famous of the destroyers which we turned over to the British in exchange for Atlantic bases. Renamed H.M.S. Campbeltown, she performed at St. Nazaire one of the most spectacular and daring feats of the war.

Food for Our Men

Throughout the world our fighting men are being fed by our allies. In Australia and New Zealand, ninety per cent of the food for our soldiers is being supplied locally.

Undefeated Nations

Lend-Lease and aid from Britain help the undefeated nations fight on every front. Witness the complaint of a Nazi prisoner, "I have been fighting the Poles since 1939. I fought them in Poland; I fought them in Norway; I fought them in France. Now in Libya I have been captured by them."

A Plague of Locusts

Our security in the Middle East was so endangered by a scourge of locusts that squadrons of planes and fleets of trucks—Lend-Lease, British, Russian—successfully attacked it, and saved thousands of tons of grain

"Zamechatelno!"

An Associated Press correspondent, riding in an American Lend-Lease jeep through deep mud and across rough fields to the headquarters of a Soviet artillery regiment, asked the Red Army driver how he liked the tough little car. The driver replied with one word, "Zamechatelno!" That is the Russian equivalent of "Swell."

Planes and Barracks

Among the countless supplies and services given to our Army, Navy, and Merchant Marine by the British under Reverse Lend-Lease are airplanes, airfields, barracks, barrage balloons, bicycles, batteries, barbed wire, tents, towels, torpedo tubes—and the use of the Queen Elizabeth.

This is the stuff of which this book is made: strong, sturdy contributions towards a common victory.

Banks Wins Split Decision Over Creelman

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The Touchdown Club will turn 'em away tonight. A thousand members and guests will assemble at the Statler to dine and sit in on the speech-making and presentation of awards voted the headline football players of 1943, Angelo Bertelli, Sammy Baugh, Dick Todd and West Point's Casimir Myslinski. The ticket-sale for the annual dinner was discontinued three weeks ago.

POVICH

We'd say the Touchdown Club has come a long way since its first yearly clambake at the Social Oyster Club, at 12th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne., when a handful of football-minded guys decided it would be fun to foregather and shoot the breeze at a party. The club's problem now is to find a banquet hall that will contain its growing membership.

It's a tremendous show that the Touchdown Club now stages, and a far shout from the days when the few club members were forced to peddle tickets to provide an audience for the speakers. Two thousand applicants for tickets to this year's party were turned down with regrets. Last year, for the first time, the dinner was a sellout. It is now a whopping fixture on the January calendar in Washington.

The Touchdown Club idea spawned from the little circle of men who used to convene on Mondays during the football season to discuss Saturday's games—Dutch Bergman, the coach at Catholic U.; Johnny McGovern, Government attorney who was Minnesota's first All-American; Ralph Pittman, Baylor's great halfback; Tommy Whelan, C. U. star, and Bergman's assistant coaches. McGovern was the club's first president.

Through the auspices of the Touchdown Club, Washington has been able to view the athletes who, until they came to the annual dinners at the Raleigh and the Willard, were merely headline names to District fans—Davy O'Brien, Nile Kinnick, Bill Dudley, Frankie Sinkwich, Bob Dove, Chub Peabody, and Bruce Smith. The Touchdown Club's Walter Camp and Knute Rockne trophies began to take on a significance. Only the great athletes qualified.

Because of the Touchdown Club, Washington was able to know, also, Jimmy Conzelman, famed coach in both college and professional ranks, author, actor, wit, and after dinner speaker, whose appearance underwrites the success of the party he attends. Conzelman, who will be at the dinner again tonight, was a speaker at last year's party. It was on that occasion that he referred to George P. Marshall as "the man who makes sports writing in Washington not only an interesting experience, but a lusty adventure."

Not in memory has any sports organization with such an influence for good as the Touchdown Club appeared on the local scene. The profits of its activities are dedicated to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, to which it has given within the last 18 months nearly $20,000 from various undertakings and promotions.

All down the line, the Touchdown Club fosters clean sports and rewards the lads who have achieved distinction. Last year it added the award to the outstanding football player in the service to its other trophies honoring athletes in college and professional ranks, and weekly throughout the last football season it honored the outstanding high school player of the week with a war bond. The club co-sponsored the base-running tournament of 1943 for youths of the District playgrounds and staged a final show at Griffith Stadium that saw George Case better the world's record for circling the bases.

Never has the Touchdown Club lost its original purpose, to foster sports and endow them, despite the high success of its annual banquets at which the guest list read like a cross-section of high national personages. The club still hews to the original by-laws that one-third of its members be men who have won their letters in college, thus assuring the club's continued view of athletics through the eyes of men who have played the game.

Dutch Bergman followed Johnny McGovern into the presidency of the club, and each succeeding president—Charles Fenwick, Dutch Eberts, Ralph Pittman, Max Farrington, Lieut. Col. Louis Thomas, Admiral Emory Land, and Robert Simmons—has witnessed a growth in membership until now the rolls include more than 750 rather important persons of the community.

Some kind of a special huzzah is due, though, to the current president, Bob Simmons, the finest toastmaster we have ever heard, who made a "must" of last football season's weekly luncheons. He used to play football, himself, at the University of Texas, and in later years when the late Knute Rockne recalled the 1913 Texas-Notre Dame game, he called Bucking Fullback Simmons "The Bronko Nagurski of my day in football.

Majors, Minors to Talk Postwar Ball

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Post-war baseball problems, affecting major and minor leagues alike, will be discussed at a special meeting in New York February 5, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, announced tonight.

The principal subjects confronting the planning committees will be: (1) procedure of the return of the game for players now in the armed services, and (2) reorganization of the minor leagues to make more compact circuits.

Landis invited committees from both the National and American Leagues, and also from the minor leagues, to be present. The major leaguers appointed their committees at their December meetings.

Most important will be consideration of a workable plan whereby players, now in the armed service, or previously engaged in minor leagues that discontinued for the duration, can be funneled back into organized baseball without undue confusion.

Tee Hubert Hopes to Surprise Holman Williams Here Tonight

Tee Hubert, the lanky District middleweight champion who has won nine straight local matches, crosses paths tonight at Turner's Arena with Holman Williams, Chicago colored wariror. They will scrap over the 10-round distance.

With one of the most imposing records of any middleweight actively in the game today, Williams is due to go to the post a favorite at odds ranging from 2-1 to 3-1.

TEE HUBERT

This is a great opportunity for Hubert, however, to win himself some undying prestige. Never having tasted a setback in local competition, Hubert, naturally, is in the fighting groove. He also is being heartened by the fact that when Williams defeated John Garner last October he failed to knock him out. Hubert stopped Garner in four heats.

Hubert recently defeated Mose Brown and previously whipped Garner, Lambertine Williams, Stoney Lewis, speedy Duvall and Leroy Williams.

Williams is fresh from a convincing 10-round victory over Steve Belloise in Philly before a $12,000 house.

In supporting sixes, Mose Thomas, Baltimore, will battle Jimmy Bell, Washington; Harry Diduck, Washington, will face Don Bacala, Baltimore, and Tiny Balestrini, Harrisburg, Pa., will take on Bobby Brown, Washington. A four-rounder will open the show at 8:45.

Dick Scanlan Stars as C. U. Scores, 57-27

Dick Scanlan dropped in 19 points in the second half and 23 for the game as Catholic University drubbed Gallaudet College, 57 to 27, last night in the C. U. gym. The victory was the Cardinals' second in Mason-Dixon Conference competition over the Blue this season.

Gallaudet was handicapped by the absence of its captain, Paul Baldridge, high scorer with a 13-point average, who is in the hospital with an infected leg. Baldridge may be out for the season.

Scanlan, who was content to stay back and set up the Cardinal plays in the first half, scored only 4 points, but in the second half he took his rightful place around the basket and accounted for 8 field goals and 3 fouls in addition to taking defensive and floor game honors.

Cards Grab Early Lead

Roy Holcomb scored the first points for Gallaudet 8½ minutes after the start of the game and C. U. was ahead, 17-2, before Don Padden scored on a set shot for the Blue's second goal of the first half. C. U. led 22-9 at halftime and 37-18 at the halfway mark of the second half.

Coach Johnny Long swept the C. U. bench and most of the last line of reserves were playing if their first college game. Two of them dashed into the game without reporting to either the scorer or referee, and with their inexperience and Gallaudet's wild, fast brand of play the pace was furious, to say the least.

Johnny Mercak, C. U.'s perpetual motion forward, scored 16 points out of many more shots. Fred Rice, jr., was scoreless the first time in two years. Holcomb was high point man for the Blue with 13.—WHITTLESEY.

Lazzeri Refuses To Resign His Post At Wilkes-Barre

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP).—Tony Lazzeri, whose resignation as manager of the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Eastern League club, has been requested, declared today "I won't resign. Let them fire me."

"Why, a year ago they practically begged me to take the job. They represented it as having a future because of the major league tie-up. Future? Pshaw! Now McNally asks me to resign."

Lazzeri probably will visit the Pacific Coast league meeting next Monday at Sacramento.

Coolidge Game With Eastern Best in Series

District high schools will get into full swing on their basketball schedules this week, as every one sees action with prep schools or other high schools on the fringe of the District monopolizing play during the week and clashes in the interhigh series tops on Friday and Saturday nights.

Top fray of the interhigh series this weekend is expected to be the Coolidge-Eastern game at 8:45 p. m. Friday. Both were victors last weekend, Coolidge easily over Anacostia and Eastern by a one-point margin over Wilson.

First game of the Tech gym double-header Friday will be between Tech and Anacostia. The former, by virtue of the Trainers' beautifully played victory over Roosevelt, should be near the top of the interhigh heap when the season ends, and Anacostia, on the basis of the Indians' poor showing against Coolidge, near the bottom.

Wilson, whose fast, rangy and long-throwing Stu Brown looks like the top local player, especially when under pressure, will meet Central in the opener at Tech gym at 7:30 Saturday. The Vikings lost to Roosevelt, but looked fairly good doing it.

Unbeaten Roosevelt faces Western at 8:45 in what promises to be another good game.

Tomorrow—Landon at Georgetown Prep, Devitt at Anacostia, Congress Heights at Charlotte Hall.

Thursday—St. John's vs. Gonzaga, St. Albans at Western, Devitt at Central.

Saturday—Coolidge at Navy Plebes, Bullis at Episcopal, Maryland Park at Charlotte Hall.

Generals Beat Little Hoyas

Washington-Lee High School basketball team led all the way by a narrow margin, but Georgetown Prep was in there pitching throughout and the Generals finally squeaked through to victory by a 26-25 score.

New Yorker's String of 30 Wins Broken

By Walter Haight

Billy Banks, a 3-1 underdog, put a crimp in Victor Creelman's lightweight championship aspirations by taking a split decision from the New York boy in a sizzling eight-rounder at Uline Arena last night. Beaten by Creelman in their previous meeting, Banks used a stinging left to impress Referee Eddie LaFond and Judge Dr. J. E. Trigg. Judge Jimmy Sullivan voted for Creelman. Cheers and applause for the verdict drowned out the light booing that resulted.

The fight was as close as the weights, Banks, 135½, and Creelman 135. After an even first round, Creelman getting the best of the in-fighting, had a slight edge in the second and third. Banks got his lightning left jab working to perfection in the fourth and carried it by a slight margin. In the fifth and sixth, Banks continued to have the best exchange of lefts.

Streak Broken

Creelman, unbeaten in 30 straight fights, came back in the seventh, getting in the best poke of the fight, a right to the jaw, but it only served to even the round for him. In the eighth, the New York boy appeared to have the best of the torrid action and, in my book, appeared to have won the decision by a nose edge.

Neither fighter was near a knockdown and with the exception of Creelman's seventh round right to Banks' chin, neither was in serious danger.

A crowd of 2725 paid $4,440.70 to see the card which netted $3,583.50, making it a pay night for the Liberty A. C., but not the favorite players.

Perry Stops Brown

Sharpshooting Aaron Perry had the semifinal well in hand from the start and hung a second round knockout on one Red Brown of Detroit. Brown was substituting for Hubert Samuels, who was suspended by the boxing commission when he wired that he would be unable to appear. Brown had ambition and that is all. Perry clocked him in the first for a nine count and then supplied the curtains with a three-way right to the jaw in 2:22 of the second.

Oklahoma Eddie White kept his local winning streak intact at the expense of Danny Cox. The latter was wrestled to the canvas three times but White, rugged and determined, did the superior punching and took six rounds to two for his rival in my book. Cox's strong left was used effectively at times but White was the aggressor and deserved the heavyweight duke.

Bee Bee Washington of this city scored a TKO over Eddie Sparks of Annapolis at 2:07 of the second heat in the opener.

New Attendance Mark to Be Set At Touchdown Dinner Tonight

Approximately 1000 persons will set a new attendance mark tonight when the Touchdown Club of Washington sponsors its annual dinner at the Hotel Statler at 8 o'clock.

The festivities, an assured sellout since announcement of the date, are closed and no more plates are available.

Executive Secretary James S. K. Magner last night announced that at least 2000 applications for plates have been rejected, and that a lack of space positively precludes the possibility of accommodating more persons.

Knox to Speak on Radio

Outstanding among tonight's ceremonies will be the key address delivered by Navy Secretary Frank Knox over the Mutual Network at 10:15 o'clock.

Festivities will be halted at 9:30 when President Roosevelt's 30-minute radio talk will be heard over the club's loudspeakers.

A special plaque will be awarded Ossie Bluege, Washington Baseball Club manager, who will be cited as outstanding big league manager of 1944. Bob Simmons, president of the club, will direct ceremonies in which Clark Griffith, president of the Nats, will be unanimously indorsed by Touchdowners for baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N. Y.

Jimmy Conzelman, America's No. 1 toastmaster, at present in the front office of the St. Louis Browns, will be master of ceremonies, alternating with Bob Simmons, who will introduce Secretary Knox.

Service Leaders to Speak

Service leaders who are to speak briefly are: Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, U. S. Army; Lieut. Gen. Alexander Vandegrift, U. S. Marine Corps; Rear Admiral William King, U. S. Navy; Admiral E. J. Land, U. S. Maritime Commission, and Vice Admiral Russell R. Waesche, U. S. Coast Guard.

Football stars of 1943 who will be presented trophies in a special ceremony will be honored as follows: Angelo Bertelli, U. S. Marine Corps, quarterback, Notre Dame, Walter Camp Memorial trophy voted the oustanding college player of the year; Casimir Myslinskin, U. S. Army, center, West Point, Knute Rockne Memorial trophy given the outstanding college lineman, and Dick Todd, U. S. Navy, fullback, Iowa Seahawks, Bob Smith Memorial trophy reserved for the outstanding service player. Sammy Baugh, halfback Washington Redskins, has been awarded the Touchdown Club trophy donated the outstanding professional player which will be received by Redskins Coach Arthur J. "Dutch" Bergman in the absence of Baugh.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—John A. Remon, of Washington, D. C., was reelected president of the American Power Boat Association at the group's annual meeting today.

C. King Brugman, of Los Angeles, was named senior vice president; Douglas C. Fonda, of New York, secretary; Stanley W. Ferguson, of Boston, treasurer, and William J. McManus, of Washington, executive secretary.

Heagy Pilots Md. Tossers; Shipley Hurt

Al Heagy, assistant football coach and head lacross mentor at the University of Maryland, will coach varsity basketball for the remainder of the season, or until Burton Shipley is able to resume his duties, it was announced yesterday.

Shipley, head court coach at Maryland for 21 years, will be out several weeks with two broken legs, suffered in an accident Sunday when he was thrown from his daughter's pony cart against a post at his home near College Park.

Shipley suffered a break at the ankle in one leg and at the knee in the other. He was taken to Universsity Hospital in Baltimore. Heagy worked with the squad yesterday afternoon in preparation for the VMI game Saturday night. The all-civilian team has lost four games to date. Heagy, now in the State chemistry department, played under Shipley and coached freshman basketball for several years.

Terp Ring Coach Names 8-Man Line-up

University of Maryland boxing coach, Fausto Rubini, has named an eight-man line-up for the match with Army Saturday night at College Park in the feature attraction of a court-ring double-header. Only Alex Bobenko, who won 2 matches, lost 1 and tied 1 last year has had previous college experience. The match will be the first for both teams and the first in a home-and-home series.

Maryland's line-up: 120 pounds—Ed Gauvin, 127—Will Coakley, 135—Horatio Hanbury, 145—Vic Berman, 155—Alex Bobenko, 165—Sid Sterman, 175—Mike Zetts, heavyweight—Dan Marowitz. The boys in the four heavier classes were all members of the football team.

The basketball game will start at 8 o'clock Saturday and the boxing at 9:30.

Veteran Pro Breaks Tie, Carding 272

Los Angeles, Jan. 10 (AP).—Tall, broad-shouldered Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia today captured America's richest golf championship, the $12,500 Los Angeles Open, with a 72-hole score of 278.

Finishing the last 18-hole round on the Wilshire Country Club course with a blistering 66, MacSpaden established a new low 72-hole score for the championship on this course. The best previously was the 281 in 1933 by Craig Wood, national champion for the duration.

Bulla Finishes Second

Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, the Los Angeles Open winner in 1941, finished in second place with a 281. He took a par 71 for his final round after starting it in a 54-hole first place tie with Leonard Dodson of La Jolla, Calif. Dodson wound up in a tie at 283 with Craig Wood and Byron Nelson of Toledo.

Dodson played in a threesome with McSpaden and Olin Dutra of Los Angeles and the pace was too stiff for him. The veteran Willie Hunter of Santa Monica, Calif., finished with 284, followed by Dutra with 285.

McSpadden's 5-under-par performance today was one of the two best rounds of the championship. Sammy Byrd of Detroit also bagged a 66 in the first round.

Jug Bags Six Birdies

Jug had six birdies and one bogey in fashioning his sensational card. His magically efficient putter never failed him, and only an out-of-bounds shot on the 419-yard 12th hole where he required a 5, marred his shotmaking.

Cool under pressure all day, he sank a 20-foot putt on the seventh for a birdie 2, but for the most part his approaches were laid right up to the cup.

The new champion has won four of his last six tournaments, among them the All-American at Chicago. He picked up $4375 in war bonds as first prize money today.

His card for the final round:

McSpaden out—

Jimmy Hines of New York finished in a tie with Dutra at 285, one stroke ahead of Marvin Stahl, Los Angeles, and George Fazio, Pine Valley, N. J.

Byrd tied at 287 with the former tennis star, Ellesworth Vines of Pasadena, Calif. Art Bell, San Francisco, had 288, and Harry Cooper, Minneapolis, tied at 289 with Willie Goggin, New York.

Order of finish of the leaders and the division of the $12,500 purse:

Jug McSpadden, Philadelphia, 278, $4375; Johnny Bulla, Chicago, 281; $2125; Leonard Dodson, La Jolla, 283, $1126; Craig Wood, New York, 283, $1125; Byron Nelson, Toledo, 283, $1125; Willie Hunter, Santa Monica, 284, $625; Olin Dutra, Los Angeles, 285, $387; Jimmy Hines, New York, 285, $387; Marvin Stahl, Los Angeles, 286, $237.50; George Fazio, Pine Valley, N. Viereck's Sentence Is Upheld By United States Appeals Court

The United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that George Sylvester Viereck was given a fair trial and upheld his conviction and sentence to 1-to-5 years' imprisonment as an improperly registered agent of the German Reich.

The appeals tribunal in affirming the trial, before Justice Bolitha J. Laws, of the German-born propagandist whose activities dated back to World War I, held that the Secretary of State has the power to demand that foreign agents give full and detailed accounts of their activities in this country.

Viereck's first conviction was voided by the United States Supreme Court on the ground that the indictment was improperly drawn and that prejudicial comments had been made before the jury.

Viereck registered as a foreign agent but gave virtually no details of his work which included writing inflammatory speeches against entry in the war and in praise of the Nazis. He was admittedly close to Congressional sources in his work.

The court's opinion was written by Circuit Judge Armistead Dobie, sitting on the tribunal by designation. Justices Justin Miller and Thurman Arnold concurred.

White House Aides Of Mrs. Hoover Attend Her Rties

More than 1000 mourners, including former White House associates and Girl Scout followers, attended funeral services yesterday for Mrs. Lou Henry Hoover, wife of former President Herbert C. Hoover, in St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church, New York.

The former President and his two sons, Herbert, jr., and Allan, stood before the flower-draped casket in the church chancel as the service was begun by the Rev. Dr. George Paull T. Sargent, rector. Mr. Hoover sat with his head bowed during the service.

The Rev. Dr. Rufus Jones, chairman of the American Friends Service Committee, read selections from Deuteronomy, the 90th Psalm, the 14th chapter of the Gospel of St. John, the 13th chapter of the First Corinthians, Whittier's "Eternal Goodness" and Alfred Lord Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

Among the mourners were a contingent of 200 Girl Scouts of America, whom Mrs. Hoover had served as national president for many years. Also attending were Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, former Ambassador to England Joseph P. Kennedy, John D. Rockefeller, jr., Lawrence Ritchie, secretary to Hoover when he was President, and Hugh Gibson, former Ambassador to Belgium.

The body is being taken to Palo Alto, Calif., for private burial.

National Gallery's Widener Pictures Worth 7 Million

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 10 (AP).—The Widener art collection now in the National Gallery of Art in Washington was appraised at $7,141,000 today by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, Philadelphia art dealer.

The collection of more than 300 paintings, sculptures and tapestries, was founded by the late Peter A. B. Widener, expanded by his son, the late Joseph A. Widener, multimillionaire sportsman, and was presented to the National Gallery three years ago.

Rosenbach was commissioned by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to make an appraisal for transfer tax purposes. His report evaluated Raphael's "The Small Cowper Madonna" at $400,000 and Rembrandt's "The Mill" at $350,000.

Truck Driver Pay On 'Peddle Runs' Fixed at 65 Cents

The War Labor Board yesterday established a 65 cents an hour rate for truck drivers on so-called "peddle runs" employed by members of the Southeastern Area Employers Negotiating Committee, a group of over-the-road truckers.

Peddle runs are over 25 miles but less than 75 miles from the loading point, the board said. Previously, no rate was established for this type of run.

A request by the union, the AFL Teamsters, representing 7500 workers, for double pay when handling explosives was denied. Delay in handling the wage dispute involving many technical issues contributed to two work stoppages last year. One of the issues is still unsettled, pending further investigation.

The truckers operate in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Mississippi.

Mobile Traffic Control Tower Put Through Paces at Airport

A mobile air traffic control tower for use on new fields before a permanent tower can be erected was exhibited yesterday at National Airport.

The new apparatus, developed by the Air Traffic Control Division of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, in collaboration with the Enginering and Signals Divisions of the Army, was tuned in with the permanent tower and went through its paces, demonstrating its efficiency, as well as mobility. Army, Navy and airlines officials attended the exhibition.

The traveling control tower can move as fast as a truck, and is expected to be valuable in war, as the United Nations build new fields at the fronts.

Permanent towers usually range from 40 to 80 feet high, to give the operators a wide field of vision, officials said. The mobile tower uses the same type of flags and lights and radio equipment.

Incoming planes report their positions by radio and are directed where to land.

Mexico Shaken By Strong Quake

Mexico City, Jan. 10 (AP).—A strong earthquake, with an epicenter in the Pacific about 90 miles from the port of Acapulco, shook this capital shortly after 3 p. m. today, wrecking one factory, but causing no injuries.

Pacific Island Trusteeship Plan Proposed by Nash

(New York Tribune, Inc.)

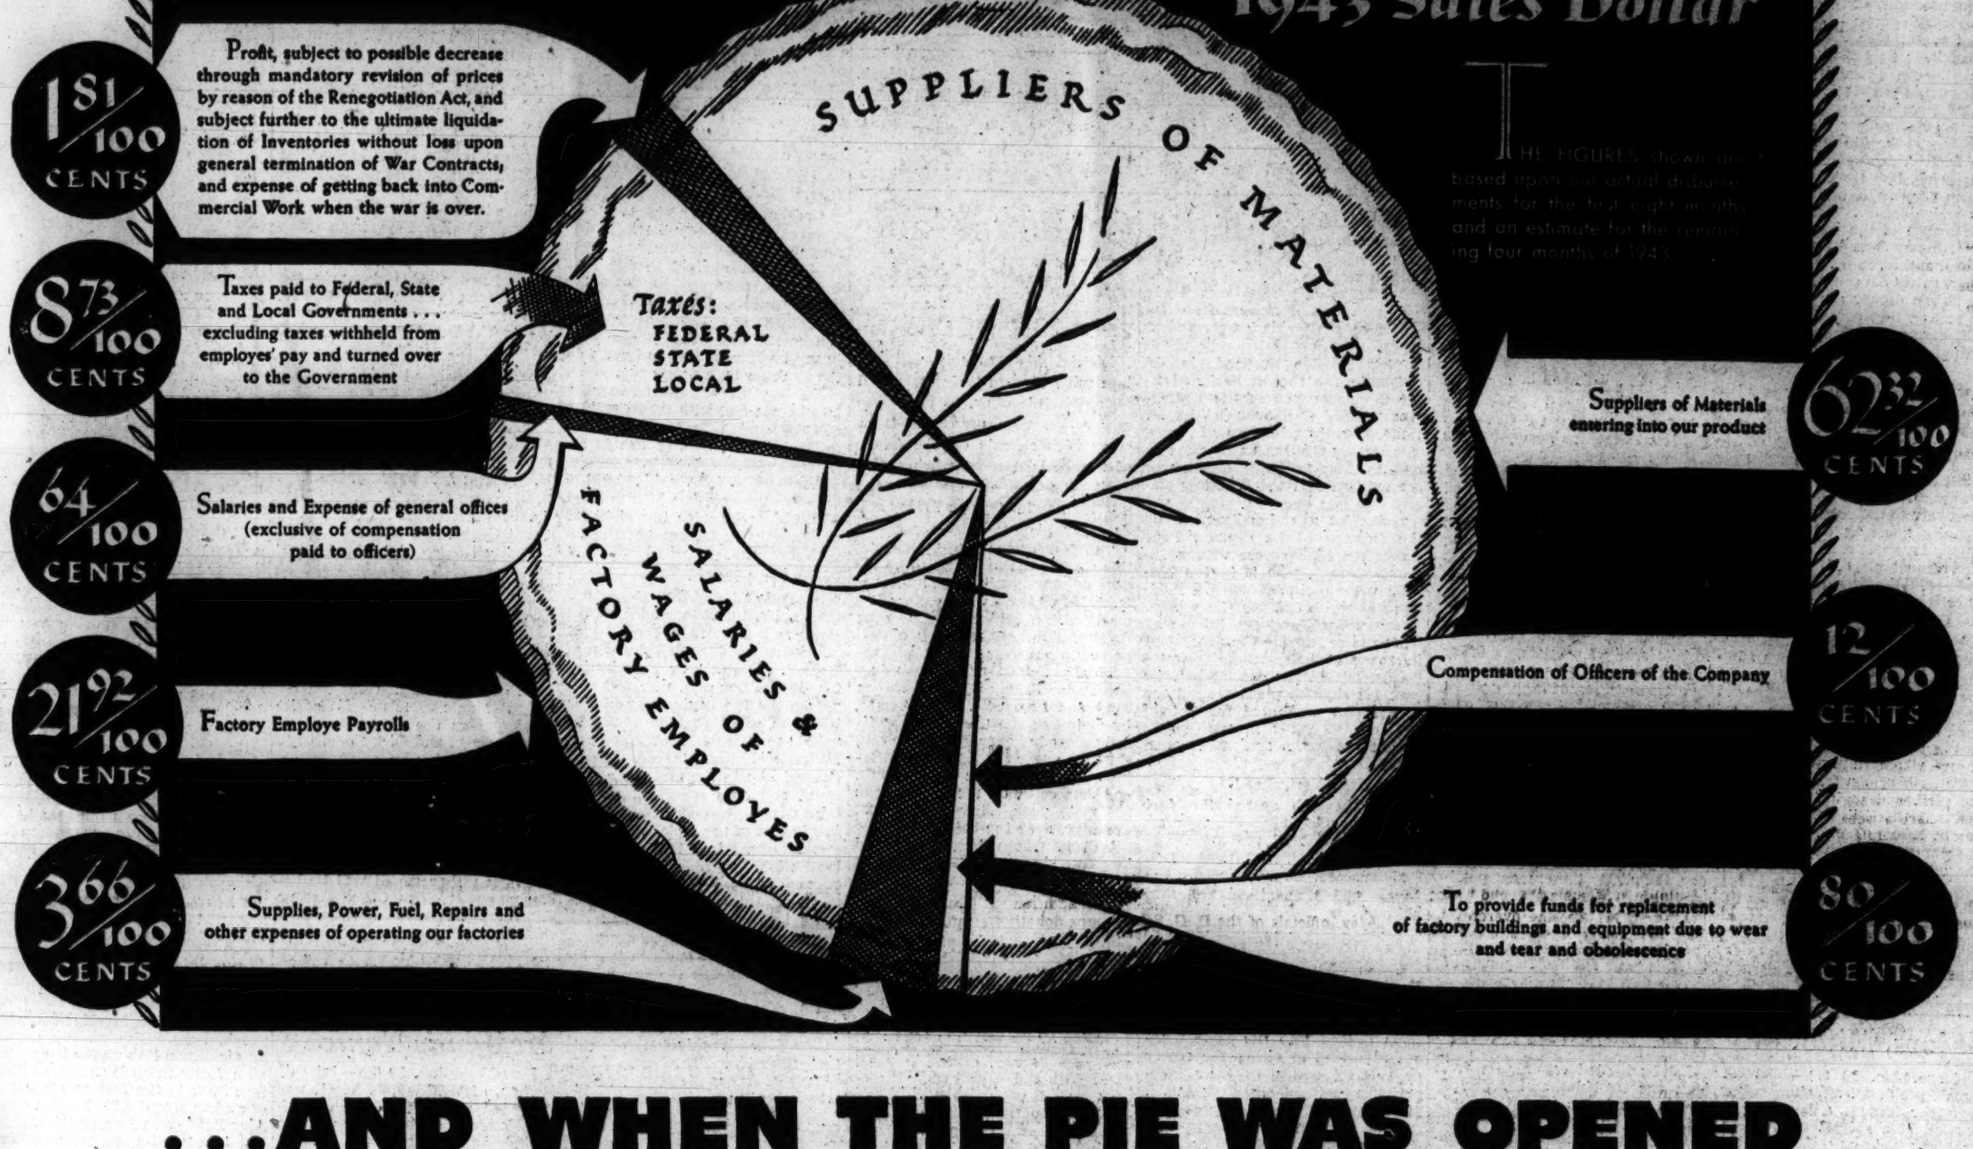

Walter Nash, New Zealand's Minister at Washington, returned yesterday from 10 months in the South Pacific, and proposed a postwar international trusteeship for all islands in the Pacific east of a line starting at the Solomons. He predicted a "realignment" of lend-lease operations to restore cash payments for some items and return others to commercial trade channels.

Nash, who visited such battlegrounds as Tarawa, Makin and Guadalcanal islands, reported no sentiment in New Zealand that the United States and Great Britain have been "neglecting" the war in the Southwest Pacific.

At a press conference he propounded what he called his "personal idea" of an international advisory or consultative council for Pacific island groups which would be composed of nations having interests in the area, such as the United States, Great Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand.

Distribution of PULLMAN-STANDARD'S 1943 Sales Dollar

. . . AND WHEN THE PIE WAS OPENED
HERE'S HOW IT WAS SHARED

Out of every dollar received by Pullman-Standard for a vast array of war matériel 98 and 19/100 cents was paid out in carrying on the operations of the business

Here's the story of your "Armament Dollar". What happened to it? How was it divided? What did it buy?

It bought swift ships that hound submarines to destruction. It bought husky tanks; parts for anti-aircraft gun mounts; trench mortars; howitzer carriages; mounts for guns; bombs and shells—shells by the million.

It bought wing and tail assemblies for huge transport planes.

It bought troop sleepers; freight cars for the Army and Navy; hospital cars and freight cars for the Railroads to transport war matériel; Transit equipment for the transportation of war workers.

All these implements of war were made by Pullman-Standard and paid for with your "Armament Dollar".

62 and 32/100 cents—more than half—in sums ranging from less than $100 to over $1,000,000—was passed along to many thousands of material suppliers, large and small, working partners in an epic of industrial teamwork. Here, truly, is a spread-the-work program that is helping to bring Victory.

21 and 92/100 cents went to Pullman-Standard's factory employes—that resourceful, persistent, loyal army!—for salaries and wages. These people have made usable suggestions by the thousands—found short cuts in manufacturing and better ways of speeding operations that have saved many thousands of man-hours. Pullman-Standard's long experience has saved many thousands of tons of steel, turned out finished products months ahead of schedule, saved incalculable dollars for America's taxpayers.

Only 12/100 of a cent was paid as compensation to officers of the company, while 84/100 of a cent went for other salaries and expense of general offices.

3 and 66/100 cents was spent for supplies, power, fuel, repairs and other expenses of operating our six factories. 80/100 of a cent must be set aside to provide funds for replacement of factory buildings and equipment due to wear and tear and obsolescence.

Look now at 8 and 73/100 cents—nearly 83 per cent of earnings—for taxes—Federal, State and Local; a heavy item to be sure, but this is Pullman-Standard's contribution to the cause of a free people defending their Freedom.

And what did Pullman-Standard retain from each dollar?—1 and 1/100 cents. And that is subject to possible deductions as shown in the pie chart above. What is left is available to pay dividends to Pullman Inc.'s 34,773 men and women stockholders, the investment of whose savings have maintained the organization, facilities and working capital that have made this company a vital armory of Freedom.

Cars lighter in weight to reduce operating costs yet satisfying the most exacting safety standards. For in all Pullman-Standard-built cars safety must be the first consideration. There never has been, there never will be any compromise—for the sake of novelty. On that you may depend.

Help Shortage Hits ICC; Military Draws Off 300

Interstate Commerce Commission has its own manpower shortage. It has more than 600 vacancies it has been unable to fill. ICC has yet to ask for the deferment of a single man and more than 300 already have been taken into the military ... Jack Foulis, an appointee of Milo Perkins, will be the next bigwig to leave Foreign Economic Administration. He's No. 2 man in the office of exports ... FEDERAL HERO: Morris Burk, former press relations assistant at the Civil Service Commission, who was killed in action in Italy. He had fought during the Sicilian campaign and he had been at the front for several months in Italy. His death is a real loss to the commission.

A famous New York bank with itself in court very soon on a serious Federal charge ... Governor Cooper of Tennessee, is here to arrange a conference of Southern Governors and Congressmen to put the pressure on Federal agencies to equalize freight rates in Southern States. Unofficially, the conference will discuss '44 politics ... The Byrd committee this week will blast Federal agencies for sending out loads of postage-free mail ... Reagon P. Connally has resigned as director of OPA's Consumer Goods Price Division ... Col. David N. Hausman has been appointed chief of War Department's new Readjustment Division which has been set up in the Army Service Forces. He'll handle reconversion problems for the department. How his division will work with War Production Board isn't clear. Col. Hausman formerly was chief of the Philadephia Ordnance District.

Postmaster General Frank Walker wants very much to resign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and he wants to be relieved when the committee meets here a week from Saturday. He has been told that he can quit, it's reported, if he can get a good man who has the united support of Democratic leaders. Walker, it's understood, has proposed to the President that Robert E. Hannegan, Commissioner of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and schooled in Democratic politics in Missouri, be made chairman. The President prefers to keep Walker in the job but, it's reported he would agree to take Hannegan.

But Democratic committeemen and women are balking. They don't know Hannegan very well and a bloc within the committee wants to put up their own man for the job. A mid-West bloc wants to support Eugene Casey, executive assistant to the President and Maryland farmer for the chairmanship, if he'll run. Several others also are mentioned. If a cat-and-dog fight develops over the chairmanship it's believed that the President will persuade Walker to remain, but meantime, Walker is trying to get the party bigwigs to support Hannegan. Hannegan is able and energetic and he has made a fine start at Internal Revenue. Before he was brought here by Secretary Morgenthau for the top job he was Collector of Internal Revenue for Missouri.

Edgar F. Puryear, the able assistant to War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt, will be appointed chairman of the central deferment committee which passes on deferments for Federal workers. He'll succeed Robert Barnett who will resume his old job as personnel director for War Manpower on February 1. Serving with Puryear will be Eugene Bewkes and C. L. Shartle, both of War Manpower. They'll replace Kenneth Vipond of Civil Service, and Col. Edward Fitzpatrick of Selective Service. However, members of the old committee will continue to advise on deferment policy.

General Accounting Office has decided to stick to its "key" list base in seeking deferments, but it's expected to seek additional "key" positions which would make draft-eligible men in them deferable. Deferments won't be asked because a man happens to be a pre-Pearl Harbor father. It'll depend on the work he's doing. GAO, incidentally, has 10,656 employes on its rolls, an increase of more than 4000 in 20 months, and it hasn't yet reached its peak. It now has five field office and about 150 mobile audit units in the field that go from one place to another to check on war contracts.

On recent weeks there has been a decided decrease in turnover among employes. Fewer people are quitting, and only a small number are seeking transfers. The stabilized conditions are attributed to several factors: (1) GAO offers bright post-war prospects to employes. It'll continue to grow even after the war is ended and employes are becoming very conscious of the fact that they may lose their jobs when the war ends, (2) a training program has been installed to teach employes office methods and routine. It has given the employes a better understanding of what the work is all about and what's expected of them.

2 Arraigned In Kidnaping Of Couple

One of the youths accused of having participated in the abduction of a woman attache of the United States Embassy in Havana, Cuba, and a cab driver for the Air Transport, Inc., here Thursday night was held under a bond of $20,000 in New York yesterday while the other was ordered held without bail at a magistrate's hearing on charges of carrying concealed weapons, assault and robbery yesterday.

Under bail was John R. King, 23, who told the magistrate he had never been arrested before. His companion in the alleged abduction, David Keith, 24, who said he had been arrested for grand larceny and vagrancy, was held without bail. Both are from Norfolk, Va.

According to the New York police the pair admitted kidnaping Miss Mercedes Platt, 25, employe of the Naval Attache's office in Havana, and Herman Corman, 22, Airport Transport, Inc., chauffeur in Washington and taking them to New York.

In addition to the abduction of the couple from Washington the pair are accused of having kidnaped a Brooklyn cab driver, forcing him at the point of a gun, to drive them on a round trip from New York to New Jersey, and then of having robbed him.

In addition to the charges in New York and Washington it was reported from Norfolk that the Norfolk County Commonwealth's atotrney would ask for detainers on the pair n a robbery charge as the result of accusations made by on the pair on a robbery charge as a Negro cab driver who charged them with robbing him of $64 in a

D. C. Asks FWA Aid for School And Gallinger

Formal requests for FWA funds in excess of $600,000 to construct a new kitchen at Gallinger Hospital and a new Patterson Elementary School near South Capitol st. and Darrington st. sw., were filed by the District government yesterday.

The District is asking a grant of $229,655 to build the kitchen and $430,000—$207,500 as a grant and $222,500 as a loan to construct the school. Both projects have had informal consideration by the FWA, and word to go ahead is expected within a month. It would take eight weeks to start construction after FWA approval, and 180 days for completion of both jobs, officials say.

The school was requested after a temporary Patterson School building at Nichols ave. and Chesapeake st. sw., became overcrowded and complaints were made that the present building had inadequate play space and was dangerously situated in line with a plane runway at Bolling Field.

The new building plans call for a two and three story structure of 24 rooms, containing an auditorium, library, two practical arts laboratories, play and lunch rooms, kindergarten and nursery rooms. Nursery space would be used by the day care center program. A playground 133 feet by 200 feet, is plotted.

The kitchen would be built adjacent to Gallinger's main building and connecting with it. It would be constructed to serve 2000 —there are now 1600-odd beds at Gallinger and a staff of several hundred. The present kitchen was constructed to accommodate 500. Conditions in the kitchen were severely criticized during congressional committee hearings last fall.

Building of the new structure would do away with the need to keep kitchen work in process 20 hours daily in overcrowded conditions and would permit the present inadequate laundry to be expanded into the old kitchen.

Employe turnover might be reduced with improvement of working conditions, addition of showers, locker space, and enlarging of dining rooms, it was said.

McCarran's Dental Woes Keep District Committee Idle

Dental troubles of Senator McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada, will keep the Senate District Committee, which he heads, out of action for at least 10 days or more.

McCarran had mapped out an extensive program for the committee this week, but when Congress convened yesterday it was learned he had gone to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., over the weekend to have some X-rays and treatment. At his office it was said he would remain there until the work is completed.

His absence will delay committee action on his so-called District "home rule" bill, final disposition of the report of the subcommittee which investigated Gallinger Hospital, and hearings on the "baby broker" bill.

While in the hospital, McCarran will complete revision of the original "home rule" measure and have it ready for committee consideration upon his return to the Capitol. The bill would substitute an elective council-city manager form of government for the District for the present commission form.

Builders' Luncheon

More than 200 members of the Washington Building Congress heard a speech yesterday by C. M. Ripley of General Electric, who drew a picture of the importance of electricity in the war effort. He spoke at a luncheon meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

Hero of 91 Bombings Dizzy After Quick-Time Marriage

Maj. and Mrs. Harold Brecht in Takoma Park Baptist Church

The commanding officer of a bombing squadron learned more about split-second timing in a five-day Washington courtship than he did on 91 missions over New Guinea.

"Fighting Japs was a lot easier than this," Maj. Harold Brecht, 23, of Okmulgee, Okla., decided last night after his marriage to auburn-haired Maxine Cox of 722 Sheridan st. nw., in Takoma Park Baptist Church.

The young couple, who met here only last Thursday after eight months' correspondence across the seas, had wound up a hectic day, which included applications for a wedding license in two States as well as the District, a marriage ceremony in Clarendon, Va., and the second ceremony here.

But they were still smiling and ready for a trip to Oklahoma to meet his family, and then a jaunt to Miami, Fla., where Brecht reports Sunday for reassignment.

Credit for the wartime romance goes to Kathleen Brecht, the major's sister, Harold and Maxine agreed. The girls were both employed in the Office of the Secretary of War, where, incidentally, the couple first met last week, and Kathleen's letters told just enough about Maxine to arouse Harold's interest, he admitted.

It wasn't long before Harold and Maxine were exchanging letters, too, but there wasn't any mention of marriage until "early Sunday morning." Three days of dinner-and-dnacing dates, and the major said he was convinced a proposal was in order.

From there on, "it was something they ought to put in the movies," according to Maxine's mother, Mrs. Susan Cox.

Still a bit bewildered by it all, the couple related last night the difficulties of getting married in a single day's time.

They expected to get a waiver in the District, they said, but it never came, so they went across the line into Maryland. Maryland laws demand 48 hours' notice, they learned, so Virginia was recommended. In Virginia, they were told that, since Maxine was only 20, her father's personal consent was necessary. Cox hurried down, only to learn that since he was her stepfather, Mrs. Cox would have to be present. So the mother hurried over.

But Maxine and Harold finally became Major and Mrs. Brecht at 7 p. m. in Clarendon Baptist Church. The ceremony in Takoma Park Baptist Church was held because Maxine had wanted to be married in her own church, by her own minister, the Rev. William Earl LaRue.

Nine Scout Troops Collect 26,000 Pounds of Waste Paper

More than 26 thousand pounds of waste paper salvage were turned into the war effort by Washington area Boy Scouts and Cubs last Saturday, officials of the D. C. Salvage Committee reported yesterday in listing the first official results of the campaign recently launched by the committee in cooperation with The Washington Post.

Although scores of troops have enlisted in the drive, which is designed to bring in paper from untapped sources in their areas, only nine troops scheduled official collections last weekend, for the 26,141-lb. total. Previous scout paper collections have not been registered under the campaign with the salvage committee.

According to official records, Troop 64 of 213 Byer rd. nw., leads the duration drive here with 7771 pounds of paper collected Saturday. The scoutmaster in that area is James E. Doran.

Although he termed the weekend contributions "very gratifying," James E. Colliflower, chairman of the D. C. Salvage Committee, pointed out that collections next Saturday should be boosted to 35,000 or 40,000 pounds, with an average 60,000-pound weekly goal when the campaign is fully under way.

Efforts of the scouts will greatly augment the overall waste paper salvage drive in Washington, Colliflower said.

Linn C. Drake, scout executive of the National Capital Area Council, agreed that last week's results were very good as he called upon still more troops and packs to join the program as their "patriotic duty."

Troop 83, L. C. Swab, scoutmaster, headquarters, 6100 Georgia ave. nw., 4780 pounds; Pack 55, F. G. Butts, jr., cub leader, headquarters, Gordon Junior High School, 4485 pounds; Troop 15, John A. Bennett, scoutmaster, headquarters, 34th and Lowell sts. nw., 2045 pounds; Troop 310, Fleming V. Briscoe, scoutmaster, headquarters, 2712 O st. nw., 1840 pounds; Troop 63, George Malley, scoutmaster, headquarters, 3222 6th st. se., 1690 pounds; Troop 3, J. F. Raff, jr., scoutmaster; headquarters, 2800 Bellevue Terrace nw., 1510 pounds; Troop 5, John H. Bayless, scoutmaster, headquarters, Washington Cathedral, 1440 pounds; Troop 101, Ralph C. MacPhail, scoutmaster, headquarters, Ballston Scout Hall, Arlington, Va., 880 pounds.

Meanwhile, a statement yesterday from headquarters of the U. S. Victory Waste Paper campaign, sponsored by the Nation's newspapers including The Washington Post, termed waste paper the "No. 1 critical material."

Recent collections, the report added, amounted to 114,000 tons while 155,000 tons is needed every week for use in manufacture of packages of war items. Paper mills are consequently working only 60 to 75 per cent of capacity, it was said.

School Social Service Corps Urged to Curb Delinquency

Organization of a corps of social service workers in Washington's public schools to help prevent development of juvenile delinquency was recommended yesterday to the Board of Education by Mildred Terrett, chairman of the committee on protective services.

Miss Terrett spoke at a meeting at the YWCA, called by the Council of Social Agencies to receive reports from the board's advisory committee on child wartime and postwar problems.

C. Melvin Sharpe, chairman of the committee on recreation, pointed to the importance of organized recreation and demanded a centralized authority to plan all recreational activities in the Nation's Capital.

Speakers, who included Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Dr. Robert L. Haycock, Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, the Rev. A. F. Elmes, and Mrs. P. C. Ellett, agreed that juvenile delinquency is a community problem which must be attacked in cooperation with parents and public authorities.

John Ihlder, president of the council, drew attention to the assurance of an "adequate supply of proper homes for the people of Washington" as a primary means of combating domestic troubles.

Civil Rights Drive To Recruit Aides

A membership campaign to recruit workers for the drive to pass the District civil rights bill will be conducted by the Washington Council, National Negro Congress, at a meeting at 1934 11th st. nw., today at 8 p. m.

The council will plan further steps in its program to bring increased economic, political and social rights to Negroes.

Loan Drive Aims to Sell Bonds to All

Plans for the Fourth War Loan drive to call on every Washington resident to purchase a bond in an effort to raise 95 million dollars locally between January 18 and February 15, moved to completion yesterday.

While campaign directors and civic leaders met at the Mayflower Hotel to discuss the forthcoming drive, the Variety Club and radio station WRC opened their house-to-house sale of bonds for the special war bond matinee of "Ice Capades of 1944" to be held January 29 with ceremonies in front of the District Building.

At the Mayflower meeting, Maj. Gen. David N. W. Grant, air surgeon, Army Air Forces, graphically described the cost of the Air Forces Medical Service and measured its achievements in terms of the $25 bond.

Spending Guards Health

"When dollars are spent," he said, "for the medical selection, care, and protection of the flier, they are dollars designed to bring our boys back alive—to bring them back from each mission and to civilian life as useful, happy, healthy individuals.

"How the costs add up may be seen from the fact that medical supplies and equipment shipped since the beginning of the war to the Air Forces overseas—not for the entire Army Air Forces but only for those units in combat—amounted to a money value of approximately $130,000,000."

"To the limit of our ability," Gen. Grant said, "we must save our men, while they are waging this war and when they have won it. Dollars are the least we have to spend. The most we can buy for our money are war bonds. It is not spending, but saving—saving money and saving men."

Bond Buying Checks Inflation

Calling on campaign workers to concentrate on individual sales of securities, Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank and a member of the executive committee of the District War Finance Committee, pointed out that not only was it a move to help finance the war, but was a step toward combating inflation. The main objective of alloting 53 million dollars to individuals, he said, is to siphon off excess purchasing power resulting from a rising national income in the hands of individuals.

The Variety Club bond sellers will canvass the city, exchanging free tickets to the special "Ice Capades" matinee for bond purchases, of the lower denominations.

Supreme Court Ruling to Cost D. C. $18,000

The Supreme Court ruled yesterday that the District Court of Claims can review "findings of fact" of the District Board of Tax Appeals, and in effect upheld a Court of Claims decision which will cost the District $18,000 in inheritance tax revenue.

The case involved the domicile of the late Charles C. Pace, former financial clerk of the Senate, against whose will District tax assessors asked the $18,000. The Court of Claims ruled Pace was domiciled in Florida, reversing a Board of Tax Appeals decision.

In asking Supreme Court review, the District corporation counsel sought to prove the board had a status making its acts subject to review only on legal points.

The court ruled the local law establishing Board of Tax Appeals review contained a conflict, and declared, "We cannot say that the Court of Appeals commits error in assuming its review of the Board of Tax Appeals decision to be entitled to the scope of a review of an equity court." Such review permits the high court to investigate the facts presented.

Lawrence Koenigsberger, present one-man board of tax appeals, said the action will have no effects on the boards function. He said the Court of Appeals had reviewed findings of fact of the board before. It's right to do so was challenged in this case, he said. He said change would have resulted only if the Supreme Court had ruled otherwise.

Restaurateurs to Hear New Rationing Plans

The members of the Washington Restaurant Association will meet tonight at the Washington Gas Co. Building to hear OPA officials discuss the new rationing program for restaurants.

C. C. Roberts, District fire marshal, will discuss fire hazards in restaurants and how they are to be avoided. A war bond talk also will be heard.

City Needs In Brief

Girl, 7, Clothes Afire, Saved By Busman's Quick Action

Screaming and her clothes and hair in flames, Ruth McDonald, 7, burst from the front door of her home at 1013 South Carolina ave. se. yesterday afternoon.

Clair E. Hess, 27-year-old Capital Transit bus driver, walking by on his way to work, rushed to the child, snuffed out the fire in her hair with his bare hands and flung his overcoat about her burning body.

The girl was taken to Providence Hospital, where her condition was termed critical.

Hess, of 1360 South Carolina ave. sw., said that after placing the burned child in an auto to be rushed to the hospital, he went into the home and found a burned broom and matches on the floor of the kitchen.

The victim and a younger brother and sister had been playing in the kitchen together. The mother was not at home at the time, police reported.

The brother and sister were so frightened that they were unable to tell how Ruth caught fire, Hess said.

He Got No Warrant

A nervous young man rushed into the Corporation Counsel's office and exclaimed, "Where can I get a warrant?"

"What kind of a warrant?" asked Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman.

The man answered, "Somebody stole my wife."

He was sent over to the United States Attorney's office, where he was refused a warrant. It seems there was no one able to decide whether the offense was grand or petty larceny.

For Lower Transit Fares

Chairman Flanagan of the Public Utilities Commission said yesterday that he would bring up the motion for an immediate order to reduce Capital Transit fares, filed with the PUC last week, at today's meeting of the commission.

Sidney R. Katz, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council (CIO), which initiated the motion, declared that his organization is ready to ask for congressional help if the PUC fails to act "swiftly."

People's Counsel Urged

The appointment of a People's Counsel for the District was recommended last night in resolutions adopted by the West End Citizens Association.

The association also asked that sidewalks be repaired in the area.

After adopting resolutions asking that parking be banned on 19th st. between G and H sts. nw., Walter F. Wasson, a delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations, was named as a committee of one to consider traffic problems.

Foreman Suspended

Timothy L. Dooley, 53, of Forestville, Md., a foreman for the District Refuse Department, was suspended by the District Commissioners yesterday until disposition is made of charges against him of altering payroll records and embezzlement.

Dooley pleaded not guilty in Municipal Court to both charges. He was held under $1000 bond.

William Xanten, head of the Refuse Department, said the amount involved was less than $100. Another charge was that Dooley was given $18.75 for a war bond by one of the employes who never received the bond.

Air Hostesses Wanted

Air-minded Washington girls will be interviewed for air hostess training and positions at Hangar No. 3, National Airport, on Friday, 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., by Chief Hostess Nellie Kemm of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines and F. G. Nordstrum of the PCA personnel department.

In addition to a liking for sky life, appliants should have two years of college training and two years of professional work.

Held on Pandering Charge

After witnesses testified they had brought a woman into a room at the Commodore Hotel to enliven the Washington stay of a visitor, Dillard W. Smith, 46, Negro, of 1901 15th st. nw., and Harry Thomas, 27, of Brentwood, were held in Municipal Court yesterday under $11,000 bond on pandering charges.

In another case, Newton Craig, 45, Negro of 601 New Jersey ave. was held on a pandering charge on $1000 bond, and under $500 bond on a number writing charge.

13 Club Elects

Dr. Thomas N. Roane, druggist, of 1101 Pennsylvani ave. se., has been installed as president of the 13 Club, which trains members in public speaking. Others taking office were Robert Hilleary, vice president; John J. McDonnell, secretary; Ralph L. Bailey, treasurer; George F. Tudor, parliamentarian, and James F. Loyd, marshal.

Library Talk

Library science development in the Philippines will be outlined by Solomon V. Arnaldo, former chief of research and reference for the islands, at a meeting of the Washington chapter of the Special Libraries Association today at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the Archives Building.

Talks for SPARS

A recruiting talk for the SPARS was made at the meeting of the Stanton Park Citizens Association last night by Miss Dorothy Gillam.

Miss Esther Conklin spoke on the work of the USO in the area and John L. Bateman was elected as the representative of the association in the USO work.

The association expressed its appreciation for being allowed continued use of the Peabody School for its meetings.

Grocer Held Up

John Sisso, owner of a grocery at 1410 9th st. nw., reported to police that a Negro held him at the point of a pistol yesterday and took $200 in indorsed Governments checks and $75 in cash.

OPA Asks $5226 Penalty

The District OPA asked District Court yesterday to prevent the Rainbow Dyeing & Cleaning Co., Inc., 732 6th st. se., from future violation of price ceilings, and asked that a penalty of $5226 be assessed the firm. The suit, filed by OPA Chief Attorney John L. Lasky, states this sum is three times the amount of overcharges.

Liquor Changes Offered

District Commissioners yesterday returned a list of proposed changes in local liquor regulations to the corporation counsel's office for further revision. The regulations were first submitted verbally to the Commissioners early in December by the ABC board which was instructed to prepare them in writing and submit them for public hearing. The ABC proposals were sent to the corporation counsel about two weeks ago where they underwent considerable revision and were sent to the Commissioners on Saturday.

As verbally delivered, the new regulations would increase inspections and records which must be filed with the ABC board both by retailers and wholesalers.

Thieves Hit Jackpot

Twenty-seven cases of whisky, valued at $661.36, and $14 in change were stolen in a burglary early yesterday at the Temple Market, 1401 17th st. nw., operated by George P. Kreger, police reported.

The burglars had entered the market by cutting a square of glass from a show window, according to police.

Woodmen, Spare the Trees

The policy of allowing the public to chop up fallen trees in Rock Creek Park for firewood on Sundays was criticized last night by Devereux Butcher, executive secretary of the National Parks Association, speaking before the Kalorama Citizens' Association.

Following Butcher's speech the group adopted a resolution in protest of the removal of dead wood from the park.

Butcher said the natural decay of the trees encouraged the growth of wild flowers and other vegetation. Furthermore, he said, the woodchoppers are injuring natural shrubbery and smaller live trees in chopping and dragging away the dead wood.

The dead wood if left in the park would also invite more flying squirrels and other small animals, Butcher said.

Held on Theft Charge

Miss Comalee Pfeiffer, 28, of 3537 11th st., was being held last night by police on a charge of grand larceny as the result of the alleged theft of a ring at the Ebbitt Hotel, where she was employed. The ring was valued at $2600 and was said by police to have been the property of a salesman, H. A. Touchton, a guest at the hotel. Miss Pfeiffer is accused of having sold the ring for $900. Seven hundred dollars was found on her when arrested.

Safety Zones Sought

The Brentwood Terrace Citizens Association adopted a resolution last night to request the Capital Transit Co. to install safety zones or loading platforms on Rhode Island ave. ne. from Fourth st. to the District line. The meeting was held at 1380 Bryant st. ne.

A resolution also was adopted expressing appreciation to the Capital Transit Co. for recent increase in crosstown bus service which affects the sections in which members of the association reside.

Ewing Stays at Lorton

Justice S. Dickenson Letts of District Court declined yesterday to sign an order which would have kept Orman W. Ewing, convicted of rape, in District Jail until a civil suit is disposed of.

Ewing was sent to Lorton Reformatory last Friday and through his attorney asked that he be sent back to the jail.

Justice Letts said Ewing may be brought here whenever the authorities feel his presence is required for the court action or for the special committee investigating conditions at the District Jail, where, it was charged, Ewing received special privileges.

Mental Care For Federal Clerks Urged

By James E. Chinn

Government war workers with psychotic tendencies have become such a problem in the Washington area that both Congress and the Civil Service Commission were called on yesterday to produce a remedy.

First, Civil Service Commission was asked to screen more carefully applicants for Government jobs.

Second, Representative Randolph (Democrat) of West Virginia, introduced a bill to open the facilities of District institutions for the care and treatment of the mentally unbalanced either living in Government dormitories on Arlington Farms or working in Federal buildings in nearby Virginia. These include the Pentagon, Navy Department Annex and the Washington National Airport.

Wiprud Makes Request

Action was taken at the request of Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the District Medical Society, who revealed in correspondence with Randolph, chairman of the House District Committee, that 30 women had been found in the dormitories who needed medical attention for mental ailments. Wiprud based his information on reports from Dr. Irma Bache, medical specialist of the War Department, and Dr. Beatrice Berle of the United States Public Health Service.

The condition of these 30 women, Randolph was told, was discovered during the months of June, July and August last year. Twenty of them were reported to have left the dormitories for treatment. Four of them were sent to Gallinger Hospital, one to the Alexandria (Va.) jail, and another to a Virginia State Hospital. The others went to the homes of relatives.

The women, it was said, ranged in age from 19 to 60. The majority of them were found to have a "persecution complex." One of them, however, was described as an "exhibitionist." She was reported by a house director at the dormitories as having been seen walking around a hall with only a feather to shield her nudity.

Randolph also was advised that the Civil Service Commission had been urged to adopt a more adequate system to prevent the employment of psychotic individuals.

Agreed to Act

Wiprud reported that the mental subcommittee of the District Medical Society's public health committee had "agreed that something should be done at once, if possible, to remedy what is a potentially dangerous condition." He said Dr. Bache had pointed out that the Pentagon Building has "no easy method available" for treating Government workers who develop acute mental symptoms, and that Arlington Farms now has 3000 tenants and the population is expected to double before the war ends. Many of the dormitory residents are WACS, WAVES and women Marines.

Dr. Bache said that "since an increasing number of apparently unstable and potentially mentally sick individuals have gravitated to the dormitories, some arrangements should be made for their care other than placement in jail."

Randolph was asked to sponsor the bill because Arlington County has no hospital facilities to care for mental patients. Soon after its introduction it was referred by the House to the District Committee, where the chairman said it would receive prompt consideration.

Body of Dailey, School Teacher, Found in River

The body of Earl L. Dailey, 49-year-old mathematics teacher at Sidwell Friends School since September, was found in the Georgetown Channel of the Potomac River at the foot of New Hampshire ave. yesterday.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner, said he would withhold a death certificate until police had completed an investigation.

Dailey with his wife and a 13-year-old son, lived at 2024 Haden rd., Avondale, Md.

Members of the Police Homicide Squad said the body was found in four feet of water near the Titanic Monument and that there were no marks of violence. Dailey had been in ill health, detectives said.

At 9 a. m. yesterday Daily had not arrived at the school to teach his classes, so school officials telephoned his home to find that he had left, apparently for the school, shortly after 7 a. m. as usual, police said.

5500 Properties With Overdue Tax Go on Sale Today

Sale of tax certificates on about 5500 tax-delinquent properties in the District will begin today at 9 a. m. in the office of collector of taxes, Guy Pearson, room 120, the old District Building, 14th and E sts. nw. Buyers will pay the current taxes due.

Sales will continue until all properties have been announced, and either sold to bidders or bought in automatically by the District. Properties involved tomorrow are those on which 1943 taxes have not been paid. Officials expect the sale to last three days from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Buyers of tax certificates are entitled to 1 per cent interest on their purchases for a period of two years, during which time the property owner has the privilege of redeeming his land by paying up back taxes and interest and assessments.

3 Good Meals a Day Urged to Keep Trim

By Ida Jean Kain

(This is the second week of a special series by Ida Jean Kain for women who want to get in trim. Her schedules will help you reduce or gain weight and normalize your measurements.)

You thin girls almost invariably think of fatigue in terms of overwork. It doesn't occur to you that your energy may be away below par because of your poor food habits.

The fact that you are underweight is proof you do not eat enough. You are apt to be rather "picky" about what you eat at any time. And when you feel under the weather or have hazy symptoms of indigestion, you imagine it must be something you ate—so you leave some other good food out of your menus, milk or the egg, or orange juice, or whatever you think upset you.

Good Breakfast Needed

One thin, nervous girl had only orange juice and coffee for breakfast and didn't do much better by herself at the other two meals. She decided the orange juice was "too acid," and cut down to coffee in the morning. Any nutritionist could have told her the food she was not getting was making her edgy and tired. She agreed to give food a trial.

She added a hot whole-grain cereal, with wheat germ mixed in, and served with milk and cream, to the orange juice and coffee breakfast, and improved her other meals to the same extent. Now she is taking her job right in her stride. The work isn't any easier. She has more energy for it—and she isn't bothered with indigestion, either.

The best thing you thin girls could do is to forget about your food notions and get three good meals a day. You need the protective foods, milk, eggs, whole-grain cereal and green leafy vegetables, because they help to assimilate the extra calories you get in such wholesome foods as potatoes, cream sauces, simple desserts, and bread and butter with each meal.

You have to build up a better food capacity. You can't suddenly begin eating larger amounts of food at each meal. So don't try. Make the increase gradually, and take some of your calories between meals.

Normalize Appetite

Your appetite is the promise to take care of food and the Vitamin B you get in the whole grains, green leafy vegetables and meat helps to normalize your appetite.

Besides improving your eating habits, you have to learn to let down. You use too much energy in nervous tension. If you can afford it, have Swedish massage once a week—twice a week is better for a while.

13-Year-Old Girl's Defensive, Worshipful Interest in Horse and Dog Acutely Distress Her Brother and Sister; Think It Abnormal

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We are an average family with a home in a good section, money to match our ration points, and enough intelligence and looks to do as well as our father and grandfather have done. Dad is an Air Force officer stationed overseas. I am 25, married, and with my small baby living at home—by invitation—while my husband is in the service. A brother, 20, is also in the Air Force; and another, 16, is here at home. The fourth child I shall call Beth. She is 13; and it is about her that I am concerned.

Beth gives promise of being a charming and pretty young woman, after she overcomes a few of the usual difficulties. She now has a hobby which I feel is a very good hobby,—if taken in moderation. BUT—she thinks of little else; and has dropped interest in almost all other subjects, including art lessons, in which she has shown above-average ability. Her hobby is horses; and she belongs to a riding group which takes instruction every Saturday. She has the essential pieces of a habit and is learning a great deal; and that, I believe, is well enough; and, also, quite enough.

However, she spends all day Saturday in the stables, cleaning horses and hanging around for the chance of exercising horses or getting an extra ride. There are other girls along, and also a stable boy; but not always adult chaperonage. Innocent as this may be, it does not look well for a girl just stepping on to the teen-age platform. Beth has been instructed many times to be home at a certain hour; and the fact that she disregards these instructions has no effect on our mother. The walk to and from the stables is not safe at untraveled hours; and we cannot be sure that she is always accompanied by friends.

Mother Is Tolerant, To Sister's Dismay

ASIDE FROM this threat to her physical safety, there is, I feel, something abnormal in her devotion to horses,—perhaps a "compensational" interest in this transitional period between dolls and dating. She is not unpopular; but neither is she popular; and is very easily hurt. Beth loves one particular horse to a point of doting; and will defend him against any ribbing directed at her attachment to him;—and she gets plenty of ribbing from her brother, who calls her horse-crazy, a queer, etc. He is actually ashamed of her; and is inexcusably hateful. Her grades are not yet affected; but in classes she writes "horse" all over everything, and draws pages and pages of nothing but horses. On shopping trips, she stops to look at every object connected with horses,—and good or bad, it is wonderful . . . I have attempted to interest her in her appearance, and in learning to dance and behave properly, with some success. But her interest is only fleeting; and when vacation offers opportunity, she is off to the stables.

This same hunger for companionship is evidenced in her adoration of a little dog who sleeps with her, sits in her lap and is at her heels constantly at home, thoroughly spoiled and pampered. On the surface, there is nothing wrong here; it is just an additional straw-in-the-wind. Mother left Beth in my charge twice this fall, while she visited Dad before he left for overseas. At these times, I was able to cut her riding down to her regular two hours on Saturday. But she is out of my province when mother is here; and I have talked myself blue in the face trying to impress my views on mother, to no avail. Beth can always wheedle her out of a "No;" or just disregards orders, knowing mother will absent-mindedly forget it. Mother's argument to me is: "There is no harm. Beth is having fun. I would rather have her horse-crazy than boy-crazy." I say there isn't any difference; that both are maladjusted states; with the horse-craze a little more expensive and beyond my sister's means. BETH'S SISTER.

Child Seems Superior To Her Acid Critics

DEAR B. S.: On first reading of your letter, it strikes me that Beth has more on the ball, is cut to a pattern of more sensitive, intuitionally responsive awareness of all forms of life, than either of you two diligent, smugly conventional critics. Perhaps horses and dogs never meant so much to you; and perhaps they leave your brother cold,—at least at his present age. So what? So if Beth differs radically from you two in that regard, does it mean, necessarily, that she is a "queer one;" a potential source of social embarrassment to the family in future years?

In my opinion, not at all. Rather, I should infer that Beth is manifesting signs of becoming (and of latently being) a fuller personality than either of you; that she is endowed, as you are not, with a communicative understanding of animal creatures;—and that your very insensitivity in that regard, in contrast to her "knowingness," drives her emotionally into their camp. Whereas if you divined, and at this stage of her growth sympathetically indorsed, her absorption in her sense of special kinship with them, she might more respectfully accede to your preachments concerning the unwisdom of putting all her eggs in one basket. Such is my unstudied reaction to the subject of Beth's horse-craziness.

Child Needs More Love From Family

HOWEVER, there is another side. It has to do with your mother's easy-going policy of casually fond neglect of the child; plus your vividly significant statement,—"This same hunger for companionship is evidenced in Beth's adoration of a little dog. . . ." Also, your mention that Beth is neither popular nor unpopular and very easily hurt; and the implication that you, in your mother's absence, can, by an authoritative display of solicitude, mold Beth to a conventionally pleasing performance. Assuming, for the sake of discussion, that Beth's fondness for horse and dog are disturbingly excessive,—which is a question for a psychologist to determine, after full investigation,—then, we must believe on the evidence reported, this abnormality has its origin in a starvation-point insufficiency of human love, which should be forthcoming from family; particularly from mother.

Thus, if Beth poses a problem of incipient abnormality, the solution cannot be found in forcible attempts to break up her pitiably compensatory attachment to animals,—in lieu of true-loving, closely attentive human companionship. The problem must be treated at its source. Her need of family love must be adequately met, if she is to be constructively weaned away from obsessive, and seemingly exclusive, allegiance to horse and dog. And it is her mother's duty to wake up to the significance of what's going on; and to get on the job and see that Beth derives the rounded benefit of her watchfully interested, responsibly minded protective supervision.

Protective Supervision Warms Heart of Child

OFTEN a firm "No," made to stick by the parent in the child's best interest, does more to reassure a child that he is loved,—thus giving him inner security and a sense of special consequence,—than too-tolerant yielding to rebuttal argument. Finally: Beth's family is guilty of dangerous negligence in failing to guarantee her, at all times, trustworthy adult chaperonage at the stables and safe conduct en route. Also, they conspire in a crime against her spirit, in permitting her brother to boorishly browbeat and taunt her.

Belgium's Former Prime Minister, Now Holding Postwar Planning Job, to Be Honored at Fete Here; Noted Commentator Returns for Visit

BELGIUM'S FORMER Prime Minister, M. Paul van Zeeland, whose triumphant visit to Washington in 1937 wrote a colorful chapter into Capital history, now has a job in which his extensive study of international finance and currency systems can be put to highly practical use. As chairman of the Belgian Commission for the Study of Postwar Problems, his training—some of which he got at Princeton University back in 1921—comes in handy when monetary puzzles must be worked out in the charting of plans for the postwar restoration of his homeland.

Dr. van Zeeland

With headquarters in London, and a division office in New York, Dr. van Zeeland also spends some of his time in Washington. But, whereas, on his official visit here in 1937 only the key to the city was missing (when he and Mme. van Zeeland arrived at Union Station the Marine Band played; a flock of notables greeted the couple; and a slim, sleek limousine carried them to the White House, where they were overnight guests—remember?), his comings and goings in wartime Washington have been completely without fanfare.

CONFERENCES ABSORB so much of Dr. van Zeeland's Capital visits now that even friends of long standing have difficulty in seeing him. That's one reason why he agreed to take a couple of hours off duty on the afternoon of Tuesday, January 18, when his nephew, Carlos L. van Bellinghen and the latter's wife will entertain a few friends at a 5-to-7 fete in his honor.

Mr. van Bellinghen who, like his uncle, also studied economics at Princeton, is now the Belgian Embassy's financial expert. He served as Dr. van Zeeland's secretary during the Prime Minister's visit to Washington; then returned to his homeland, went into the army, saw service on the firing line, and after Nazi occupation of Belgium, fled to France and then escaped from there to this country. The get-together on Tuesday, by the way, will not only honor Dr. van Zeeland, but will mark the third anniversary of Mr. van Bellinghen's marriage in this country to an attractive Belgian refugee.

DR. VAN ZEELAND, who like Anthony Eden reached his stature as a statesman early in life, was the youngest prime minister in Europe back in the days when he was invited to Washington as a guest of the U. S. Government. Recognized as one of the outstanding men of his country, he had figured prominently in international politics since the day he took over the reins of state. When he became prime minister, Belgium faced a crisis. Its economic structure was tottering dangerously. Besieged on all sides with propagandists of great European powers, the "buffer nation" threatened to be torn between the forces of the Fascists, the Socialists and the Liberals.

Working steadily and tirelessly, Dr. van Zeeland strengthened the coalition between the three factions and also fortified the economic prowess of his country to the point where Belgium was in the position of reducing its taxation at the same time it increased its armaments. When war came, he was therefore the ideal person to be in charge of the commission dealing with postwar problems, most of which have economic implications . . . and complications. A loyal friend of America, Dr. van Zeeland has said that one or his highest ambitions is to send his son to an American university—preferably Princeton. His wife and four children, incidentally, are making their home in New Jersey for the duration.

THAT PERIPATETIC American who moves faster and goes farther than probably any other—including Mrs. Roosevelt—is back in Washington for a visit that may—note the may—keep him here until spring. I'm speaking of Edward Tomlinson, traveler, lecturer, author and "dean of Latin-American commentators," who recently returned from a jaunt that took him from coast to coast, down through South America and into battle areas of the South Atlantic.

Edward Tomlinson

Shortly after publication of his latest book, "The Other Americans," he left for the far South in July, visited half a dozen countries below the Rio Grande, gathered material for several magazine articles and his regular radio broadcasts, and then came back to the United States for a lecture tour that took him through 31 States. Mid-December found him in New York to receive the coveted Cabot award in journalism at Columbia University. Then he stopped over in Washington en route to his Georgia home for the holidays; and now he's back again . . . and will gather in for dinner this evening a few friends who are hoping to get a few of his off-the-record impressions of latest developments on the Latin-American front.

SPEAKING of Latin America reminds me that reports from Buenos Aires have it that Mme. Felipe Espil, wife of the former Argentine Ambassador here, has arranged to have her furniture and art collection auctioned off at a fashionable New York sale sometime soon.

Seems that after Mme. Espil had her household effects packed here, she sent more than half of them on to New York with the hope they could be disposed of there. The auction will take care of that. The report, coming as it does from the Argentine capital, should serve to spike the rumor that the Espils have not yet returned to the envoy's homeland, but are lingering on in Florida indefinitely. As I understand it, the delay there was only brief. They proceeded to the Argentine capital in time to spend Christmas there.

Walter Nash Returns From New Zealand

Back at his desk yesterday after almost a year's absence in his homeland was white-thatched Walter Nash, Minister from New Zealand.

Mr. Nash, who journeyed here by plane from Wellington, enjoyed an uninterrupted flight until Saturday morning, when his plane was grounded in the Southwest. His arrival in Washington, expected that afternoon, was delayed by the storm until Sunday. Mrs. Nash did not accompany the Minister, and for the present is remaining with her daughter in New Zealand.

The Minister left Washington last March to present the annual budget to the New Zealand Parliament in fulfilling his capacity of financial minister. His return was delayed by a general election in November and again by the poor health of the prime minister, whose duties he took over during the illness.

Returning with Mr. Nash was a New Zealand government official, John Reed. They were met at the airport by various British Dominions officials, representatives of the British Embassy and the State Department. Yesterday afternoon the Minister held a press conference at the Legation at 4 o'clock.

Ambassador Caffery Has Round Of Conferences in Washington

By Peggy Preston

This country's envoy to Brazil, career diplomat Jefferson Caffery, has had little time to renew his many Capital acquaintences during his current brief stay in Washington. State Department conferences have kept the able Mr. Caffery completely occupied since his arrival here last week.

Last night on the eve of his return to his post in Rio de Janeiro, the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins gathered together a few of his close friends for an informal dinner at the embassy.

Among those invited to bid Mr. Caffery hail and farewell were the Minister Counselor of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Lobo, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. William L. Clayton, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Philip W. Bonsal, Maj. Gen. Myron Cramer, Vanlantim Boucas, Claudionor Lemos, Randolph Harrison and Mrs. Nathan C. Wyeth.

General Ord Is Luncheon Host

Yesterday, at noon, Mr. Caffery and the Brazilian Ambassador shared honors at a stag luncheon given at the Mayflower by Maj. Gen. James G. Ord. In the company were Maj. Gen. Robert L. Walsh, Admiral Vasconcellos, Brazilian Supply Mission; Admiral William O. Spears, Capt. A. K. Doyle, Brig. Gen. Hayes A. Kroner, Col. Kenner F. Hertford, Col. W. M. Adams, Col. M. A. Hill and Laurence Duggan.

His current stay in Washington is the first for Ambassador Caffery in a little more than a year. As our envoy to Brazil for the past six years, he has managed only brief return trips each year, and this time, as last, he was unaccompanied by Mrs. Caffery due to the necessary shortness of his time here.

Wearing the reputation of one of our most competent diplomats, Mr. Caffery has had wide experience in Latin American affairs, having started his career in Caracas, Venezuela, in 1911. Subsequently he served at posts in Stockholm, Teheran, Madrid, Athens, Tokyo and Berlin. But in 1926 he returned to specialize in the countries of Latin America.

Won Fame at Havana Post

His first job as mission chief came in that year when he was appointed Minister to El Salvador. In 1928 he became our Minister to Colombia, and later returned to Washington as Assistant Secretary of State.

In 1932 he went to Havana as personal representative of the President to Cuba with the rank of Ambassador. It was while serving there that he gained fame for his work in handling the ticklish job of maintaining friendly relations with that country during a period of civil strife.

Ambassador Caffery has made his headquarters at the Metropolitan Club during his week's stay in town. He will leave by plane for Brazil in the immediate future.

Weddings

In the chapel at Maxwell Field, Ala., on Wednesday, January 5, Miss Barbara Ellen Boose, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Lloyd Boose, of Washington, became the bride of Lieut. Gerald Eugene Prentice, the ceremony taking place at 6:30 with Chaplain Chase officiating. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Prentice of Kansas City, Kans.

Colonel Boose gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white satin gown fashioned with long fitted bodice, leg o'mutton sleeves and a long circular train. Her finger-tip length tulle veil fell from a headdress of tulle and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Mrs. Thomas L. Coleman, who was her sister's matron of honor, wore a stem green taffeta gown with fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline edged in lace. She wore a tiara of yellow roses and carried a bouquet of the same flowers. Maj. David Crockett of Hagerstown, Md., served as best man. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was held at the Jefferson Davis Hotel for members of the two families and close friends.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Maryland in 1941 and Lieutenant Prentice was graduated from the same university in 1942.

King—Kimball

Wedding bells rang in Anchorage, Alaska, recently for a Washington couple.

The bride was Miss Helena Melvin Kimball, daughter of Mrs. Arthur H. Kimball and the late Dr. Kimball of this city. The bridegroom is Capt. Edward Anthony Vincent King. Their wedding took place at the post chapel, Fort Richardson, Alaska. Col. Warren Wynn gave the bride in marriage. She was dressed in white taffeta, with a finger-tip length veil of tulle and carried roses and gardenias. Mrs. Lewis Addison Rogers was her sister's matron of honor and Maj. Franklin V. Lanum served as best man.

Mrs. Kimball, mother of the bride, was present at the ceremony and is remaining in Alaska with her daughters. Captain King, attached to the Army Air Forces, took part in the Aleutians campaign and recently returned to Anchorage from the Island of Attu.

Cook—Younger

Miss Violet Younger of Greenbelt, Md., recently became the bride of John Samuel Cook, pharmacist's mate, at a formal ceremony in Spring, N. C.

The bride wore a white satin wedding gown. Miss Anne Childress of Greenbelt gave vocal selections during the ceremony.

Both the bride and bridegroom are natives of North Carolina. Following a 10-day honeymoon in Greenbelt Mr. Cook will return to his naval duties. Mrs. Cook will continue as a teacher at the Greenbelt High School.

Metzger—Anderson

Mrs. Peter Martin Anderson of Los Angeles announces the marriage of her daughter, Cora LaVerne, to Charles Albert Daniel Metzger, formerly of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Metzger is the daughter of the late Peter Martin Anderson of Veblen, S. Dak., and niece of Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota.

Mr. Metzger is the son of Mrs. S. Daniel Metzger and William Frederick Metzger of Philadelphia.

Col., Mrs. Ritter To Return Soon

Col. and Mrs. William Ritter, who are now in Providence, R. I., will return to Washington at the end of this month.

Colonel Ritter, who was wounded in action in the North African campaign, was invalided home, and is at present on sick leave from Walter Reed Hospital.

Mrs. Ritter came down from Providence to join him here and was for a great part of the past holidays the house guest of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Emory S. Adams.

Purely Personal News And Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith have canceled all social engagements for the next few weeks because of the recent death of Mr. Smith's mother, Mrs. Clarendon Smith.

Comdr. Fowler, Hero, Has Wife, Child, Dog, Landlords Say 'No'

Lieut. Comdr. Gordon Fowler, who was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for gallantry in action just a day or so ago, at a ceremony at Anacostia Naval Station and is stationed here now, is temporarily making his home in Belle Haven, Va.

It seems even a returning hero has his housing troubles. When Commander Fowler returned to town, accompanied by his wife, 3-year-old son, Gordon, jr., and the family dog (a "royal Persian Saluki named Thunder"), they couldn't find an apartment in town. So dad and mother, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Raymond F. Fowler donated the family home at Belle Haven, until such time as some kindhearted landlord agrees to accept as a tennant a flying hero, even if he is accompanied by a wife, child and dog.

In the meantime, General and Mrs. Fowler advertised in the papers for an apartment for themselves, just a quiet couple, and had so many answers they had difficulty sorting them out. They are now located at 2800 Woodley rd.

Commander Fowler, by the way, who was stationed at Cavite when the Philippines fell, has been on constant flying duty in the Pacific area since then, until his present station in Washington.

'Marianne' at National, Is A Musical of Many Merits

By Marjorie Kelly.

"Any whole is equal to the sum of its parts" is an axiom of geometry which one might wish were always true of theater. If it were, for instance, B. P. Schulberg and Marion Gering would have a sure thing in their production "Marianne" which last night opened a one-week engagement at the National.

For the scenes and songs of "Marianne" are, taken one by one, absorbing, enjoyable, and sometimes very impressive. Much care, imagination and talent have gone into the making of this musical play, and it is a project in experimental theater to which one would like to give unqualified approval.

The play mixes song, ballet and drama, fantasy and realism according to the highly successful formula of "Oklahoma!" and "One Touch of Venus." This is the first of the mould to have a serious theme—the theme of fallen France fighting on through the underground.

Based upon an actual incident that occurred in 1942, it tells the story of a village whose young men, after the occupation, died one by one of a mysterious disease which the village doctor could not diagnose. It never occurred to the occupation authorities that the location of the village cemetery on the other side of the border, in Free France, might have something to do with the "epidemic," and the fact that it hit only the young and able-bodied men. Even the sweethearts of the young men did not always know of the resurrections which took place on the other side, of the recruits to the organized resistance in unoccupied France who came out of coffins once the funeral processions got over the border.

Among the many things there are to praise in "Marianne" foremost is the choreography by Helen Tamiris, particularly for the "Election Fantasy" which the old mayor conjures up out of happy memories and wishful thinking, a gay, riotously colorful picture of election day in prosperous times. And, too, for the "Reprisal Ballet," a somber, terrifying allegory of a Quisling's accusations and German vengeance. With its hooded, goosestepping phantoms in their black and red robes, it is infinitely more dramatic and frightening than a realistic enactment of the scene could have been.

Music with the ballet numbers is moody and striking; for the songs, they are tuneful and pleasing, but probably none will be remembered very long after the audiences leave the theater.

The hearty response accorded "What Do I Have to Do?" "Crepes Suzette" and "The Pom-pom on Your Hat," testified to the audience' approval of the Mary Jane Walsh's zestful singing. She was particularly effective in "Crepes Suzette," singing with heartfelt earnestness of food, trilling the praises of wine and camembert and the favorite thin pancakes her customers had enjoyed so much in preersatz days.

A Good Cast

Miss Walsh's lusty, vital characterization is an effective foil for Virginia MacWatters' sweetly innocent young Martine. Her clear, true voice lends much beauty to "No More," "My Heart is Like a Bird" and "Always Goodbye."

Graceful, astonishingly handsome Val Valentinoff, formerly of the Ballet Russe, proves himself an actor as well as a fine dancer. Jerry Wayne of the Hit Parade, though he started out as an actor, is still a better singer. He makes transitions from talk to song without spontaneity. Though he is natural and attractive on stage, he seems to lack both conviction and feeling.

Ernest Truex is gently comic in the role of the quiet, frustrated little mayor, a fellow of dry, wistful humor and lugubrious resignation, and Mary Sargent is inimitably bourgeois as the mayor's collaborationist wife.

The book by Sylvia Regan and Kenneth White has some very pleasant lines, such as the lament of a girl who thinks happy memories are no compensation for the loss of a real live man: "I never heard of a memory could keep your feet warm in bed!"

The lighting and the stylized sets are well-adapted to the play's every mood, from quaint gayety to drab melancholy.

With all this excellence, 'Marianne" should add up to a production of high merit. But it just misses, perhaps because the observer is never sure just what he is seeing. It is more like musical comedy than anything else, but whenever one accepts it as such, the theme intrudes, and the viewer begins to wonder if ruined France is a suitable subject for musical comedy.

Perhaps with a little more work on it, the cast will bring it into focus. In any case, it is a heartening tribute to a gallant people.

Most Likely to Succeed

Veteran movie cameramen, who regard film starlets with a practiced if somewhat jaundiced eye, have been prodded by press agents into picking the extra girl most likely to succeed this year. It's 19-year-old Muriel Kearney, who, they say, has the "perfect camera figure"

Hollywood Horses 'Bad Influence

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

GENERAL ARNOLD did not say so in his report to the Secretary of War, but the tremendous job of expanding air forces personnel is almost finished. He might have penned a little footnote, saying, "We have pilots running out of our ears."

No cadet training bases have been closed as yet, but the Army will close approximately one dozen schools for training pilot instructors. Air Forces officials find that the elaborate program has now produced enough competent navigators and pilots to finish the job in both theaters of war.

The tip-off to this is found in recent changes in policy of the transport command.

Army Transport Command, which does noncombat flying all over the world, has always preferred to take pilots from the open market, usually from the airlines. These pilots are specially trained in safe, efficient transport flying, as distinguished from the combat type of training in the Army Air Forces.

Recently, however, transport command has been forbidden to take on civilian pilots, and has been forced to accept combat-trained pilots from the Air Forces.

As one transport command officer expressed it, "They are stuffing 'em down our throats."

Uniforms of Russia's Dead

MOST REQUESTS from the Russians for military or civilian equipment are okayed almost immediately because of the heroic achievements of the Red Army. But the other day, one came along that wasn't.

It was a request for a considerable quantity of dry-cleaning equipment. Though at the head of the Russian list, United States officials turned it down.

They thought at first that the Russians were getting fancy, going back to civilian normalcy with a rush. Dry-cleaning equipment, they figured, would take up valuable space on a ship which could be used to better advantage.

Following the turn-down, the Russians appealed. They still insisted that the dry-cleaning equipment was most important and should be at the head of the list. They also explained that, because of the scarcity of textiles in Russia, they could not bury Russian dead in their uniforms, but must remove the uniforms and clean them for other soldiers.

The dry-cleaning equipment, if shipped immediately, they explained, would get to Russia this winter, in time to clean thousands of summer uniforms removed from those killed last summer and fall. These uniforms would be needed in the spring for the big campaign.

The Russian request was granted immediately.

Supreme Court Bars Congressmen

THE AUGUST United States Supreme Court was put on the spot the other day by several Congressmen who wanted to help argue the hot insurance case as Friends of the Court.

Representative Hatton Sumners of Texas first barged in by calling Chief Justice Stone all the way from Dallas to say that he would like to appear before the Court amicus curiae in the insurance case. This case involves whether or not the insurance companies are exempt from the Sherman Antitrust Act and is one of the hottest issues before Congress.

Representative Sumners, for some reason, has been busy-as-a-bird-dog for the insurance companies and, since he is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, the Supreme Court justices were inclined to view his request sympathetically.

However, someone also tipped off forthright Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming and hard-hitting Congressman Charles La Follette of Indiana. They oppose the insurance companies just as vigorously as Sumners champions them, and they also wanted to argue before the Court.

The nine learned men hesitated a day. Then benign Chief Justice Stone informed the Congressmen in his kindliest manner that it would be bad precedent for members of Congress to hold a debating society as Friends of the Court. With a touch of humor he added:

"I have trouble enough keeping politics off the Court."

Note—The Court had just finished a session in which Justices Murphy and Black issued opinions publicly scolding Justice Frankfurter for a "wholly gratuitous assertion" in constitutional law, and in which, privately, Justice Roberts had fumed and sputtered over news leaks.

North Carolina Miracle Workers

MIRACLES HAPPEN, even in Washington. Farm Security Administration, heir to all the grief of Rex Tugwell, and long confined to the Capitol Hill doghouse, is now emerging into the warm sunlight of congressional favor. A simple matter of Southern friendship did it.

The miracle resulted from the fact that Frank Hancock and Harold Cooley were a couple of Congressmen from North Carolina. Hancock, now out of Congress, has just been appointed head of Farm Security. Hence, Congressman Cooley, formerly FSA's deadliest critic, is now a supporter and friend.

All during the past year, FSA operated on a shoestring. Its funds were cut, and Congress frowned on almost everything it tried to do. But now, a report of a House Agriculture Subcommittee which Cooley heads is about to give FSA a clean bill of health and recommend that it be continued as a permanent agency.

The report will not whitewash Mr. Tugwell or any of his works. In fact, it will sharply criticize all the old resettlement projects (already in process of liquidation). But it will give strong approval to two other FSA programs—rehabilitation and tenant purchase.

Also, there will be a proposal for combining the lending programs of Farm Security with two types of Farm Credit Administration loans, with a new corporation to handle the joint lending activity.

It's marvelous what two gentlemen from North Carolina can accomplish when they get together.

When the program ended Miss Thompson phoned Nizer in Washington and discussed Thomas' arguments. "He's standing here, next to me," Nizer told her. "Why not tell it to him yourself?" Miss Thompson agreed, and told her substitute, Norman Thomas: "I'm not a debater, but I'd have done better than you did. Mr. Nizer could not, in my case, demolish me with quotes from my isolationist past."

It's About Time

It's about time to make skimpy organdie curtains fuller and more luxurious looking. Two panels can be sewn together and used as one. Seam plain edges together (A) or a ruffled edge to a plain edge (B). One single and one double panel can be used at each window, if desired.

Keep the Moths Away

Woolens are especially subject to moth attack. Cedar chest manufacturers estimate that moths annually destroy unprotected clothing valued at well over 200 million dollars.

Using Drugs As Hypnotics Is Hazardous

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

INSOMNIA may be a symptom or a disease or both. It may plague (as a complication) the sick bed of one who is ill of something else—a cold that has turned into a reflex habitual cough, convalescence from a surgical operation, a bout of dyspepsia, flatulence—anything that upsets the nervous centers and leaves them quivering and exposed to the gusts and eddies of the harsh and cruel world.

Then business worries, someone's death, a set of ideas that enter the skull and lope around and around, even after the light is turned off and the body is relaxed and ready for slumber.

Here insomnia is a symptom. How to treat these sporadic, occasional instances, is sometimes an easy and sometimes a difficult problem.

The Barbiturates

In this day and age it is likely that this form of insomnia will be treated by drugs and the drugs will be one of the barbiturates.

The difficulties with all drugs as hypnotics is, first, that there is a distinct hazard, no matter what dosage is used. Second, the danger of habituation, and, third, the chance that they do not always work as expected. And fourth, of course, they only imitate a normal sleep. The sense of refreshment is not present in the morning.

New Treatment of Insomnia

When the barbiturates were introduced in 1903, first in the form of veronal, a new era in the drug treatment of insomnia came in. It was never really respectable to use chloral or trianol or paraldehyde—it was a secret vice.

But nowadays people almost boast about their use of the barbiturates—they have a bottle of veronal, or medinal, or seconal, or amytal, or luminal, or ipral, or neonal in the bathroom medicine chest and hit it almost at will.

Of course, wise legislation in many States prevents the distribution of these products except on a doctor's prescription, but the insomniacs get some just the same.

The enormous increase in the variety of these preparations parallels their popular use, which has been most evident within the last 25 years.

On the whole they deserve the popularity. They work, the lethal range is very wide, and the real danger of habituation to anyone with a healthy nervous system is slight. So is the danger of poisoning.

I have known people to swallow a hundred grains of veronal with suicidal intent, and wake up to be reconciled with a stormy world.

They do not work very well in old people, and are apt to cause excitement rather than sleep.

at The Homestead
Virginia Hot Springs

No more peaceful region exists today than the quiet Virginia valley of which The Homestead is the center.

It is kept so deliberately, because The Homestead's greatest contribution to the war effort is as a haven of peace where American leaders can quickly restore the strength they have spent in all-out war activities.

A week or more at The Homestead this winter, when the Homestead Spa is at its best, will surely help you regain peak condition to meet the difficult days which are still to come.

THE HOMESTEAD is just overnight from you by train on the C. & O. Lines. Open the year round. For booklets, rates, etc., address THE HOMESTEAD, Hot Springs, Virginia.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Draft Boards Must Take 200 Men Every Day

District Selective Service boards, now inducting about 150 men a day, must step up their draft rates to approximately 200 per day during the rest of January, William E. Leahy, District Selective Service director, said yesterday.

The increase is to take up the slack which will be created by the revision in induction examination procedure, to be made February 1.

Under the new setup, selectees will be given a physical examination three weeks in advance of the date they are to report for induction. The present screening tests and three-week furloughs after induction, will be eliminated.

To Meet on Deferments

District government draft deferment committee will meet today at 10 a. m. to consider reports by department heads on fathers employed in their offices who are not holding key positions.

The meeting will take place in the office of the chairman, Walter L. Fowler, District budget officer. Other members of the committee are Col. Joseph D. Arthur, Jr., assistant engineer commissioner; Inspector Harvey G. Callahan of the Police Department; Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech; and Geoffrey M. Thornett, secretary to the District Board of Commissioners.

Theft Admitted By Clerk, Says Liquor Dealer

Alexander Forman, head of the wholesale liquor firm of Forman, Inc., told a District Court jury yesterday that his former bookkeeper, Albert W. Steinberg, 40, not only admitted embezzling between $8000 and $10,000 from him but begged for a chance to return the money.

The trial before Justice Matthew F. McGuire will today be in its third session with Steinberg accused of daily stealing money from the funds of the liquor concern. Steinberg's attorney claims Forman was a party to a theft with the defendant of more than $93,000.

Upon questioning by Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius, Forman said he met Steinberg in "Peacock Alley" of the Willard, and was told:

"I can't look you in the face. You were good to me, but I took the money. Please don't have an audit of the books. I'll pay back twice what I took."

The statement, Forman said, was made before John Fitzpatrick, prominent attorney here who is now a lieutenant commander in the Navy.

Forman said Steinberg quit his work in November, 1942, saying he was going into business himself.

Most of the day was spent in examination of the financial records of the firm. A cart containing eight large volumes was in the courtroom.

Steinberg sat quietly throughout the trial. His attorney, Austin F. Canfield, began preliminary cross-examination of Forman yesterday and is to continue today.

Court Voids Reno Decree, Grants Divorce to Wife

Justice James M. Proctor yesterday awarded a divorce to Mrs. Lillian Jackson, formerly of 410 N st. nw., and set aside the Reno divorce of her husband, Dr. Howard Jackson of Freedmen's Hospital.

Mrs. Jackson testified her husband was cruel to her in that he refused to speak to her on social outings for three years, and that she left him on January 15, 1942.

He went to Reno in August, 1942, and obtained a divorce in October, 1942.

Funeral services for William F. Dorsey, 94, last but one surviving member of the Grand Army of the Republic in the District, will be held at noon today at the Deal funeral home, 4812 Georgia ave. nw. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery. John M. Kline, 96, who lives at Soldiers' Home, is now the only surviving member.

DORSEY

Mr. Dorsey, who died Sunday at his home, 3222 20th st. ne., had been a resident of Washington since 1889. He was quartermaster general of the Kit Carson Post, No. 2, Department of the Potomac, GAR; a Mason and the oldest living member of the International Typographical Union. After 31 years of service at the Government Printing Office, Mr. Dorsey retired in 1920.

A native of Rising Sun, Ind., he accompanied his family at the age of 9 on a Western migration and settled in Nebraska. Living in the midst of Indians, he worked as a lad on his father's farm and fought furiously when hostile Indians attacked their homestead. First rejected when he tried to join the Union Army, he joined a covered wagon train from Nebraska to Colorado. Then he misrepresented his age and became a member of Company G, Veterans Battalion, 1st Regiment, Colorado Cavalry. During his engagements against the "redskins" in the West, he met many famous men, including Buffalo Bill, Kit Carson and General Custer.

After the war he worked as a printer on many newspapers throughout the West. He was organizer and first president of the Typographical Union on the Lincoln (Neb.) Journal.

Surviving is a son, Glenn C. Dorsey, sr., of Washington; three grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Lieut. McGinnis, Moffett Rites To Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Second Lieut. Lawrence G. McGinnis, 25, and John Holbrook Moffett, 19, two natives of the Washington area who were killed December 29 in the crash of two Army bombers near Salt Lake City, will be held tomorrow at Fort Myer Chapel. They will be buried side by side in Arlington Cemetery.

Services for Lieutenant McGinnis will be held at 2 p. m. The son of Mrs. F. A. Tutt, 2245 North Wakefield st., Arlington, Va., he had been in the service since March, 1942, and as a navigator held the Air Medal. He was decorated for antisubmarine operations at Jacksonvile, Fla., and Trinidad, British West Indies, last year.

Services for Lieutenant Moffett, son of Mrs. Herbert T. Edwards, 8 Franklin st., Kensington, Md., will be held at 3:15 p. m. After enlisting in the Air Forces on his eighteenth birthday, October 8, 1942, he received his wings last July at San Angelo, Tex. His mother, the former Mrs. India Moffett, was women's editor of the Chicago Tribune until June, 1942.

Dr. George O. Smith

Dr. George Otis Smith, 72, who was chairman of the Federal Power Commission during President Hoover's Administration, died yesterday at Augusta, Me. He was a resident of Skowhegan, Me.

Mr. Smith also served as chairman of the Federal Coal Commission in 1922-23. He was director of the Federal Geological Survey in 1907.

Dr. Smith was the storm center of a controversy in the Senate in the years 1930, 1931 and 1932 over whether the Senate had the right to recall confirmation of an appointee of the President. President Hoover denied the body had this right. The Supreme Court finally settled the matter in favor of the President.

Hoover had appointed Dr. Smith as chairman of the Federal Power Commission and it was over the confirmation of this appointment that the controversy arose.

Dr. Smith was elected a life trustee of the National Geographic Society on November 7, 1907. He was the author of several articles in the National Geographic Magazine.

Surviving are three children, Joseph Smith, publicity director for Colby College, Waterville, Me.; Mrs. John H. Fawcett, of Berkeley, Calif., and Mrs. Robert Velten, of New York City.

THE HECHT CO. AND THE SATURDAY EVENING POST PRESENT—

A Tribute to The Unconquerables

Prelude to The 4th War Loan . . . in Dramatic, Colorful Display . . . Honoring The Valiant People of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Norway, Greece, The Netherlands, France, Belgium, Yugoslavia, Luxembourg and Denmark

"Keep Backing the Attack!" With these fighting words, the U. S. Treasury opens the Fourth War Loan on January 18th. As a fitting prelude, leading up to and into this great Victory effort, The Hecht Co. is privileged to present a Tribute to the Unconquerables . . . a Nation-wide War Bond drive, co-sponsored by the Saturday Evening Post, now in progress. This coast-to-coast drive is inspired by Poet Joseph Auslander's magnificent Open Letters to The Unconquerables, which millions have recently read in the Saturday Evening Post. Auslander's letters have brought home to the people of this Nation the vivid, stark picture of the sacrifices made by tens of millions in the ravaged, war-torn lands. And the purpose of this drive, and the Fourth War Loan, is to impress our people with the great need for sacrifice now . . . to keep the attack rolling . . . to release these nations to fight . . . to speed final Victory for all.

SEE THE WINDOWS OF "THE UNCONQUERABLES"

SEE . . . The Dramatic Story of Greece picturizing the valiant spirit of a submerged but unconquerable people.

SEE . . . The Facts About Ravaged Poland and what the reign of a Nazi tyranny has done to a nation bathed in blood.

SEE . . . The "Czechoslovaks Carry On!" The underground activities of the Czechs, in the face of Nazi barbarism and brutality.

SEE . . . A Tribute to The Netherlands and how the Fighting Dutch fight on for Victory against the overwhelming forces of Hitler.

SEE . . . The Heroic Stand of Norway, the vivid evidence of an indomitable people who fight on and on and on.

FREE TO BOND-BUYERS AT THE HECHT CO. THIS WEEK

1. A set of five full-color prints of Joseph Auslander's Open Letters to the Unconquerables will be presented to each purchaser of a $25 War Bond or more.

2. By special arrangement with the Ambassadors of Greece, Poland, Norway, Czechoslovakia and The Netherlands . . . important and interesting literature describing the various occupied countries will be presented to each purchaser of a $25 Bond or more.

3. Each Bond buyer will receive free, a folder giving a biographical sketch of Joseph Auslander, and the story of how the Open Letters to the Unconquerables came to be written.
